LAKEVIEW, OREGON, AUG. o. 1906.

Lakeview is completely surrounded with prospectors now and all bring the west the quartz valley and Dry crime. creek prospects. With the development of these mines, the building of the various railroads, the establishment of a steamboat line on the lake and the grabbing up of all the timber and agricultural lands in this county together with its known possibilities in stock and agricultural resources. places Lake county in line for wonderfu activity in the very near future. No boom is on, but hundreds, and one might say without exaggeration, thousands of people are looking this way for investment of capitial. There is no surer place in the world to invest than in Lake county right now. Real estate is slowly but gradually increasing in value, and while there are yet thousands of acres of "dirt cheap" owners here to the realization of the rodeo, real value of their holdings and ere long land will be worth three or four times what it is selling for now.

Russill Sage's estate is now estimated at $150,000,000. He had millions of dollars in stocks locked up in strong boxes that no one knew he had. It has been said that Jay Gould, when he died was the richest man in the United States, but a Mr. Munn, Gould's attorney says that just before Gould's death 14 years ago, he and Mr. Gould decided that Sage was the richest man of the two. Gould's wealth amounted to $78,000,000, and Mr. Munn says that Sage's wealth has been doubled since Gould's death,
