

Author of "The Adventures of Sheriock Holmes," "The Hound of the Easkervilles," "The Sign of the Four." "A Study In Scerlet." Etc.

The Adventure of the Abbey Grange

No. 12 of the Series

(Copyright, 1904 by A. Coman Dayle and Collier's Weekly.) (Copyright, 1405, by McClure, Phillips & Co.)

and frosty morning toward the end of the winter of '97 that I was awakened by a tugging at my shoulder. It was Holmes. The candle in his hand shone upon his eager, stooping face and told me at a giance that something was amiss.

"Come, Watson; come!" he cried. "The game is afoot. Not a word! Into your clothes and come!"

Ten minutes later we were both in a cab and rattling through the silent streets on our way to Charing Cross station. The first faint winter's dawn was beginning to appear, and we could dimly see the occasional figure of an early workman as he passed us, blurred and indistinct, in the opalescent London reek. Holmes nestled in silence into his heavy coat, and I was glad to do the same, for the air was most bitter, and neither of us had broken our fast.

It was not until we had consumed some hot tes at the station and taken our places in the Kentish train that we were sufficiently thawed, he to speak and I to listen. Holmes drew a note from his pocket and read it aloud: Abbey Grange, Marsham, Kent.

3:30 a.m. My Dear Mr. Holmes-I should be very glad of your immediate assistance in what promises to be a most remarkable case. It is something quite in your line. Except for releasing the lady, I will see that everything is kept exactly as I have found it, but I beg you not to lose an instant, as it is difficult to leave Sir Eustace there. fours faithfully. STANLEY HOPKINS.

"Hopkins has called me in seven times, and on each occasion his summons has been entirely justified." said Holmes. "I fancy that every one of his cases has found its way into your collection, and I must admit, Watson, that you have some power of selection, think that Friend Hopkins will nve up to his reputation and that we shall have an interesting morning. The crime was committed before 12 last night." "How can you possibly tell?"

ILLUSTRATED

BY F. D. STEELE

"By an inspection of the trains and by reckoning the time. The local police had to be called in; they had to communicate with Scotland Yard; Hopkins had to go out, and he in turn had to send for me. All that makes a fair night's work. Well, here we are at Chiselhurst station, and we shall soon set our doubts at rest." A drive of a couple of miles through narrow country lanes brought us to a park gate, which was opened for us by an old lodge keeper, whose haggard face bore the reflection of some great sister. The avenue ran through a die park between lines of ancient and ended in a low, widespread utly of a great age and shrouded vy, but the large windows showed t modern changes had been carried and one wing of the house appearto be entirely new. The youthful and alert, eager face of Inspectlanley Hopkins confronted us in open doorway. a very glad you have come, Mr. es, and you, too, Dr. Watson.

indeed, if I had my time over I should not have troubled you, ace the lady has come to herself has given so clear an account of fair that there is not much left us to do. You remember that Lew-'n gang of burglars?"

bat, the three Randalls?" cactly; the father and two sons. seir work. I have not a doubt of ley did a job at Sydenham a fortago and were seen and described. r cool to do another so soon and wir, but it is they beyond all doubt. hanging matter this time."

Eustace is dead, then?" 1 ;; his head was knocked in with his o'vn poker."

's " Eustace Brackenstall, the driver me.*

sactly; one of the richest men in Lady Brackenstall is in the ing room. Poor lady, she has had at dreadful experience. She seem-If dead when I saw her first. I you had best see her and hear mink of him still hav there." shuldered and L. hands. As she fell back from uttered an excl. Marchile. "You have other injuries, madam! wits, tied there and her very dress apot-What is this?" Two vivid red spots stood out on one of the white, round limbs. She hastily covered it. ron and your friend will sit down, I you gentlemen, and now she is coming will tell you all I can.

year. I suppose there is no use of my at-all our neighbors would tell you that, even if I were to attempt to deny R.

