Reserves to be Thrown Open.

The Secretary of the Interior has ordered the restoration to entry of large tracts of public lands in California that were temporarily withdrawn with a view to enlarging the forest reserves.

These lands were found unsuited for forest reserve purposes. Some are agricultural in character, some are grazing lands and a considerable area is valuable timber lands. The reason timber lands are to be turned back to the public domain is because they are isolated tracts located among lands now in private ownership. It would not be practicable to reserve them without reserving adjoining private lands, and this policy is not favored.

In restoring these lands to entry the Interior Department is adopting a new policy. These and all other lands hereafter restored to entry will not become subject to settlement immediately, but will be advertised for ninety days before they become subject to entry. This is to give every one an equal chance to look up the newly opened lands and to prevent any one getting unfair advantage. The exact description of the land is withheld from the public for the time being, but will probably be given out in a few days. A large tract in Washington was similarly thrown open.

Contest Was Warm One.

The Bernard Company's performances were brought to a close last Saturday evening and a dance was given in the hall after the show.

The contest for the most popular lady was won by Miss Fannie Tonningson, who was awarded a beautiful clock. Miss Doyle Blair was second in the race.

The beautiful solid gold ring awarded to the most popular and pretty baby was won by Mr. and Mrs. Man Whorton's baby, the baby of Mr. and Mrs. Al Cheney was the closest contestant.

The voting toward the last was spirited and marked with much interest by the friends of the contestants.

CHIEF JOSEPH DIES AT COLVILLE RESERVATION.

Chief Joseph, the famous Nes Perces warrior, is dead. He had been in poor health for some time, and died suddenly at his campfire on the 21st of this month on the Colville Reservation. Chief Joseph led a band of warriors in Wallowa valley massacred and drove out the white settlers in 1871.

Chief Joseph, in the opinion of army officers had no superior in the annals of Indian warfare, for diplomacy, strategy, quick and elusive marches and calm courage. In the old days he roamed from the California line to the Canadian boundary, and from the Blue Mountains to the summit of the Rockies.

Invasion of that section by whites brought about the need of a new Indian treaty. Joseph and his band refused to be moved from their valleys. In 1877 an attempt was made to put him on a reservation. He went on the warpath with White Bird and Looking Glass. The war lasted for three months, with General Howard in pursuit, and for ten weeks Joseph fought a running battle, in which, with 300 bucks, encumbered with families and stock, he successfully defied 40 companies of regulars, besides large forces of volunteers and Indian scouts.

After hard fighting in Central Idaho, he escaped over the Lolo trail to Montana, eluded forces stationed at the mouth of the canyon and started for the Canadian border. He was finally captured by General Miles, after the chase of Joseph had been a running battle for 1500 miles.

The United States lost 105 officers and men killed and 120 wounded. Fifty settlers were massacred. Since then Joseph had been peaceful, but had refused to return to the reservation, and had made frequent trips to Washington, D. C., where he was lionized. He and Miles were great friends.

Are there Any Stock for Fair?

Last week The Examiner left the matter of an exhibit to the Lewis & Clark Fair open for discussion. The people of every county in the state should, if possible make some kind of a showing at the fair next year. In order to properly put before the visitors to the fair the resources of any section, adequate transportation facilities should be available, which we have no assurance of securing in time to be of use to us here in Lake county. Such exhibits as fruit and vegetables are perishable and unless they can be renewed occasionally they would, in a few weeks, lose their attractiveness. Grain and grass exhibits are not subject to decay, but unless a complete farm exhibit could be made a partial one would hardly meet with the desired result. A timber and mineral exhibit would be an expensive one, as our mineral resources are undeveloped, and while our timber supply is immense, to place a sample of our trees at Portland by team, our only means of transportation, would involve a greater expense than the people are willing to sacrifice.

