Getch Announces Platform.

Clard Getch, republican candidate for secretary of State, has issued the following statement, addressed to the republicans of Oregon:
 "Prompted by what I trust is a laudable ambition and at the request of my friends, I declare my intention to make honorable effort to become your chosen candidate for the position of secretary of state, and therefore ask your good will and assistance in the ensuing primaries.
 The duties of this office being administrative, the views of a candidate on the larger questions of general and state government would not pertain to the conduct of the office.

Leaving the discussion of the tariff, trusts and other National questions to the candidates for Congress, whose business is to deal with such subjects, and the manner of raising state revenue to the legislative candidates, not presuming upon the province and business of that body and not doubting the members will prove competent to discharge the duties incumbent upon them, I deem it sufficient to say at this time that I am a Republican and have been a Republican ever since casting my first vote for James A. Garfield, and that I have ever heartily supported the nominees of the party. But what occurs to me as of more importance to the state on the part of a candidate for the Secretaryship is the question, What are his ideas and capabilities relative to the conduct of that office? While I recognize the fact that the office has been greatly modernized and systemized, I hope if elected that my large experience in dealing with the public in the transaction of important business will enable me still farther to increase the efficiency of its service, and to pledge myself, if I am favored with the nomination and elected by the people, to give the public faithful service and to manage the office economically. And, too, that everyone doing business with the office shall in the words of the President have a "square deal."

 To Editor Examiner:

I would like to have you place me on your subscription list. Since the snow has accumulated so deep, visitors do not call. I do not see any one only when I go to the post office. And that only when I am in need of some necessary article, and the mail. I have seen no one for the last sixteen days and will have to finish a pair of snow-shoes before I can mail this letter. When I do call at the post office I would like to get the county news, especially from the chief city, where I am most acquainted. I am working on prospects on the divide between North Fork of Pine and Kelly creeks, in Lake county. My nearest neighbor is about one mile below me across the California line. Working prospects in winter would not be disagreeable work if the prospector would make ample provisions before the snow fell. If he don't he is apt to be soliloquizing before he is aware of what he is doing.

I procured framing timbers last fall and placed them handy to my work, but neglected legging. As there is no timber nearby that I could split, I have to be content with small fir that are standing about on the sidehill. I have to wade about in the snow up to my pockets cutting one and carrying it to the next and so on until I have all I can carry handy or unhandy, to my tunnel. Being on the up-hill side I take a straight course for the tunnel entrance. Old Boreas in his deception, has made the side-hill look like one smooth incline plain. On my way down with six sticks of timber, several times larger at one end than the other, three on one shoulder and three under one arm with axe in one hand, I step upon a hidden boulder, and before I can take another step I have slipped and fell into the snow below, and I am most sure I caught myself soliloquizing, giving vent to feelings caused by the sudden mishap, to what was already a disagreeable task, so I say if you intend working prospects in winter time provide all your timber before the snow falls.

There are other things you have to contend with. When I am working in my tunnel, my candle light gets very dim, on investigation I find that the candle grease has burnt away leaving about one and one-half inches of charred wick, curled up like the tail of a pug dog, charring with a red glow on the end. When I realize that I have no "snuffers" and that my axe and chopping block is out on the dump; then the merchant that sold me a third or fourth grade goods at a first grade price receives my respects in my soliloquy.

With the exceptions of what I have mentioned I believe that I can boast, as a certainty, that I have the best equipped camp in the New Pine Creek diggings.

My prospects are nothing more than a glitter so far. Unfortunately I am not read up on geology, or you might say that you always read down, like some parties I have met since I have been prospecting, consequently will have to dig.

If my work does not develop anything of value, I will do enough to leave a couple of permanent monuments to misdirected energy.
 Ed. Howell.

FESTIVALS IN MOROCCO.

One Month When the Moor Fasts All Day and Feasts All Night.

