COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

Advertisers get good returns on the amount invested in our columns. We reach the people.

FROM FUGILISM TO UPLIFT.

William Nelson's Efforts to Improve the Town of His Birth.
BILLY Nelson, lightweight champion of the world, has turned civic reformer, and his energies in the future will be devoted to uplifting and improving the town of his birth—Lakeview, Ind., and of swamps and desolation, known as the "Jumping off place," says the Chicago Tribune.

He started out to do this with the same enthusiasm that led him to victory against Jimmy Britt and Young Corbett, and it is predicted that "rough house" times are in store for those conservative persons who oppose his strenuousness.

"I'll put this town in shape if I have to lay out cold the aldermen and all the prominent citizens," said the young pugilist just before he marched upon Alderman Moynihan at the head of his committee of public spirited citizens.

Nelson recently returned from a two years' fighting tour of the west, and he remarked as he alighted at the dingy station and saw the unkempt streets, the general hopelessness and decaying aspect of the place, that it was no place for a white man to live in and he would get busy.

The fighter had saved money and invested it in two houses. This may have had something to do with his awakened interest. At any rate he started a quiet campaign and found many willing to join him. He did more in a day than most reform organizations do in a month.

In the afternoon he called a mass meeting of all the young blades who were pitching quoits behind the blacksmith shop. He also took in a few bartenders who were not busy, the grocer and the postmaster. He announced that the Hegewich Improvement association was launched and had himself elected president. Losing no time he appointed an executive committee and started out to visit Alderman Moynihan.

As he marched down the street at the head of his committee crowds of boys took up the trail, thinking that a fight was about to be pulled off behind Mahoney's barn. Alderman Moynihan was peacefully trying to keep cool in his office when he looked out of the window and saw the pugilist approaching.

"Don't be afraid, Mr. Alderman," said Nelson, as he pushed his way into the office. "We have just come down to give you a few suggestions for the good of this town. We are going to have a place to live in after this or know the reason why." Alderman Moynihan wriggled as the fighter's eye fastened upon him in a fixed, determined stare.

"Anything you want, Mr. Nelson; anything you want," he murmured, appeasingly.

"We don't want much," said Nelson. "I have a list of things here which we offer as a beginning." He unrolled a large paper and read in a solemn voice:

"A real police station, with real policemen.
"A fire department that will work.
"Streets paved.
"Electric lights on the corners.
"A street car system.
"Better school buildings.
"A good water supply.
"Inducements to manufacturers."

"Is that all?" asked the alderman in a weak voice.
"That's enough for now," said Nelson. "Get us these and we will have the model town of the west."
"Come around tomorrow," said the alderman.

GARDEN CITIES.

Work That Must Be Done For Town Dwellers by the Artists.

It is absolutely impossible to create a healthy race without an abundance of fresh air, says Outdoors. Seeing that it is impossible on the score of expense to convert our cities into places where a healthy community can be reared, the railroads must be utilized as never before to carry the breadwinner rapidly between his place of business in the city and his suburban or country home. Along the track of each railroad that radiates from the city a series of residential parks or garden cities should be built extending forty or fifty miles away, the more distant to be reached by express trains. These garden cities should be beautifully designed beforehand by architects who are also artists in landscape gardening. The individual cottages will occupy not less than 100 square feet of land, or four ordinary city lots, affording a flower garden around each home. The avenues will be always curving, and the village green or city park will be a place that gladdens the eyes of all who frequent it.

A Clean City Club.

When you see a little girl or a little boy picking up paper in the streets or sweeping up the back yards in the Hull House neighborhood it is not a new kind of game in Chicago. Each child wears a button announcing its membership in the Clean City Club. This was recently organized by Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, head kindergarten at the social settlement. Here are the rules:

Pick up at least one piece of paper from the street every day.
Clean your own back yard and porches and try to interest the boys and girls next door.
Keep at least one flower in the window. Be smiling and clean yourself.

The club is subdivided into groups, each with a captain. The groups commanded by Will Dillon and Joe Scaglioni, six-year-olds, made the best record in cleaning up back premises. Watching them, persons of mature age became enthusiastic in the "great clean up." "Each child will report to the captain of his group, and at the end of the week we shall know just what has been accomplished," said Mrs. Britton.
