

CONVERTED HANNA.

Editor Cowles Taught Him a Lesson in Pocket Picking.

Edwin Cowles, long editor of the Cleveland Leader, numbered among his accomplishments that of pocket picking. Of course he picked pockets as an amateur only, but it is doubtful whether there ever was a professional who could play the light fingered game more skillfully than the able editor did occasionally for fun.

It was during the administration of a mayor who had been elected as a protégé of M. A. Hanna, who was then starting in Cleveland upon the political career which gave him national prominence, that the Leader began a crusade against vice. Articles were published daily in which it was asserted that the city was full of thieves, gamblers and other crooks, and the mayor was taken severely to task for not having them driven away. Hanna, being the power behind the municipal throne, came in for censure in an indirect way, and, meeting Cowles in the street one day, he expostulated with him concerning the Leader's style of warfare.

"Look here, Cowles," he said, "what's the use of all this racket? You're making a mountain out of a molehill. There are no more crooks in town than there have been right along, and it would be foolish to expect any mayor to drive all the lawbreakers out, no matter how hard he tried or how good his intentions might be."

Cowles insisted that his paper was right, and he expressed the belief that there were then more pickpockets in Cleveland than had ever before infested that city.

"Pickpockets!" snorted Hanna. "I don't believe there's a pickpocket in the town. And, anyway, I have no sympathy for anybody whose pockets are picked. No one but a jay could ever be robbed in that way."

"You don't know," said Cowles, "how skillful some of these light fingered fellows become. It would be possible for one of them to go through your pockets while talking to you as I am now."

Hanna laughed derisively and said any pickpocket that ever got a hand in his clothes without being caught at it was welcome to anything he could extract.

As they were parting Cowles turned to ask what time it was, and Hanna felt for his watch.

It was gone.

"That's strange," he said. "I guess I must have forgotten when I dressed this morn'g to put it in my pocket."

"Speaking of forgetting things," Cowles answered, "I forgot my wallet when I left home. Could you lend me $10?"

Hanna felt for his money, but found none. He put his hands into one empty pocket after another and was beginning to look sheepish when Cowles handed him back his watch, his money, his keys and a bundle of letters.

"Very well, Cowles," said the future senator; "I'll see what can be done about driving the pickpockets away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A sign of a happy marriage: When a man says his wife spoils him.

Did you ever think how much trouble was caused in this world by blabbing?

It sometimes happens that in getting out of a rut a man finds himself in a hole.

A family row is as bad as a church row, but the limit is reached when they are mixed up.

This is as true as gospel: If you make a visit longer than a couple of days, your left ear will burn after you go home.

One of the great wonders to a man is the number of interruptions a woman can endure while eating a meal without noticing it.

When a crime is committed, suspicion turns quicker to those who once loved the victim than to those who once hated him.—Arlinson Globe.

An Interregnum.

When President Hadley succeeded the learned and witty Timothy Dwight as president of Yale university the exercises attendant upon the transfer of authority were marred by a heavy fall of rain. It came down suddenly just as a column of people, President Dwight and Professor Hadley at the head, were crossing the campus. Some one handed the couple an umbrella, and Professor Hadley was about to open it when the older man took it from him, saying as he unfolded it: "Let me carry it, professor. Your reign will begin tomorrow."

Kindness.

Do not be afraid of spoiling any one with kindness. It can't be done. Instead of spoiling it beautifies the character, cheers the heart and helps to raise the burden from shoulders which, though brave, sometimes grow very tired. Let not a little coldness frighten you away, for under a frigid exterior there is always to be found a tender chord which is to be touched by kindness and which responds in beautiful harmonies to those little acts of courtesy that are to the heart as sunshine is to the struggling plant.

Strictly Practical.

"Geology is a wonderful study," remarked the enthusiast.

"I suppose so," answered Sirius Barker, "but it always seemed kind o' tautalizin' to me to be told where coal is and how it come there instead o' being told how to get the price o' it."—Washington Star.

Her Sacrifice.

