Timber Land Filings.

In the number of timber land filings in Oregon during the past year, the Roseburg district comes first followed by the Lakeview district.

Last year, as in the year, preceding, there were more timber entries recorded in the Roseburg Land Office than elsewhere in Oregon. In the fiscal year 1902, there were 461 timber entries in the Roseburg district, embracing 71,457 acres. From these sales the Government derived $178,944. During the past year Roseburg district reported 1700 timber entries embracing 291,553 acres, from which was derived a total fund of $653,876.

The Lakeview district stands next to Roseburg in the importance of its timber land business. Where this office in 1902 reported only 89 timber entries covering 11,197 acres, it reports, for the past year, 950 timber entries embracing 143,452 acres. Its receipts on account of the increased timber business show an advance from $27,992 to $358,631.

In the importance of its timber land entries the La Grande district ranks third. In 1902 there were only 116 timber entries filed in that office embracing 14,456 acres. Last year there were 815 entries, covering 124,299 acres. On account of this increase in business there has been an advance in receipts at La Grande from $36,141 to $319,759.

The remainder of the State of Oregon experienced less activity in timber land business than was shown in the three districts above named. The Dalles, Oregon City and Burns districts all experienced a remarkable increase in timber entries last year as compared with the year previous, but nowhere were operations as extensive as in the districts heretofore cited. In 1902 The Dalles district reported 44 timber entries embracing 5,752 acres and last year 455 entries covering 79,800 acres. Its receipts increased from $14,381 to $177,999.

A Prisoner in Her Own Home.

Mrs. W. H. Layha, of 1001 Agnes Ave., Kansas City, Mo., has for several years been troubled with severe hoarseness and at times a hard cough, which she says, "Would keep me in doors for days. I was prescribed for by physicians with no noticeable results. A friend gave me part of a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with instructions to closely follow the directions and I wish to state that after the first day I could notice a decided change for the better, and at this time after using it for two weeks, have no hesitation in saying I realize that I am entirely cured." This remedy is for sale by Lee Beall.

A new entrance for house flies has been discovered by a Franklin, N. H., man into whose home the flies had been coming in spite of well screened doors and windows. A careful inspection brought to light the fact that the flies came down the fireplace chimney, a fire in the fireplace warming them up and starting them into the living room in swarms. The discovery led to a fly screen being placed over the top of the chimney and since then not a fly has been seen in the house.

Saved From Terrible Death.

The family of Mrs. M. L. Bobbitt of Barger-ton, Tenn., saw her dying and were powerless to save her. WASHINGTON LETTER

(Special Correspondence.)

"Official examiner of the wastebasket"—such is the title conferred on two women at the treasury. Nor is the title a vain one. The women are classed as "experts," and their duties are reckoned important.

From 9 to 4 o'clock each day, except Sunday, they may be found in the basement of the big and dirty gray brown building wherein Uncle Sam's sinews of commerce and war, peace and prosperity, are kept. Hour by hour they carefully go through the big piles of waste paper dumped out for their critical inspection from the capacious maws of the hundreds of baskets which are supposed to catch the litter of officials and clerks, from Secretary Shaw down. It is the word "supposed" that gives these experts employment. Too often a document or paper of value slips inadvertently into the baskets and were it not for the watchful eyes of these women would find its way into the fiery furnace of destruction.

People have been wont to joke about the ridiculous titles that certain government employees bear, and in a popular farce of a few years ago there was a character who styled himself the official cleaner of government cuspidors. But there are, in fact, two official examiners of wastebaskets in the treasury department.

The Annual Overhauling.

The interior of the White House is to receive its general annual overhauling during the absence of the president and his family from Washington. Some minor changes that are desired by the president and Mrs. Roosevelt will be effected.

In the president's office painters are already at work repainting doors and other woodwork.

The new driveways in the front of the White House grounds have about been completed, little remaining to be done.

During the absence of the family from the White House the main door at the north portico will not be closed to visitors, as heretofore, and those visiting the east room may enter that way as well as by the new eastern entrance, opposite the treasury department.

Alien Labor Law Violated.

Systematic violation of the law prohibiting the admission of contract foreign labor has started a new and rigorous investigation by treasury officials. Specific violations of the contract labor law are being investigated at New York by order of Commissioner General Sargent. One glaring example is that of a Hamburg-American steamer arriving there May 29, which had 2,600 immigrants on board, mostly Russians, Roumanians, Greeks, Galicians and Hungarians. With few exceptions these immigrants were under contract and were sent to cattle ranches and farms in the northwestern states.

Another practice in violation of the immigration law is the temporary exchange of money between steerage passengers, so that penniless immigrants are enabled to show up enough money to permit of their admission.

Admiral Dewey at Summer Home.
The admiral of the navy and Mrs. Dewey are now at their summer home in Woodley lane, near Washington, and propose remaining there at least until the middle of August and possibly through the entire summer. The admiral drives to and from his office in Washington daily, while Mrs. Dewey, to whom the seclusion of the country is especially delightful in summer, makes few excursions into town, but at all times extends a gracious welcome to the friends that come to her at Beauvoir.

Will Investigate Indian Complaints.
The president has ordered a thorough investigation of the affairs of the Kiowa and Comanche Indian reservation in Oklahoma and has appointed Francis E. Leupp of this city to make the investigation. The investigation is based on charges made by certain Kiowa Indians, including Deios K. Lone Wolf, a Kiowa, living at Hobart, that of the 2,759 allotments made to persons purporting to belong to the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache tribes, under the act approved June 6, 1900, a number of the allotments were illegal and more allotments were made than there were Indians.

Executive Offices Will Be Open.
The executive offices in Washington will be open throughout the summer, with Mr. Forster, the executive clerk, in charge. The president will also maintain an office at Oyster Bay, the two offices being in direct communication by telephone and telegraph. While the president expects to direct and watch the post office investigation, he desires to be as free as possible from official cares during his period of rest and recuperation, as the work of the coming winter will severely tax his strength.

Vacancies in Consular Service.
There are two or three good vacancies to be filled in the consular service. The best of these is the consulship at Manchester, England, made vacant by the resignation of Consul Grinnel, an old and faithful employee of the consular service. Another good place is at Cartagena, Colombia, made vacant by the recent death of John C. Ingersoll, and the consulship at Guadeloupe, on the island of that name in the French West Indies, will also be vacant, it is thought.

Will Live in Capital Suburb.
Lieutenant Commander Robert E. Peary, the noted explorer of the arctic regions, has just purchased a handsome house in the suburb of Washington called Cleveland Park, and he and his family will remove to it immediately. The little daughter who was born in the far north is now a schoolgirl.
CARL SCHOFIELD.