proprieties and its primness, is not congenial to me. But the main reason lies in the one fact which is notorious pleasant. Can you imagine what I means for a sensitive and high spirite :

night? It is a sacrilege, a crime, a villainy, to hold that such a marriage is binding. I say that these monstrous laws of yours will bring a curse upon the land. God will not let such wickedupon her brow. Then the strong, soothing hand of the anstere maid drew her head down on to the cushion, and the wild anger dled away into passionate sobbing. At last she continned: "I will tell you about last night. You are aware, perhaps, that in this house all the servants sleep in the modern wing. This central block is made up of the dwelling rooms, with the kitchen behind and our bedroom above. My maid, Theresa, sleeps above my room. There is no one else, and no sound could alarm those who are in the farther wing. This must have been well known to the robbers or they would not have acted as they did.

"Sir Eustace retired about half past 10. The servants had already gone to their quarters. Only my maid was up, and she had remained in her room at the top of the house until I needed her services. I sat until after 11 in this room, absorbed in a book; then I walked round to see that all was right before I went upstairs. It was my custom to do this myself, for, as I have explained, Sir Eustace was not always to be trusted. I went into the kitchen, the butler's pantry, the gun room, the billiard room, the drawing room and finally the dining room. As I ap-

She mintress scream, and down I min to face in her find her, poor lamb, just as she says, the losse gown and him on the floor, with his blood frames liolmes and brains over the room. It was enough to drive a woman out of her ted with him; but she never wanted courage, did Miss Mary Fraser of Ade-Inide, and Lady Brackenstall of Abbey "It is nothing. It has no connection Grange hasn't learned new ways with this hideous business tonight. If You've questioned her long enough, to her own room just with her old "I am the wife of Sir Eustace Brack- Theresa to get the rest that she badly enstall. I have been married about a needs."

With a motherly tenderness tempting to conceal that our marriage gaunt woman put her arm round her has not been a happy one. I fear that mistress and led her from the room. "She has been with her all her life." said Hopkins, "Nursed her as a baby Perhaps the fault may be partly mine. and came with her to England when was brought up in the freer, less they first left Australia eighteen conventional atmosphere of South Ausmonths ago. Theresa Wright is her tralia, and this English life, with its name, and the kind of maid you don't pick up nowadays. This way, Mr. Holmes, if you please!"

The keen Interest had passed out of to every one, and that is that Sir Eus- | Holmes' expressive face, and I knew tace was a confirmed drunkard. To be that with the mystery all the charm of with such a man for an hour is un- the case had departed. There still remained an arrest to be effected, but what were these commonplace rogues woman to be tied to him for day and that he should soil his hands with them? An abstruse and learned specialist who finds that he has been called in for a case of measles would experience something of the annoyance which I read in my friend's eyes. Yet ness endure." For an instant she sat the scene in the dining room of the Abup, her cheeks flushed and her eyes bey Grange was sufficiently strange to a e pillared in front after the fash- blazing from under the terrible mark arrest his attention and to recall his waning interest.

It was a very large and high cham ber, with carved oak celling, oaken paneling and a fine array of deer's leads and ancient weapons around the walls. At the farther end from the door was the high French window of which we had heard. Three smaller windows on the right hand side filled the apartment with cold winter sunshine. On the left was a large, deep fireplace, with a massive, overhanging oak mantelpiece. Beside the fireplace was a heavy oaken chair with arms and trossbars at the bottom. In and out through the open woodwork was woven a crimson cord, which was secured at each side to the crosspiece below. In releasing the lady the cord had been slipped off her, but the knots with which it had been secured still remained. These details only struck our attention afterward, for our thoughts were entirely absorbed by the terrible object which lay upon the tiger skin hearth rug in front of the fire.

