LAKEVIEW, OREGON, NOV. 19, 1903.

Timber Land Bill.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate by Hansbrough of North Dakota to change the timber land laws. By implication, it is said to repeal the present timber and stone act. The Hansbrough bill empowers the Secretary of the Interior to examine and appraise all timber and stone lands within the public domain. He may then, at his discretion sell the right to remove the timber and stone from such sections as he may designate to the highest bidder. But the title of the land itself will remain perpetually in the Government. Another provision in the bill modifies the forest reserve lieu land act by restricting the selection of the land taken in lieu of the entry included in a forest reserve to that part of the public domain only which is of more value for agricultural purposes than for its timber or stone. Then there are other provisions which aim to correct abuses committed under the homestead and desert land acts.

Valentine Turns Up.

Leon Valentine, the man who was reported crazy last week, turned up last Saturday, sound in mind and body. He wandered around over the valley for several days, and after halting at the Hopkins place across the Slash, was not seen again until he brought up at the Bishop place, southwest of town, and in company with Ed Bishop came to Lakeview Saturday.

Much anxiety was felt for the unfortunate man, and a number of people were looking for him. Marshall Harvey found the address on a letter in his effects at the hotel, of a friend in New York, and wired him. The reply stated that Valentine had relatives in that state.

Valentine, who is now as well as ever, lays his temporary derangement to an over supply of cheap whisky taken at Alturas.

Paper gloves and stockings are now being manufactured in Europe. As to the manner in which the former are made little is known, but the stockings have been carefully examined by experts, and they are found in their praise of them. It is claimed that they will last almost as long as ordinary stockings. The reason, they point out, is because the paper of which they are made was during the process of manufacture transformed into a substance closely resembling wool, and was then woven and otherwise treated as ordinary wool.

It is estimated that the nation's agricultural products this year will reach a total valuation of $5,000,000,000. Of this sum, the largest amount is furnished by corn, the value of which is estimated at $1,144,950,000. Wheat comes next with $535,872,000, and the oats and cotton crops will add $796,651,950 more. The balance is made up by hay, potatoes, rye, etc.

A fair and buxom widow who had buried three husbands recently went with a gentleman who paid her marked attention in the days of her youth to inspect the graves of her dear departed. After contemplating them some minutes in mournful silence she murmured to her companion:

"Ah, Joe, you might have been in that row, too, if you had had a little more courage."

Beauty in Oregon State Capital.

Hereafter strangers who go to Salem and visit the State Capitol will go away praising the beauty of that structure. As viewed from the outside, the building has been an object of admiration ever since the dome was built in 1892. Now improvements have been made in the interior and no one who comes here from other states will have any criticism to offer on the appearance of Oregon's chief governmental building.

The latest improvement to be made is the painting and gilding of the under surface of the interior dome, which covers the center of the building. This dome is of ornamental stucco work, and had been left white. The last Legislature made arrangements for the painting of the dome and this has just been completed by Frank Willman, under the direction of the State Board of Capitol Building Commissioners, composed of the Governor, Secretary of State and State Treasurer. The background is a Naples yellow, while the relief work is a dull cream, the high points of the relief being covered with gold leaf.

The dome is composed of 16 panels and the bands separating them are heavily overlaid with gold. The base of the dome and the walls of the corridor beneath are a light cream color. At the bottom of each of the panels is a large wreath about four feet in diameter. In the center of each of these electric lights will be placed and a circle of lights will be arranged above the ledge at the bottom of the dome. When the lights are turned on at night the reflection will be upwards to the ornamental surface and the effect as seen by one standing below will be pleasing in the extreme.

Three years ago the House of Representatives was renovated and a highly ornamental ceiling put in. Visitors who are competent to pass intelligent opinions declare that Oregon's House of Representatives is not excelled for beauty in any other state in the country. The Senate chamber, as originally constructed, displays the work of a skilled designer and it is admired by all who see it. Improvements have been made in the interiors of the principal offices and the grounds have been kept in good condition without any strained effort to improve upon nature by trimming trees and shrubs into impossible shapes.

Hundreds of strangers visit the State Capitol every year and in former years they went away to pass unfavorable criticism. Now the building is one of which all Oregonians may well be proud, and one which will be mentioned in words of commendation by all who visit it. But one thing now is lacking—a modern elevator—but visitors forget the tediousness of the climb when they reach the upper floors and view the beauty there displayed.

Mussed Him Up.

"Did you ever exercise with that dumbbell, old man?"
"Yaas, old chap; I did once, but it disawnged me necktie, so I quit."
