COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:
"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."
"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."
"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."
"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.
Advertisers get good returns on the amount invested in our columns. We reach the people.

Notice
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, notice is hereby given that all irrigation, or millrace ditches on all trout streams through Lake County, Oregon, must be screened with a small mesh wire screening at their head or junction with the main channel of stream. Also all dams or obstructions on said streams must be provided with a fish-ladder, or other easy means of passage, at or near the middle of the main channel, so as to allow the passage of trout at all times of year, as provided by law. Said work to be done at low water time, or to be completed by Feb. 7, 1907.
By order of J. A. Barham, Special Deputy Fish Warden for Lake County, Oregon.

AT SILO TIME.
Corn Should Not Be Too Green—Cutting and Putting It Up.
Many people make the mistake of cutting corn too green for silage. At this stage there is a larger percentage of water, and the silage when taken out has a large amount of acid, less starch and sugar and hence is less nutritious. Corn planted in drills with stalks eight to ten inches apart will mature a good proportion of ears.
Harvesting should not begin until the ears are passing the roasting stage and begin to glaze. Unless the season is exceptionally dry the stalks and leaves will remain green, but too mature or dry corn is more liable to mold. This may be found in spots around the sides or more generally over the silo wherever the air has gained access to cause the fungous growth. This condition may be improved by tramping the material carefully in the silo, adding water by sprinkling with a hose, or if this is not available direct a stream of water into the blower or elevator sufficient to saturate the cut fodder. This moisture assists the material to settle and acts as a seal to keep out the air.
There should be labor and teams enough to keep the cutter running steadily. Nothing is gained by cutting a large amount of corn beforehand, hauling and piling near the machine to be handled over again. Aim to harvest at the least expense a ton. This will be accomplished as follows: If hand cutting is practiced, cut and hand directly to the man loading, not throwing on the ground in bundles, which will require an extra handling. Let each load come to the table of the machine in turn, handling the corn directly to the feeder. If the corn is long and heavy an extra man is needed on the table to assist.
Power should be ample and in proportion to the size of the cutter. The blower is replacing the elevator machine, economizing space and largely doing away with the stopping of an entire crew to repair the elevator. If the corn is heavy and the stalk large cutting in half inch to one inch pieces will have the tendency to partially shred the stalk, and there will be no butts refused by the animals.

The material in the silo should be kept level and well trampled, especially around the sides of the silo, and it pays to have sufficient help for this work. Where considerable silage is put up it pays to have a corn harvester and binder, which economizes hand labor.
The foregoing timely advice is given by Dr. G. A. Billings in American Agriculturist, and the cut shows part of the outfit used at the New Jersey experiment station in filling the silo for fall and winter feed. The source of power for running the cutter and blower is a gasoline engine, which gives very great satisfaction.

The Popular Cantaloupe.
Scarcely any branch of horticultural work has increased of late years like the growing of cantaloupes. All markets handle them and are glad to extend their season by getting early and late supplies from all sections of the country. Many varieties of melons and cantaloupes were formerly seen in our markets, but present requirements have banished almost all but the Netted Gem, or, as it is popularly known today, the Rocky Ford. This cantaloupe, besides possessing the finest texture and highest flavor, is almost round and is thus easily packed. Recent seed selection in this strain has produced a very fine fruit, heavily netted, regular in form and weighing about a pound each.—W. N. Hutt.

Utilizing Skim Milk.
There are many fruit farms on which the flock of fowls is becoming every year a large factor. The by-products of these are utilized to some extent for the poultry, but not so much as the byproducts of the dairy farm. There is no better way of utilizing skim milk than by feeding to poultry, suggests Kansas Farmer. When this skim milk is allowed to sour and is made into curd for the fowls it is still more extensively available. There is no byproduct that need go to waste when you have plenty of chickens around. They are the scavengers of the farm and make lots of waste material into good fresh eggs.

Varieties of Oats.
As an average for two trials, 1905 and 1906, the varieties producing the highest yields at the Kansas experiment station were the Red Texas, 54.37 bushels; Silverline, 52.19 bushels; White Tartar, 51.97 bushels; Danish, 48.03 bushels; Kherson, 47.27 bushels; Sixty-day, 46.75 bushels; Minnesota No. 202, 46.57 bushels, and Swedish Select, 45.16 bushels per acre respectively. The season of 1905 was especially favorable for the production of oats.
