Secretary Hitchcock has withdrawn his acceptance of the resignation of Michael T. Nolan as Register of the Dalles Land Office and ordered a thorough investigation of the office, particularly with a view to ascertaining the facts regarding charges made by Nolan against Malcolm A. Modley. Nolan's statement that accompanied his resignation and which at first was set aside without action, had been reconsidered and presents a situation that, in the opinion of the Register or the Receiver of the office has been guilty of conduct that warrants dismissal.

The Examiner prints township plats, and makes them into books to order. If by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

OLD YEAR'S RECORD.

THE GREAT CONVULSIONS OF NATURE IN 1906.

Some of the Leading Events Affecting the History of the World and the Political and Social Condition of Its People.

A GLANCE back over the year 1906 prompts the hope that 1907 may witness fewer great catastrophes and convulsions of nature than marked the year that is gone. Many notable achievements in the fields of moral and social progress and in science, art and literature have been recorded during the past year, but perhaps 1906 will be best known for its remarkable and disastrous earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. It seemed as though old Mother Earth were determined to remind those who dwell in fancied security upon her broad bosom that nothing is certain in this life except death and taxes and that wrinkles in the terrestrial crust or a little ebullition of lava may make quite a difference in the location of home sites and the value of real estate.

Last spring the unusual activity of Mount Vesuvius began to attract more than local attention, and before the inhabitants of its then green and flowering slopes were scarcely aware of what was doing an eruption was in progress that covered a vast area with smoke and ashes, drove thousands of people from their homes, destroyed several towns of considerable importance and for a time threatened even the city of Naples itself. The hero of that episode was Professor V. R. Matteucci of the Royal observatory on the slope of Vesuvius, who remained at his post during all the dangers incident to the eruption in order to encourage or warn the people and to make scientific observations. During much of the time he was assisted by a young American scientist, Frank R. Perret of New York. Professor Matteucci even succeeded in taking photographs of the masses of fiery stone as they were thrown out of the crater and in taking his snapshots stood unconcernedly on the very edge of the great caldron.

The shakeup on the Pacific coast, involving the practical destruction of the great city of San Francisco, followed not long afterward by the shock affecting South American cities on the Pacific ocean and doing great damage in Valparaiso, Chile, set people to studying about earthquake belts, seismometers and seismology in general and to wondering whose turn was coming next. The disaster to San Francisco and the wholesale suffering occasioned by the conflagration which followed the earthquake caused a wave of sympathy to flow over the land in the train of the rumble and trembling of the strata, and the measures of relief so promptly taken showed again that a touch of nature—especially a heavy touch like that—makes the whole world kin.

Foremost among the events of the past year affecting social, political and economic conditions were the enactment by the congress of the United States of the railway rate law and the meat inspection law, the enactment into law in the state of New York of reform bills affecting life insurance, the Algerias conference, the dissolution of the Russian douma by the czar, the Cuban revolution, the meeting in London of the interparliamentary union for the promotion of peace, the pan-American conference and the South American tour of Secretary Root, the inauguration of M. Fallieres as president of France and the culmination to that republic of the contest between church and state now attracting so much attention. The two most notable matrimonial events of the year were the marriage of Alice Roosevelt and Nicholas Longworth and the nuptials of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain. By way of contrast to these incidents were the matrimonial infelicities of the Castellanos and the Marlboroughs, resulting in the case of the former in a divorce. Much attention was attracted by the Panama trip of President Roosevelt and the remarkable world tour of William J. Bryan, ending in the great welcome given him in New York on his return to his native land.

Perhaps the most talked of book of the year was "The Jungle," by Upton Sinclair, which was chiefly responsible for the "Packingtown" investigation and the resulting legislation by congress on the subject of meat inspection.

QUEER ALARM CLOCKS.

The Kind Used to Awaken the Czar of All the Russias.

The czar of Russia cannot lie in bed late mornings just because he is the emperor of all the Russias. He is usually up betimes. The picture shows two members of the Russian Imperial Horse Guards band, whose business it is to awaken the czar each morning by blowing a fanfare beneath his window. On account of this duty they are dubbed in Russia "the imperial alarm clocks."

CULEBRA CUT.

Where the Panama Canal Diggers Have a Large Task.

Culebra cut is heard much about now that Panama canal work is often under discussion. It is the big hill through which the waterway to join the Atlantic and Pacific has to be dug. The president took a good look at the work going on here in his recent visit to the isthmus. The French only dug off the top of the hill and stopped at the place in the accompanying picture where the men are standing, marked by the arrow. The automobile indicates the level to which the excavation has now reached, and this is sixty-five feet below where the French ceased operations.

YALE BOYS IN SCULPTURE.

Kelly's Group Commemorating a Revolutionary Episode.

On July 5, 1779, the town of New Haven, Conn., numbering then but about 2,000 inhabitants, was defended against an invasion by the British by students of Yale college. The president of the institution saw the British fleet approaching the city from his perch in the tower of a college building. He called the young men out, and the brave Yale boys of that day opposed the landing of the Britishers, but were overwhelmed by superior numbers. Meantime the warships bombarded the town from the harbor. Finally the entire countryside was aroused and the patriots gathered in such force that the redcoats withdrew. On their retreat they burned the town of Fairfield. The incident is to be commemorated by a sculptural group which has been executed by James Edward Kelly. In it are three figures in the costume of the college boys of colonial times, and the students are represented operating a piece of field artillery. The monument will be unveiled at New Haven on July 5, 1907.
