P. M. Curry says he played quite a trick on Mr. Patterson, who accompanied him from Lakeview last week says the Post. While they were camped at ... Creek valley ... spled a band of sheep feeding on a hill, when Curry told Mr. Patterson there was a band of antelope. Mr. Patterson was armed with a gun and was anxious to get a shot at some deer or antelope, so took this opportunity to satisfy his ambition to the great amusement of Curry. After he had fired several shots they saw a man coming down the hill as fast as he could run yelling every jump. Curry got Mr. Patterson out of the scrape by driving off at a rapid gait, leaving the infuriated herder behind. Curry says that Patterson's poor marksmanship is all that prevented the herder pursuing them.
