There was a cool breeze from the south Sunday night, possibly chilled from passing over the mountains, where the thermometer dropped to 12 below zero Christmas day. If it was not for those cold winds coming from Alturas we could raise oranges here.

The bugaboo about microbes being carried from one person to another by kissing has been exploded, says an exchange. It is believed now that the story was started by a jealous old maid to get even with a sweet girl of 20 who said there were fleas on pet dogs.

The editor of The Examiner was approached last week on what this paper would have startling for the first week of the new year. We had not studied up anything, but suggested that we tell the truth one week. This course would probably have been pursued had it not been that so many Lakeview people chased us out of the notion.

WEEKLY WEATHER REPORT.

Below we give a report of the weather as recorded by the Government weather bureau station at The Examiner Office. This report is changed each week, and if our readers wish to keep a yearly record of weather conditions for future reference, cut out the report along the black line and paste it in a scrap book one week after another. This record will be taken on Tuesday to end each week and begin on Wednesday for the next week. Government Weather Bureau Station at Lakeview, Oregon.
