Death Of Ethel Martin.

Word reached here last Saturday morning of the death, at Silver Lake, of Miss Ethel Martin, daughter of ex-commissioner J. M. Martin. Miss Martin was 14 years old. She was attending school, and had returned home from school on Friday evening. There was no one at the house at the time, and shortly afterward her father heard her scream, and went to the house, where he found her in convulsions, apparently from poison. Mr. Martin asked her some questions but could get no satisfactory answer from the sufferer, but found strychnine near by. She had taken the poison, but nothing could be learned here to justify an intent to commit suicide. The above is as near a true statement of the case could be learned. It is the belief that her death was the result of accidental poisoning.

Hurry up the Mails.

If what we heard last week was true, and we have no reason to doubt it, considering the source, the sympathy expressed for the drivers on the western stage line on account of the hardships they were compelled to endure, driving all night through the mud and cold, was lavished upon them while they were slumbering in a cozy bed at Joe Howard's in Drews valley. However we are more ready to condone this offense than the government would be if this method should be adopted as a rule by stage drivers on that line. Everybody wants their mail, and while it is a task to get it through that few men would undertake, every effort should be put forth to get the mails in as near on time as possible.

Prof. Hampton of Monmouth will take a prominent part in the play. Musical specialties will be given between acts. Among them will be an Operatic selection by Mrs. Walter Dyer and Mr. Phelps (special request). The Orchestra will furnish music during the play.

Space will be reserved for those wishing to send chairs. Call at Benkes Drug Store for tickets. Admission 50 cents.

Democrats Hold Primaries.

The democratic primaries were held last Saturday, and the county convention will be held next Saturday. Things passed off smoothly in the democratic camps, but one or two issues being of more than ordinary importance. Our republican friends will know next Saturday who they are to battle with. We are informed that some of the candidates have withdrawn from the principle places on the ticket. At present it is hard to tell who will compose the democratic ticket.

A petition asking for the establishment of a mail service from Cedarville to Shirks ranch in Lake county, Oregon, was circulated here this week and received numerous signers. A postoffice has been established there and a mail service would supply the people along the route with mail and prove a great convenience. The route is one that will be open all times of the year and a mail once a week would put the people out that way in touch with the world.—Record.

Robert Hesten, a resident of Klamath county about 50 years of age, was found dead in the road near the Howard place on the mountain 16 miles east of Ashland, apparently having perished in a storm. The body was found by the mail carrier, Mr. Hesten had lived with a brother, Jim Hesten, in Klamath county.