It was the body of a tall, well made man about forty years of age. He lay upon his back, his face upturned, with his white teeth grinning through his short black beard. His two clinched hands were raised above his head, and a heavy blackthorn stick proached the window, which is covered lay across them. His dark, handsome, with thick curtains, I suddenly felt the aquiline features were convulsed into wind blow upon my face and realized a spasm of vindictive hatred, which that it was open. I flung the curtain had set his dead face in a terribly aside and found myself face to face fiendish expression. He had evidently with a broad shouldered, elderly man, been in his bed when the alarm had who had just stepped into the room. broken out, for he wore a foppish, em-The window is a long French one, broidered nightshirt, and his bare feet which really forms a door leading to projected from his trousers. His head the lawn. I held my bedroom candle was horribly injured, and the whole lit in my hand, and by its light behind room bore witness to the savage ferocthe first man I saw two others, who ity of the blow which had struck him were in the act of entering. I stepped down. Beside him lay the heavy poker, bent into a curve by the concussion. instant. He caught me first by the Holmes examined both it and the indescribable wreck which it had wrought. "He must be a powerful man, this elder Randall," he remarked. "Yes," said Hopkins. "I have some must have been unconscious for a few record of the fellow, and he is a rough

Office at the Mercantile Company's Store--- Lakeview, Oregon. Good Stock - - - Easy Coaches Daily from Lakeview to Bly, connecting with Daily Stage to the railroad.

Oregon.

E. CASEBEER, - - Proprietor Bly, Oregon.

Northern Stage Line. LAKEVIEW -- PAISLEY.

A. W. BRYAN, Proprietor. Leaves Lakeview at 6 a.m. every day but Sunday. Returning, leaves Paisley at 6:30 a. m. every day but

Sunday. ingers' are $3. Round trip 5. OPPICE - Reynolds & Wingfield's, Lakeviaw

A. STORKMAN, Prop.

taker of

Havana and Domestic Cigars

COUNTRY ORDERS SOLICITED

live us a trial. Store in the brick uilding next door to Post & King saon, Lakeview, Oregon.

Citation.

In the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Lake,

In the matter of the Estate of E. H. Gibbins, de cased ; Citation. and also of the partnership of Hartzog & Gibbins.

To Hattie Gibbins, Rose Briles, J. W. Gibbins, Eva Gibbins and Millie Gibbins, heirs of E. H. Gibbins, deceased, and to all unknown heirs of said deccased, Greeting. In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby cited and required to apsear in the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Lake, at the Court room thereof, at Lakeview, in the County of Lake, on Saturday, the 13th day of January, 1906, at 10 oclock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to show cause, if any exists, why en order of sale of the real property belonging to the Partnership of HARTZOG & GIB-BINS, prayed for in the Petition of Edwin Hartzog, the Administrator of said Estate, and also of said Partnership, heretofore filed herein, should not be made, said real property being described as follows, to-wit: Commencing 30 feet East of the South-west corner of Lot Four, of Section Nineteen, in T. 41 S., R. 21 E. of Willametre Meridian, In Lake County, Oregon, and thence running North Seventy feet; thence East One Hundred Ninety-two feet and Nine inches; thence South Seventy feet; thence West One Hundred Ninety-two feet and Nine inches to the place of beginning.

This Citation is published in the LAKE COUNTY EXAMINER, (anewspaper published in Lake County, Oreoffice at the Bly Hotel, "Bly, gon, and chosen for that purpose by said Administrator), for four successive weeks, by order of Hon. B. Daly, Judge of the County Court of Oregon, for Lake County, duly made and entered on October 28th, 1905, and the date of the first publication hereof is November 2nd 1905. WITNESS, the Hon. B. Daly, Judge of the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the county of Lake, with the seal of said Court affixed, this 28th day of October, A. D. 1905. BRAL

ATTEST: A. W. MANBING, Clerk.

Notice of Final Settlement.

IN THE COUNTY COURT OF THE State of Oregon, for Lake County.

In the matter of the estate of Ed. O'Farrell, deceased.

