injuries. 25c at Lee Beall's, druggist.

Married at Bend.

Miss Shell McReynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. McReynolds, was married here Tuesday morning to Sidney D. Percival, of Madras, says a dispatch to the Oregonian from Bend, dated December 21. The wedding closed an episode somewhat in the nature of an elopement, differing only in that the couple finally returned here to be married.

Percival came to town ostensibly to see Miss McReynolds. His attentions were objected to by the parents, particularly the mother. Early Monday morning Percival left for his home at Madras. Soon after he left Miss Mc-Reynolds, angered by the parental objections, stole away from home and in company with Mrs. Ora Poindexter and Mrs.
Rene West, drove after Percival, intending to overtake him. This they did at Forrest.

In the mean time Mrs. McReynolds discovered the flight of her daughter and sent Rene West post haste after the fleeing women with the injunction to her daughter to return to Forrest, where he found Percival. The result was that the young couple returned and were married by Justice J. M. Lawrence.

The bride is popular in Bend society, and Percival is a steady young man, foreman of the Madras Pioneer.

An Editor's Opinion of the Royal Gorge.

Edyth Tozier Weathered, in describing a recent trip over the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, says in "The Exposition":
"At last the goal of the ambition of years has been reached—marvelous, wonderful, grand and inspiring Royal Gorge is on either hand. The only disappointing thing is you only have one pair of eyes, while the train darts in and out of the tremendous chasm. If any who have never seen it are wondering how it looks just go and see. Thousands have tried to describe it, yet every attempt falls short of giving the subject justice."

FERRY'S SEEDS

The Angel Child.

WHERE, oh, where is the little boy
With the angel face and the ruffy hair,
The child who met me with shouts of joy
When the day was done and I turned from care?
He is gone, he is gone, the beautiful child
Who used to clamber upon my knee
And softly say as he sweetly smiled,
"Please, papa, now tell a 'tory to me."

The light still gleams in the window when I journey home at the close of day,
Weary from striving with eager men
And laboring much for a little pay,
But the sweet faced baby who at the door Stood ready to greet me with shouts of joy
Is waiting to hear my step no more—
Ah, where is my innocent little boy?

Behold, out there where the turf is torn
A score of giants who slug and slam,
And each of them as a babe was born
As innocent as a little lamb!
Each of the brawny ones gazing there
May once have sat on his father's knee
And gladdened a heart that was torn by care.

As my little one used to gladden me,
Ah, where is the child with the angel face
And the gentle voice and the wee, soft hands?

Behold him there as he takes his place
And eagerly and half crouching stands!
He has broken another man's leg today;
His shins are barked, and they've skinned his brow.

My sweet little boy has been taken away;
He is getting his name in the papers
now.

—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Inventive Genius.

Tramp—Please, mum, I'm an inventor, mum. I'm introduc'n my new patent combined knife an' fork an' spoon for one armed persons.

Lady—There are no one armed persons in this family.

Tramp—Mebby not, mum, but some time you might meet some person so unfortunate as to have but one arm, an' then you could recommend the great invention to him, mum.

Lady—I certainly should if it is good for anything.

Tramp—Well, mum, just hand me somethin' warm an' fillin' on a plate, an' I'll show you how it works.—New York Weekly.

What Ailed Them.

"Wat' youse kids howling about?"
"We jest had one of them there premonitions dat we ain't goid fer gettin' nothin' fer Christmas ag'in!"—New York American.

Lesson in Promptness.

A Philadelphia lawyer was one day discussing upon the importance of impressing upon the young mind the necessity for cultivating the virtues of regularity and precision.

"Early in life," said he, "I had this lesson imparted to me by my tutor.
He was a Frenchman by birth. I can never forget the earnestness with which he used to descend upon the subject. 'For punctuality, young sir,' he would say, 'permit me to commend to you ze example of ze sun, which rises exactly at break of day, nevaire before, nevaire after.'"—St. Louis Republic.

Caught.

"Did that lady make a complaint against that sneak thief for stealing her jewelry?"

"No. She said she'd rather lose it than explain what she was doing when he entered. She was gossiping over the back fence at the time."

"Well?"

"She was afraid she'd have to repeat the gossip in court."—Detroit Free Press.

In the Midst of It.

"Yes," said the young writer, "I've got pretty deep into my new novel
now."

"Ah," remarked the friend, "the plot's thickening, eh?"

"Yes, perhaps that's it; at any rate I'm stuck."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Best Artist.

"Dobber is a fine artist, isn't he?"
"Yes, but he is not as good as Smeer."

"I have been told that Dobber draws the finest pen and ink sketches of anybody in the city."

"Yes, but Smeer is fine at drawing customers."—Dallas News.

Award for a Complaint.

"Most of us seem to forget," said the ponderous juror, "that actions speak plainer than words."

"Gracious!" exclaimed Henpeck. "If they speak louder than my wife's words I want to keep on forgetting!"— Philadelphia Press.

Tommy Remembered.

Mother—Now, Tommy, stick out your tongue so the doctor can see it.

Tommy—But, mamma, you told me it was very naughty to stick out my tongue at people.—Chicago News.

No More Romance.

"You ended your novel at the most interesting part—just as the hero married the heroine."

Novelist—Oh, that finished it!—Town and Country.

Ever Test It?

An ounce of sincerity is worth a ton of blarney.—Life.
