MORE FIGURES THAN SENSE.

Last week's issue of the Lakeview Herald was replete with a conglomeration of figures and words taking The Examiner to task for deigning to reply to an article boosting the present county court for something it didn't do. The Herald quotes a column of law and brands The Examiner as untruthful but proves nothing. The Examiner has no desire to prolong a controversy in a war of words; but when a statement is made to mislead the public, it is a duty any newspaper owes to its readers, to brand it as false and misleading. What The Examiner said two weeks ago is practically correct, and no amount of blather talk can prove otherwise. If it is not true that the County Judge did couple, without the assistance of the Herald, the "Good Record Shown" and branded as a "Hot Air Record" by The Examiner, the Herald failed to mention it. The Herald is unfortunate in being compelled to "father" all the trash that the county Judge wishes to publish and not sign his name to. Nearly everyone knows that the Judge does not pay fancy prices for being boosted through the newspapers, and it is not likely that the Herald can expect much for using so much space in his behalf.

The article in last week's Herald says it commends the action of two of Lake County's heaviest tax-payers and staunchest republicans, W. P. Heryford and S. B. Chandler, who had the general supervision of building the new Crooked Creek bridge. The bridge was built at a cost of $232 as against $780, the cost of the former bridge built under a democratic administration. The Herald is right in commending this act of saving to the county, but it failed to commend the act of the County Court when it refused entirely to pay for a bridge built in Warner by Wm. Petree. The former County Court kept the roads and bridges in repair and in a passable condition, which is more than the present court has been or is doing. The broken wagons laying along the road show their condition now. Some bridges are entirely broken down and most of the others are dangerous for even a saddle horse. The total amount expended on road work since Jan 1, 1903, according to the records, is $582, and $167.75 is for work done last year. The amount of money expended on the county roads per mile since Jan 1st, 1902, is $3.70, and two-thirds of this was allowed by the former court. 'Tis false economy to save the people's money at a greater expense to the people than the expenditure of this money would be.

A tirade against The Examiner proves nothing and does not help the cause of the County Court. It is a better policy to always state the facts as they really exist, and not make it appear that you have done something that you haven't.

Exhibits Shipped Free.

In order to encourage exhibitors and attendance at the state fair, the Southern Pacific Company will transport all exhibits, including live stock to and from the Oregon state fair free of charge. Exhibitors should ship direct to the Fair Grounds, where they will find ample facilities or unloading all exhibits.

LOST RIVERS OF OREGON.

average lake fed by mountain streams.

THE "SINK."

At another point near the Lake and Harney County line, a mountain stream flows out into a level place on the desert and disappears slowly, filtering through the sands of a large area of ground. It is called the "Sink." In this sink and around it vegetation grows luxuriantly and the adventurous pioneer was not backward in taking advantage of the situation. He moved to the border of the "Sink" and selected the best plot of ground and "squatted" on it. He was isolated from the world, it is true, and his nearest neighbor lived many miles away, but his cattle and horses prospered at the sink. He grew all of the vegetables he needed and sold enough besides to buy the other few necessities of life, and remained at home and watched his stock grow up about him. After he was independent he selected a friend to come and take up another claim and share the "Sink" with him. Then another good neighbor was selected, and there were intermarriages among the families, until today the "Sink" is one of the most prosperous little communities in the country. And the people are independent, too. There is no more land to be taken up and the country is barren in every direction for many miles and they boast of the fact that they can never be crowded out by outsiders.

IN CROOK COUNTY.

In the country lying about the headwaters of the Deschutes River, in Crook County, are several of those "Lost" rivers. Three have been located that "lose" and find themselves again repeatedly. But few settlements have been made in this section yet, but home seekers are beginning to look that way. The country also abounds with game and these "lost" and "found" streams teem with trout. The ranchers from the Deschutes country make regular trips into the section and regard it as the best hunting country in Oregon.

But it is predicted that the day is not far distant when all of this comparatively unknown portion of the Inland Empire will be thickly populated with prosperous citizens, and that where the grounds cannot be watered by means of ditches from the natural mountain streams or from the reservoirs that will be built by the government, artesian wells will amply supply the demand.