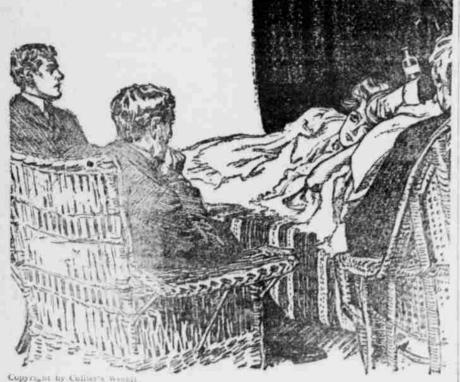

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has filed his FINAL AC-COUNT in the office of the County Cierk of Lake County, Oregon, in said estate, and that December 14th, at 10 o'clock, a. m., of said day, in the County Judge's office, in the county court house in Lake County, Oregon, has been fixed as the time and place for the hearing of objections to said account and for the settlement thereof.

Dated and first published November 16th, 1905.

> J. N. WATEON, Administrator.

TIMBER LAND NOTICE United States Land Office Lake

THE LADY LAY BACK EXHAUSTED UPON & COUCH.

which atomes for much which 1 deplore in your narratives. Your fatal habit of looking at everything from the point of view of a story instead of as a scientific exercise has ruined what might have been an instructive and even blond, golden haired, blue eyed, and classical series of demonstrations. You slur over work of the utmost finesse and delicacy in order to dwell upon sensational details which may excite but cannot possibly instruct the reader."

"Why do you not write them yourself?" I said, with some bitterness.

"I will, my dear Watson, I will. At present I am, as you know, fairly busy, but I propose to devote my declining years to the composition of a textbook which shall focus the whole art of detection into one volume. Our present research appears to be a case of murder."

"You think this Sir Eustace is dead, then?"

shows considerable agitation, and he is her. not an emotional man. Yes, 1 gather not an emotional man. Yes, I gather "I have told you all that happened, there has been violence and that the Mr. Hopkins," she said wearily. body is left for our inspection. A mere "Could you not repeat it for me? Well, suicide would not have caused him to if you think it necessary I will tell send for me. As to the release of the these gentlemen what occurred. Have lady, it would appear that she has been they been in the dining room yet?" locked in her room during the tragedy. We are moving in high life, Watson ladyship's story first." -crackling paper, 'E. B.' monogram, her account of the facts. Then we win examine the dining room together." Lady Brackenstall was no ordinary person. Seldom have I seen so graceful a figure, so womanly a presence and so beautiful a face. She was a would no doubt have had the perfect complexion which goes with such coloring had not her recent experience left her drawn and haggard. Her sufferings were physical as well as mental, for over one eye rose a hideous, pium colored swelling, which her maid, a tall, austere woman, was bathing assiduously with vinegar and water. The indy hay back exhausted upon a couch, instantly communicated with ' ondon. but her quick observant gaze as we That is really all that I can tell you, entered the room and the alert ex- gentlemen, and I trust that it will not pression of her beautiful features be necessary for me) go ov ir so painshowed that neither her wits nor her ful a story again." courage had been shaken by her terrible experience. She was enveloped in Hopkins, a loose dressing gown of blue and silver, but a black sequin covered dinner "I should ony so. Hopkins' writing dress was hung upon the couch beside

"I thought they had better hear your

"I shall be glad when you can arcoat of aros. eleturesque address. I range matters. It is harrible to me to back, but the fellow was on me in an wrist and then by the throat. I opened my mouth to scream, but he struck me a savage blow with his fist over the eye and felled me to the ground. I minutes, for when I came to myself customer." I found that they had torn down the bell rope and had secured me tightly to the oaken chair which stands at the head of the dining table. I was so firmly bound that I could not move, and a handkerchief round my mouth prevented me from uttering a sound. It was at this instant that my unfortunate husband entered the room. He had evidently heard some suspicious sounds, and he came prepared for such a scene as he found. He was dressed In his shirt and trousers, with his favorite blackthorn endgel in his hand. He rushed at the burglars, but another-it was an elderly man-stooped. pickel the poker out of the grate and struck him a horrible blow as he pressed. He fell, with a groan, and never moved again.