"Did you ever make a personal sacrifice?" asked the visiting parson.

"Yes, indeed," replied Mrs. De Style. "I once declined to be interviewed by a society reporter."—Chicago News.

GOOD HEALTH GIVERS

IMPROVED HIGHWAYS FROM A MEDICAL POINT OF VIEW.

Michigan Physician Points Out the Benefits and Disadvantages to Mankind of Fine and Bad Roads—Value of Trees Along Roadside.

The medical man in pioneer days was many times one of the first to blaze the path, to lay out the road or to plan the highways, and it is a fact that in modern times he is one of the first to lend his knowledge and aid to further the movement of good roads, says Dr. E. B. Smith, secretary of the Michigan College of Medicine and Surgery, in the Auto Advocate and Country Roads.

Many years ago Michigan possessed a man of sterling worth, broad intellect and keen observation for the requirements of the people of his locality and the needs of good roads and the reclaiming of many acres for new settlers and clearing up of the cause of much sickness and death. Dr. Henry Wyman in about 1844 was a member of the legislature from Lenawee county. The district was a great cotton-wood swamp. Malaria and typhoid fever prevailed every month of the year. Through his efforts in the legislative body Dr. Wyman secured appropriations for digging a ditch a considerable distance across Lenawee and well into Monroe. They say that at that time logs were felled, and over the logs was thrown the dirt from the ditch, which contained considerable clay. These logs were either fired on purpose or by chance, and the fire baked the clay into the brick substance, and today going through this country one can see the result of that baking process.

As a result of this ditching and turning-piking there are no more beautiful farms, with people enjoying good health, in any other part of the United States than in Lenawee and Monroe counties. So I believe that as good roads mean good drainage—that is, drainage of the surface of the road, drainage under the road and drainage along the sides of the road—so we have good health to those living along the roads constructed after this manner.

Man is so constructed that when he walks, runs or jumps the jar is lessened and entirely spent before it reaches tissue or vital organs that are unable to withstand it. This is so on account of the arch in the foot and on account of the elasticity of that arch. This arch is a more perfect one than you builders can make. Between each joint are fluid buffers, and running from one bone to another, keeping the joints from spreading and to aid them to swing, are guy ropes that assume a lax or tense condition, as required, and between each bone in the spinal column are mattresses that make it possible for one to jump from a considerable height, and, striking upon the feet, the force of the blow is carried from part to part of the body and the force spent upon these resisting bodies until it is spent before reaching the brain. I firmly believe that the rough, bad roads of our country are no small factor as a cause of the large number of nervous and insane cases that our rural districts supply.

Catarrahs conditions are aggravated by the dust from the roads, the decaying vegetable life along the roadside breeds disease, and the stagnated pool is a fertile field for low forms of animal life. From these the air is polluted, and man has only to be found in a condition to be infected. It is too bad that these stagnant pools cannot cry out to the passerby: "Unclean! Unclean!" If this were so you and I could turn out of the way and pass by.

Healthy plant life along the roadside is conducive to good health in man. It helps give unto man that which man needs for his growth and for his living. What is pleasing to the eye gives health. That is one reason why the tourist and travelers seek other climes. The eye is delighted, it is pleased. That helps the body. Every special sense is helped, and so the great body is made more healthy. The nose smells, and we are pleased or displeased. We are satisfied, even gratified, or we are disgusted and sickened. The ear hears the sweet songs, the mind becomes joyous, and the heart beats stronger and fuller, and we are made to feel the joy of exhilaration at the pleasant surroundings; we are made to feel that it is good to live. The keen sense of taste begins to manifest itself. The appetite is sharpened, the stomach does better work, and the man begins to feel his power and strength and feels that it is good to be here.

I can say to you farmers, I can say to you men outside of the cities and towns, that good roads are your salvation, your health. I can say that that which improves your everyday life and that which improves your walks in life make you live longer, make you live easier, make you live a little better, and that which makes you live longer, easier and better makes it possible for you to die easier.
