Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

KNOWN AS A FREE TRADER.

Bryan Remains the Knight Errant of Tariff Reform.

It is impossible to discern in the near future any question of importance on which the Democratic party can concentrate with any prospect of cohesion except that of the tariff. Its only chance of positive expression is to oppose protection—in other words, to champion low duties in the interest of free trade. Yet when it does that it will inevitably face disension in its own ranks, for many earnest Democrats are sturdy believers in protection. It is not flattering to the sincerity of the party's professions, but it is a fact that some Democrats stood by its ticket in the last national campaign notwithstanding the platform denunciation of protection as robbery, because at heart they did not believe the party meant it. The like has happened before, as, for instance, when Democrats voted the national ticket because Grover Cleveland was on it and not because they approved the platform.

Mr. Bryan is known as a free trader. The principal speech made by him when a member of congress was against protection in any form. The platform on which he has stood and which have been mainly of his making have been hostile to protection. He has vehemently declared that he has nothing to take back of anything he has said in the past, which leaves him ranked unmistakably with the free traders, and though of late he has been silent on the subject, explaining his course by saying he will discuss the issue later, no one is in any real doubt as to his views. The point of criticism is that he is not straightforward in defining his position at a time when outspoken advocacy of a principle might seriously affect his own or his party's prospects. There is a suggestion of disingenuousness here which does not harmonize with the professions of political honesty made in his behalf.

But whether Mr. Bryan talks about the tariff or keeps quiet on that matter the record is made, and if things so turn as to make him again the Democratic presidential nominee the country must once more face squarely the determination by the Democratic party to overturn the existing economic advantages in the form of the marvelous industrial development of the country, the unparalleled growth of our foreign trade and the general prosperity of the people. In all probability the fight will turn chiefly on that issue in any event, but it will be additionally fierce with Mr. Bryan as the Democratic standard bearer, for in his party's frantic efforts to have the country forget his cheap currency championship it will redouble its zeal to prove him a knight errant of "tariff reform."—Troy Times.

HOMELY, BUT STRONG.

Story That Illustrates the Position of Tariff Reformers.

In the closing hours of congress some member in the lower house in a speech on the floor told the story of a farmer engaged in milking a cow. The animal was restless and now and then would move backward or forward, and whenever she did so the man kicked her viciously in the stomach, all the time going on with the milking. A bystander presently expressed the opinion that the milker "quit kicking the cow or let go the teat."

The story was told as illustrating the position of the Massachusetts people toward the tariff. They are receiving the benefit, so called, of protection every day of their lives, but continue to denounce the protective tariff policy. So the admonition of the congressman to Massachusetts was to "quit kicking the tariff cow or let go the teat."

The story strikes us as one of the most exactly appropriate and vividly illustrative we have ever seen and a fine specimen of homely and strong American humor. We are not surprised to find that the sensitive, superior New York Evening Post finds it coarse and rather disgusting, but fortunately most of us in this country do not carry our intellects habitually in new white kid gloves.—Richmond Leader.

Change of Sentiment.

A significant sign of the times is the change of sentiment in the south in respect to the tariff. Its economic views are now colored largely by the new industrial conditions that have grown up in recent years. It was observed that representatives of the rice and sugar interests opposed Cuban reciprocity and are against the Philippine tariff bill. The cattle raisers of Texas are opposed to removing the duty from foreign cattle or the duty on hides. The state of Alabama has developed a strong protectionist sentiment since the building up of large factory interests in that state. Old fashioned Democratic free trade is still mouthed by southern representatives in congress, but there are Democratic free traders even in the largest industrial centers of the north.—Nynck (N. Y.) Star.

There Was No Ground Floor.

The president very properly congratulates Secretary Shaw on his success in placing the Panama canal loan, but he doesn't have a word of sympathy for the many bankers who tried to get in on the ground floor and found there was none.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Bulwark of Liberty.

Though the Dingley tariff has a few glaring faults, this same Dingley tariff is the only enactment that stands between the American workingman and the starvation wages paid in England.—Bangor (Me.) News.

The tariff is the only issue the Democrats can make a fight on.—Washington Post.