"I fainted once more, but again it ould only have been for a very few minutes during which I was insensible. When I opened my eyes I found that they had collected the silver from the sideboard, and they had drawn a bottle of wine which stood there. Euch of them had a glass in his hand. I have already told you, have I not, that one was elderly, with a beard, and the others young, hairless lads? They might have been a father with his two They talked together in whis-SOIIS. pers. Then they came over and made sure that I was securely bound. Finally they withdrew, closing the window after them. It was quite a quarter of an hour before I got my mouth When I did so my screams free. brought the maid to my assistance. The other servants wer soon alarmed, and we sent for the local police, who

"Any questions, Mr. Holmes?" asked

"I will not impose any further tax upon Lady Brackenstall's patience and time," said Holmes, "Before I go into the dining room I should like to hear your experience." He looked at the maid.

"I saw the men before ever they came into the house," said she. "As I sat by my bedro m window I saw three men in the moonlight down by the lodge gate yonder, but I thought nothing of it at the time. It was more than an hour after that I heard my

"You should have no difficulty in getting him.

Not the slightest. We have been on the lookout for him, and there was some idea that he had got away to America. Now that we know that the gang ure here I don't see how they can escape. We have the news at every seaport already, and a reward will be offered before evening. What beats me is how they could have done so mad a thing knowing that the lady could describe them and that we could not fail to recognize the description." "Exactly. One would have expected that they would have silenced Lady Brackenstall as well."

"They may not have realized," I suggested, "that she had recovered from her faint."

That is likely enough. If she seemed to he senseless they would not take her life. What about this poor fellow, Hopkins? I seem to have heard some queer stories about him." "He was a good hearted man when he was sober, but a perfect fiend when he was drunk, or rather when he was half drunk, for he seldom really went the whole way. The devil seemed to be In him at such times, and he was capable of anything. From what I hear, in spite of all his wealth and his title he very nearly came our way once or twice. There was a scandal about his drenching a dog with petroleum and setting it on fire-her ladyship's dog, to make the matter worse-and that was only hushed up with difficulty. Then he threw a decanter at that mali, Theresa Wright; there was trouble about that. On the whole, and between oursolves, it will be a brighter house without him. What are you looking at now?

Holmes was down on his knees examining with great attention the knots on the red cord with which the lady had been secured. Then he carefully scrutinized the broken and frayed end where it had snapped off when the burglar had dragged it down.

"When this was pulled down the bell in the kitchen must have rung loully," he remarked.

"No one could hear it. The kitchen stands right at the back of the house." "How did the burglar know no one would hear it? How dared be pull at -i i.ms in that reckless fashion?"

(Continued on next page .)

HOTEI EDE

MRS. R. M. GALLAGHER, Proprietor.

O

First Class Accomodations Building Has Been Enlarged To Accomodate a Large Trade Dining Service Unexcelled... as la

A Chance for Speculators.

SCHOOL LAND .- 280 acres of level as witnesses ; inimproved agricultural land for sale deap. Discription: SW14 S52 of SE34 and NW14 of SE34, Section 10, fp., 39 S., R. 19 E. W. M. This is a tesirable piece of land, located in Goose Lake valley and will make some man a 200d ranch

If you are thinking of organizing a stock company see our new samples of Wall Street engraved stock certifientes. tf

Oregon, Nov 15, 1905. Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the Act of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington Territory," as extended to all the Public Land States by act of August 4, 1892, Horace R. Dunlap, of Lakeview, county of Lake, state of Oregon, has this day filed in this office his sworn statement No. 2964. for the purchase of the SW14 of sec. No. 17 in township No. 37 S., range No. 19 East, w.m., and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for its timber or stone than for agricul-NEW PINE CREEK, · · · OREGON tural purposes, and to establish his claim to said land before Register and Receiver at Lakeview, Oregon, on Friday, the 26th day of January, 1906. He names

w. R. Bernard, w. A. Massingill, Geo. Lynch, Wm. McCulley, all of Lakeview, Oregon

Any and all persons claiming adversely the above-described lands are re-quested to file their claims in this office on or before said 26th day of Jan. 1906. 47-4 J. N. Watson, Register.

Look at the descriptions of the land listed with The Examiner this week for sale, and select your piece before it has been sold to some one else.