What is left then is a stock exhibit. Lake county can show some good stock. No place in the state can better cattle, sheep or horses be found than in Lake county. For the county to let the fair pass without an exhibit of any kind would be overlooking one of the best opportunities that will ever be presented to advertise the county. And now that a stock exhibit seems to be the only feasible one to make, it is time for our people to begin making arrangements for a first-class stock show. A string of whiteface or Herford, say a bull, a cow and yearling and a calf; a string of Jerseys and one of Dushams; a sample of our fine sheep and our wool, which cannot be surpassed anywhere in the world, would make a very attractive show. Then again some of our best horses would add to the sights of the big fair.

A stock exhibit, of course, could not be placed till spring, but now is the time to begin putting our stock in shape to send. Have them fat and in a condition to best show their size and quality by the time the fair opens, make the necessary appropriation to meet the expense and select the persons to take charge of the exhibit, so that every detail will be worked out by spring.

Plush Items.

Plush, Sept. 26, 1904.—This section of the country was visited by a terrific thunder and rain storm one night last week, which lasted several hours. A man who slept in Mr. Scammon's bunk house that night, got badly scared, and took refuge under the bed for safety, and one heavy crash started the slot machine in Moulder's saloon going, and it played for half an hour, paying regular every five minutes.

Haying is still going on, in fact some of the Tule ranches are just starting in, and Christmas will be near before the last buck load is hauled in.

W. P. Moulder, who has been quite sick for some time, is able to be about again and attend to business.

Mrs. James Givans of Deep creek, paid a short visit to friends and relatives, residing at Plush.

Tim Sullivan, Mr. Scammon's caterer and general roustabout, met with a painful accident the other day, a horse stepped on his foot and badly lacerating the same, but if blood poison don't set in, and go to his head, he will soon be able to be around again.

Dick Hesse returned from the Salt marsh a few days ago, he reports the salt crop rather short this season.

Messrs Massingill and Smith of Lakeview came over the other day, and they also visited the Salt marsh, where Mr. Massingill looked after the interest of the Co., which is operating the marsh.

The school at this place should have opened today (Monday) but for some unaccountable reason failed to connect. TULE.

DEFECT IN PRIMARY LAW NOT A SERIOUS ONE.

The question arising from a small defect in the new primary nominating law that has been made a subject for discussion the past few days in the daily papers, is a matter that little concerns Lake county, and in fact, the state, as but few cities in the state will hold elections before next spring, and no county elections will be held until the law is in full force with all provisions equitably brought into working order through natural channels.

The direct primary law provides that no person shall vote at primary elections unless he is registered as a member of the party with which he proposes to vote.

Voters who registered last Spring were not required to announce their party affiliation, and are, therefore, not registered as members of any party. These voters are not allowed to register over again, for the registration books are only open now for those who did not register last Spring.

It is alleged that this will prevent 95 per cent of the voters in Oregon voting at the next primary elections.

Little does it matter whether the voter is allowed to register this fall, as the registration books will be open again before another election, and people will be required to register again just the same as if no new law were in force, and at that time voters will be required to register with the party of their choice, which will give them a vote in the primaries, as provided in the new law. Only a few large cities in the state will experience any inconvenience, and they will work out their own salvation, and if any defect is found in the law, the legislature will be asked to remedy the matter at this winter's session.

Good Evidence of Road.

The best evidence of the Western Pacific's intention to build a railroad between Salt Lake and San Francisco is that the company has placed an order with the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company for 65,000 tons of steel rails for future delivery. These rails are all to be of the A. S. E. standard, eighty pounds, and as the rail runs 125.71 tons to the mile, the order will mean enough for over 500 miles.

The order for rails following the announcement that the road was in the market for construction equipment and that contracts for grading would be let at once, proves conclusively that work is to be rushed, so it would not be surprising to hear of a commencement at this end at any time. Must Return Certificates.

The ministers of Oregon who have neglected to make returns of certificates of marriages performed by them will find themselves in serious trouble unless they make a prompt report to the County Clerk. The law which was passed at the last session of the Legislature, requires the ministers to return the certificates within 30 days of the issuance of the license, if the ceremony is performed in the same county. If performed in another county a duplicate of the certificate must be returned to the clerk of the county in which the license was issued. For failure to comply with the law a penalty of $50 is imposed.
