A Surprise Party.

By one's two's and in touches all carrying, very tenderly, a package (of different shapes and sizes,) a number of ladies gathered at the home of Miss Hall last Friday afternoon. They were met at the door, with a puzzled expression by Miss Hall, but all declared their "bundle" held their fancy work, though it was noticed that each one deposited her "fancy work" very carefully on the kitchen table, and when unwrapped it was found that they had spoken very truthfully—the articles were quite fancy,—and were greatly enjoyed by the hostess and guests, when after a few hours spent very pleasantly playing "500", luncheon was served. Such salads, doughnuts, rosettes, sandwiches, cheesecakes, cakes, and oh so many good things, prepared very carefully by the guests, and delicious coffee and chocolate. It was a splendid affair, and thoroughly enjoyed.
Miss Hall has a happy knack of making her guests feel quite at home.
Those present were: Mrs. F. M. Miller, Mrs. V. L. Snelling, Mrs. Chas. Sherlock, Mrs. J. M. Bachelder, Mrs. W. H. Shirk, Mrs. J. N. Watson, Mrs. Della Cobb, Mrs. W. H. Harvey, Mrs. Geo. Sturkman, Mrs. Creed McKendree, Mrs. J. L. Shirk, of Colarville, Mrs. C. G. Metzger, Miss Hall, Miss Snelling, Miss Gene Snelling.

Escaped Stage Wreck

Mr. C. Stradley the head of the surveying crew in this section of the country the past year, left with his wife for Salt Lake last week. They averted a stage accident by stopping at Davis Creek one day on their way to Alturas. It was not their intention to do so, but there was to be a dance at Davis Creek and the regular driver wanted to attend, so hired a new driver to take the stage on to Alturas that night, while he stayed over. Mr. and Mrs. Stradley concluded that they did not fancy riding with a new driver, and stopped off at the Davis Creek hotel.
The new driver upset the stage twice on the way to Alturas, and broke the tongue out of the wagon. They felt very fortunate that they decided to lay over.
