MEANT IT FOR COLLECTION

Man Intended to Drop Gold-Piece on Plate, But Contributes Single Penny.

"I can't quite make your change," said the country store-keeper, painfully recounting the pile of pennies in his hand. "It's a cent out of the way." "Oh, never mind," returned the munificent summer boarder. "But it's my cent," was the moving rejoinder. Sometimes it does happen to make a difference if we know who owns the cent. The New York Press tells this story of a man who, early on Monday morning, came to the assistant treasurer of a church.

"I attended service yesterday," said he, "and I made a mistake when you took up the collection. I had a penny and a five-dollar gold piece in my pocket. I think—" Here he stopped to take breath, and the other man interrupted him with some impatience. He had heard just that complaint before. Somebody was always hunting a five-dollar gold piece.

"I think you are mistaken," said he. "We had no five-dollar gold piece in Sunday's collection." "That's just what I am trying to get at," said the old gentleman. "You ought to have had one. I meant to put mine in the basket, but I made a mistake and dropped in the penny instead. Here is the gold piece."
