

Gambler And Christian Fleet

Colonel Robert Ingersoll, through the medium of Cora Kincaannon Smith, stopped off at this mundane sphere for half an hour last night during his wanderings through the spirit world and discoursed on life in the great beyond to an audience of 200 in Pacific hall.

While Ingersoll's style can not be considered similar to what it was on this sphere or to have undergone any improvements during his association with the true, the good and the beautiful, the asperity that he evinced in speaking of orthodox folk and their ways leaves no doubt at all that it was "Bob" who spoke. Carlyle was also called upon for a message, but begged to be excused, as he had other duties.

After passing through the customary forehead rubbing preliminary, during which a large diamond ring was much in evidence, the medium finally passed into a state of trance and served as the megaphone for substantially the following from Mr. Ingersoll.

"My friends, I am glad to be with you; glad of the opportunity to tell you that you are laboring in the same rut, and to plead with you to come out of it and see things in their true light.

"You know, most church people are saying to themselves that poor old 'Bob' Ingersoll is sizzling down in Hades; but I am not. I am here in the spirit world, working just as hard as ever I did in the material world to uphold the cause of knowledge. I find that people here are ready to believe, but the old superstitions and beliefs remain in evidence.

"Church members, who have had the fear of an Almighty drilled into them, come into this world seeking a personal God. When they find that there is none, they are bewildered. There is an old fellow here who died about the same time that I did. He and I are on the same plain spiritually. This you know, is unusual, for to be upon the same plain, two spirits usually have to entertain harmonious ideas.

"Well, this old fellow has spent a large share of his time on his knees, praying to a personal God. He feels lost in this new condition of things. At first he clung to his old delusions, but gradually I persuaded him from them. Now he is beginning to see things in a new light.

"There was another spirit that I met here who interested me greatly. On earth he had been a gambler. When he awoke in the hereafter he had expected to find himself in a fire.

When I passed him by one day he stopped me and explained that he had lost all bearings of existence. He wanted me to direct him. I then took him in hand and tried to explain to him the secret of the new life.

"I find that even more than the old man he is receptive to the truth.

"I am grieved to find that the misconceptions still obtain upon the earth. People still pry between the covers of the musty Bible seeking an explanation of life. They imagine that when they forsake the material life they will wake up in a beautiful land. They are mistaken. They may wake up on a pile of potatoes or in a cornfield. Their occupations in the material life will be extended in the spiritual.

"I found nothing strange in this spirit world, for the reason that I had conceived of just such a hereafter. My doctrine on earth was to live right, to pay my debts, to speak ill of no one, to be moral and upright. I did not hold people over a fire and make them believe as I dictated.

"Remember that whenever you pull a man down you will be called upon to pull him up again. A lying tongue is worse than the wine cup.

"There is no death. From one life to another we pass on until, it may be a million, we shall reach that life where all is perfect. There was no beginning and there will be no end. Life is eternal."

Mr. Ingersoll stopped suddenly, and submitted to no interrogations.

"I will be with you again and again," he added hastily, and departed.

As an acknowledgement of existing material conditions a collection was taken up.

"It is a shame that we have to have money," the medium explained with a deprecatory wave of the hand, one finger of which wore the diamond ring, "but, you know, we can't get along without it just yet."

Cora Kincaannon Smith then told how she had come to forsake the profession of teaching to enter the mediumistic business. She said:

"It seemed as though I could read the thoughts of those about me. I did not know what to make of this gift until I consulted a spiritualist medium. She then told me what it meant.

"If you want to develop your powers, I would advise you to hold small family gatherings. Maybe the spirits will manifest themselves by lifting a table upon which your hands are placed, or they may give forth rattling sounds. Do not frighten them away, but cultivate their acquaintance. Be patient. It took me ten years to become a medium."

A general invitation was extended to those present to step forward after the close of the meeting and join the church by inscribing their names upon a book. The membership of the Union Spiritualists of the city is 30.

Dad's Auto Fever.

WHEN dad caught the auto fever, straight he bought a big red car. Then engaged a handsome chauffeur skilled in using every bar.

Mother dear was quite delighted—
Soon she grew the auto phis;
Sister Sus seemed shyly happy;
Brother Bill neglected his.

George, the chauffeur, taught the gov'nor how to run the snorting thing.
Till dad wouldn't stop for trolley,
Man or beast or moving thing.

