WASHINGTON LETTER.

[Regular Correspondent.]

The question of dee pest interest to the President and Congress, and discussed by politicans in Washington more than any other, has to do with the proposal to give the Interstate Commerce commission power to regulate freight rates. This proposition also attracts wide attention in the country, especially among all classes of shippers: who are dependto appoint some one in their line of pamial. business upon the Commission, Sec. Morton, who has been a railroad man all his life, has promised the President to take up the problem of the supervision of railroad rates, and see what can be accomplished. This may appear a little unusual for the Secretary of the navy, but Mr. Morton is a man of experience. He believes in the doctrine of consideration of the rights of the people. He says railroads should not oppose rational government supervision, and that they should cease to manipulate politics and legislation. The President insists that the railroads, as well as other interests, shall have fair play. Reforms of method are needed; there is no war upon railroads, which are recognized as the

There is nothing now in the way of building the canal, save the solution of some difficult engineering feats, the labor question, and the climate. It is proposed to carry on the operation of excavating the canal electric lights at night. This will hasten the work, and enable it to be prosecuted with greater comfort on the part of the laborers. The American Further the Best in the World,

The American farmer is the greatest man magnitude float a measured in money are chormans, yet such figures sink into insignificance when compared to the money brain and brawn invested in agricultural industries. For instance, the farmers of Minnesota and Dakota have received $300,000,000 for their products in a single year. The farmer knows what Nature will bring forth for him from his experience in the past. He knows if certain seeds are planted and properly cared for that Nature will take care of the rest.
