At the next general election in Oregon, Women Suffrage will again be placed before the people to say whether they want it or not. Advocates of Women Suffrage say that women needs a vote to right the wrongs she suffers at the hands of man. As a matter of fact, the rights of women are looked after more carefully under the laws of most States than those of men. Men realize the fact that women as a whole are less able to take care of themselves and their property than men are. Men can, and will, if necessary fight for their lives and property. Women cannot, hence, men naturally protect them. This situation is extremely distasteful to Women Suffragists, but angry protests cannot alter facts.
In the last fifty years great progress has been made in the condition of women in this country as regards education and opportunity of employment and the enjoyment of life. This condition, however, has not been due to the agitation for Women Suffrage, as its advocates would have you believe. The states where women have made most progress are those in which Women Suffrage bills have been most steadily and decisively defeated. There has been but slight improvement, if any, in the laws of the states where women vote, due altogether to the fact of that vote.
If the suffrage movement were to disband today and no women ever vote, not a single great interest would suffer. On the other hand, were Women Suffrage granted in Oregon, it would set the State back for many years.
