

The man who can sell the merchandise that people want for less money than anybody else is the man who gets the bulk of the trade. For proof of this I point to the constantly increasing business I am doing.

I want to call your attention to my general collection of merchandise for the Fall and Winter season 1907.

I desire to lay particular stress on the fact that I offer none but the most desirable goods to be had. They are the products of the best manufactures in the land and none better can be bought at any price.