A traveler writes: "In Morocco the Nazarene can never tell how time stands in relation to the Moorish year. The Mohammedan calendar knows but 354 days, so, as the Moors lose some eleven days in the year, their festivals are constantly varying in date. The most important, of course, is Ramadan, when Moslems fast from the rising to the setting of the sun during the month. The Moor fasts all day and feasts all night, and throughout the small hours in certain Moorish cities officials pass down the streets in solemn procession, armed with musical instruments, and one at their head calls upon the 'servants of God' to eat and drink before the advent of the dawn. On one night toward the end of Ramadan it is well known that the gates of heaven are opened in order that the prayers of the faithful may be heard, and it is equally certain that all the devils and genii are kept in some prison of the underworld throughout the month.

"Another feast of importance is the Alm el Kabeer, which takes place on the tenth day of the last month of the Mohammedan year. It celebrates the sacrifice of Ishmael (not Isaac) by Abraham on Mount Moriah. Certain prayers are said in the mosques, and after these the call, standing in some prominent position, cuts the throat of a sheep that is then carried in a basket at headlong speed to the town's chief mosque. If the sheep be alive when it reaches the mosque, the ensuing year will be a prosperous one for the town. By means of gun fire and trumpet call all the city is informed that the sacrifice has been killed, and then every household kills a sheep on the threshold of his own home. This sheep has been bought on the previous day and tied up in readiness for the feast.

"Still another festival of great importance in Morocco is the Moolad, which takes place in the month that is called the 'spring of flowers.' It is ushered in by singing and dancing and music and seems to be founded on some old forgotten native festival. When the Moolad comes round a blue mark is placed between the eyebrows of young children in order that the evil eye may be averted from them. The festival is also notorious by reason of the performance of the Alsawi, the followers of Mohammed bin Aisa of Mequinez, the patron saint of snake charmers.

"These Alsawi may be compared with the dancing dervishes of other Mohammedan countries. The Alsawi are accustomed to repeat aloud a sentence that contains the master word of their order, and they howl it until the sound is not comparable to anything one has heard before. In moments of extreme frenzy the devotees are known to seize sheep or even dogs and tear them to pieces with their hands. Some may be seen devouring a sheep before it is dead."

Historic Wheat.

Experts on the subject of bread grains say that wheat can be traced back into the dim past across the line marked by the advent of historic man into the dim shades of the stone age. It has been known in Egypt and in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Tigris since the time when history "runneth not to the contrary." The prehistoric races which formerly lived in the famous "lake dwellings," which were built on platforms supported by piles driven in the lakes of Switzerland, had their mealings stones, wheat mortars, sickles and other grain harvesting and flourmaking apparatus at least 4,000 years ago. Wheat found in ancient Egyptian tombs and in the ruins of the lake dwellings referred to is identical with that which we use today.

An Expensive Burial Ground.

Burial in Westminster abbey is an expensive honor, although the sums exacted are considerably less than they were up to the middle of the last century. The fees for interment are arranged on the following scale: To the Fabric fund, £25, £36 or £46, according to the degree of the person to be buried. Other fees to dean, canons, choir, officers, vergers, etc., £34 2s. 2d., in lieu of scarves, etc., for choir, etc., £31 2s. 3d., making altogether £91 4s. 8d., £101 4s. 8d., or £111 4s. 8d., according to degree. Formerly the fees amounted to £150 or £160, besides the scarves, hatbands and gloves charged in the undertaker's bill.

A Natural Conclusion.

A little New York girl, whose brief experience of life was confined to existence in an apartment house, was visiting in Philadelphia not long ago. One afternoon, to amuse the child, her cousin showed her a number of photographs and views, meanwhile explaining and answering questions concerning them. One of them was a picture of Windsor castle, which, she was told, was the residence of the late Queen Victoria. After looking at it a moment she innocently inquired, "What floor did she live on?"—Lippincott's.

Laid His Fortune at Her Feet.
 "He done tol' me," said Miss Daphne Dalrymple, "dat if I would marry him he'd lay his fortune at my feet."
 "An' did he do it?" asked Miss Miam Brown.
 "Yes, he sho' did. It took his las' cent to pay foh fohteen yards of Ingrain cyarpet."—Washington Star.