Dad had not the least suspected
The garage held Cupid charms—
He was all engrossed with tearing
Down the pike or round the farms.

Sis and George thus got to spooning
Off as daddy rode away,
Wandered blissfully in clover
Side by side most every day.

One bright morn the handsome chauffeur
Took our Susie for a ride—
Went directly to the parson's,
Where a marriage knot was tied.

George and Sis now own the auto;
Poor old dad's a nervous wreck,
Convalescing, just at present,
On an ocean steamer's deck.
—Lippincott's Magazine.

She Got a Seat.

The mild business man was calmly reading his paper in the crowded trolley car. In front of him stood a little woman hanging by a strap. Her arm was being slowly torn out of her body. Her eyes were flashing at him, but she constrained herself to silence. Finally, after he had endured it for twenty minutes, he touched her arm and said:

"Madam, you are standing on my foot."

"Oh, am I?" she savagely retorted.

"I thought it was a valise,"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Justifiable.

"No, sir; I'll never give up my seat in the car to any woman."

"What's the reason?"

"Well, it's like this: I gave up my seat once to a woman, and she thanked me, and I said I'd bet $10 that no woman would ever thank me again for a seat, and a fellow took me up, and now I don't dare to get up for fear I'll lose my money. See?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Heart's Desire.

Grace, aged five, wanted some lemonade made for Marjorie, who was sick.

"Mamma, give me some lemonade."

"No, baby; it is for Margie. Poor Margie's got the measles."

"Well, mamma, can I have the measles when Margie gets fru wiv um?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Didn't Know Himself.

"Have you seen Professor Gabbleson, the scientist, lately?"

"Yes; I listened to him for more than an hour at the club last night."

"Indeed! What was he talking about?"

"He didn't say."—Puck.

"Accepts With Pleasure."

Popular and Picturesque.

The only thing necessary to make the Denver and Rio Grande the most popular, as it has ever been known the most pleasant and most picturesque way to cross the continent, has come about. This is the establishment of through sleeping car service.

In connection with the O. R. & N. a through Pullman Standard Sleeper is now run from Portland to Denver, leaving Portland at 8.15 p. m., arriving at Salt Lake at 8.40 a. m., the second morning, leaving Salt Lake at 3.50 p. m., and arriving at Denver 4.20 p. m. the following day. This schedule gives passengers seven hours stop-over in Salt Lake, affording an opportunity to visit the Mormon Capital as well as a day light ride through the grandest scenery in the world.

For reservation in this car and for illustrated booklets picturing the scenery contiguous to the Denver & Rio Grande, proving it to be the "Scenic Line of the World," write to W. C. McBride, General Agent, 124 Third street, Portland.

Doctors Are Puzzled.

The remarkable recovery of Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro, Me., is the subject of much interest to the medical fraternity and a wide circle of friends. He says of his case: "Owing to a severe inflammation of the Throat and congestion of the Lungs, three doctors gave me up to die, when, as a last resort, I was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery and I am happy to say, it saved my life". Cures the worst Coughs and Colds, Bronchitis, Tonsillitis, Weak Lungs, Hoarseness and La Grippe. Guaranteed at Lee Beall's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

On Matters That Interest You

Your local paper is a necessity to you, financially and socially. But a NEWSPAPER OF GENERAL CIRCULATION, containing the latest news of the world, is equally necessary to you. The "up to date man" will provide himself with these two essential features of progress.

IN THE TWICE-A-WEEK SPOKESMAN-REVIEW, Spokane, Wash., will be found the very latest news of the world, its matter including information on politics, commerce, agriculture, mining, literature, as well as the local happenings in the states of Montana, Oregon, Idaho, Washington and the province of British Columbia. In addition, its columns for women, its popular science articles, its short and continued stories, its "Answers to Correspondents" and "Puzzle Problems" combine to form a home newspaper that at $1.00 per year can nowhere be excelled.

ITS ADVERTISING VALUE.
Perhaps you have something to sell—a farm, a team, farm machinery. You may wish to buy something. The best possible way to communicate with people who wish to buy or sell is by inserting a small advertisement in The Spokesman-Review.

IF YOU wish to reach business men and newcomers, use the DAILY or SUNDAY SPOKESMAN-REVIEW.
