Dolph Schminck and wife have gone to Callistoga, Calif., on a visit to Mr. Schminck's parents. They kept their trip very quiet till they had started, because they wanted to surprise the old folks and didn't want the news to get in The Examiner, as Mr. and Mrs. H. Schminck are subscribers to this paper.

L. F. Conn returned Monday morning from Dallas and other places in the valley. Mrs. Conn remained in Dallas, where she will visit till next spring. Wm. Dykeman has taken the half interest in the lease on the Mammoth Stables relinquished last week by Joe Fuller. The Examiner last week ment to say that W. R. Heryford had purchased the lease from Joe Fuller, and the type made it read W. P. Heryford, nothing serious resulted, however, and that "R" has been transferred from the "R" box to its own box.

Plush Plushery.

Ed. Examiner: Business being rushing and having two works to the one man and having had to attend meetings of the Long Shoreman's Union, I had no chance to send you any news even in my old fashioned desultory way. Now as we have an hour to spare let us go at it.

Must say Plush is booming, lots have gone up 60 per cent on Moulder Street, people and family's are living in tents waiting for material to build, weather beautiful. Cattle on the ranches are lowing low with plenty good hay to eat when the north wind blows. Amusements are all the rage, several dances and shows have been given within the past ten days, and on each occasion the Plush theater had scarcely standing room. Hotels are chuck full of guests, Lady Scammon the genial hostess of the Consimara Hotel Plush, had to hire three more helpers.

The Elephant refreshment rooms and wine parlors have two new clerks. Mr. Wyatt and Mr. Short, two jolly good fellows except at times they go contrary to the wishes of the Proprietor, Mr. Moulder, by refusing poor moneyless patrons for the drug, ah! Poor Mr. Moulder, who gladdened our hearts with that cup that cheers, thou art mouldering from our vision, thou art going from my gaze like a beautiful dream.

If you should get thirsty in Plush, just into the creek you must push through the slush. They'll refuse you the drug and call you a thug and order you out of Plush.

There is pretty good booze in Plush, if you'r lacking the sous you can't lish in Plush. If Wyatt gets Short he'll cause you to start with a half broken heart from Plush. Lush.

The last dance here was a decided success, the supper by Lady Scammon, ask the boys about it. Talk about your suppers by Light & Harrow, if they had seen this of ours, it would illumine their dim Light and Harrow their souls.

The lakes are froze over and boats, brigs and cruisers are in dock or fast in the ice. The Nora Daly is in port at Roberts' landing, loaded with hides, coal oil, sedgebrush and stock salt, the Peggy Burns at Rigg's wharf, supposed to be loaded with contraband goods. The Maudy Rambo stranded on McKee reef with two tramps drowned in her hold, who were stealing a ride, she is badly damaged and needs repairs. Betty Barry is at pier 27 loaded with tubes and bound for Bluejoint flat. The Dutch Miller is at Fort Burke loaded with counterfeit coins. Chief officer Harber of the Betty Barry is sick on board.

Poor Pat Phely whose death you chronicled last week had no relatives here, he served in the Union army and was at the battle of Gettysburg and though having no relatives here he was lifted by willing hands and packed from Rock Creek over the Rim Rock and over the snow to the Plush cemetery where he was laid away with due respect, he has seen his last camp fire he has heard his last tattoo and when Gabriel sounds the last reville, poor Pat Phely will be in the ranks and answer promptly to his name.

Oh death the poor man's dearest friend, the kindest and the best, welcome the hour my aged limbs are laid with thee to rest.

A Fishing Party.

ADEL, Dec. 18.—(Editor Examiner.) As news from Adel has been scarce, perhaps you would like to hear of a very pleasant event that occurred not long ago. I believe it happened in this way.

A large party, consisting of the ladies and gentlemen of the neighborhood, went up the creek for an outing and to fish. After joking each other for a time the ladies joined together against the gentlemen as to which party would be the champion and finally decided that the defeated party, whether ladies or gentlemen, should give an oyster supper to the crowd. The ladies for once entered the contest with energy. Trying hard to keep their tongues from wagging so freely, for fear they should forget to fish for championship. Thus the day was spent and the ladies came off victorious; so the gentlemen had to keep to their agreement and give the oyster supper. A few of the ladies were to prepare this oyster treat. The place chosen for the feast was at Mr. James Givan's and Saturday evening the time set.

Most every one was present, but those not, truly missed a very pleasant affair. Soon after the crowd gathered progressive what was in order, six tables were kept running all the evening. All seemed as determined to win as were the fishing party. When the bell tapped to close, points were counted and found to be that Mr. Fred Messner and Mrs. Friday were champions. Mr. Friday and Mrs. Powne walked off with the booby prize.

While the supper was being prepared music and conversation were indulged in by the older people, while games for the young people were in order. When supper was announced, we all were more than surprised to see how the table groaned under the lavish spread of chicken, served in all ways, baked fish with dressing, Beauties to behold, whether cooked or uncooked, devilled ham and oysters. Well in fact good things (suit the most fastidious, and everything that could be obtained. Twenty seven sat at the first table and we all ate until we feared we might have thought we had been saving up for the occasion for several days and finally when we were cused, one poor unfortunate with so many regrets, that he had only wished he had a neck like crane so he could taste the good things for a long time, while it was going down. There were two tables spread and in all present there were nearly sixty. A better time was never had.

When the clock struck two the crowd dispersed, all thanking I and Mrs. Givan for the good tid and their generous hospitality. Every one voting it was the beginning of very enjoyable times in this coming winter, and hoping another one as enjoyable as this been.
