COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

Advertisers get good returns on the amount invested in our columns. We reach the people.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

Dishes That Are Famous in the Sunny South.
Shrimp Fricassee.—Put a teaspoonful of lard in a saucpan. When it is hot, stir in one spoonful of flour. Stir over the fire until the flour is a rich brown; then add one onion chopped fine and when that has fried a little (but before it browns) add two tablespoonfuls of tomatoes. Let it stew a little with the saucpan covered on a slow fire; then when the tomatoes have melted down add two cups of hot water; season to taste with salt, pepper and cayenne. Let it stand a few minutes before dinner; then put in the shrimp, one or two cups, according to the number of guests. The shrimp will break if put in too early.
Rice with a substantial and healthy vegetable and yet when served just plain boiled the men in the family generally say "No, thank you." Some time try the following for a change and see what they will say:
Creole Rice.—Wash one-half cup of rice and cook in a double boiler until tender. Lay two good sized pieces of bacon into a hot frying pan and cook to a crisp, but do not burn. Add to these drippings half an onion sliced fine and brown; then add half a cup of tomatoes and the rice. Season with cayenne pepper and salt and stew together until it has all blended.
A very popular dish of beef, known in the south as "gritades," is an appealing dish that is easily prepared as follows:
Grutades.—Take two pounds of beef (the bottom round if possible), slice thin, trim off all the fat and cut in pieces about the size of the inside of your hand. Put one spoonful of lard in a saucpan. When the lard is hot drop your meat, which must be first properly washed, in the hot lard; add a little salt, black pepper and cayenne. Cover the saucpan and let the meat stew, or rather, boil, for the juice of the meat will boil out. Stir occasionally and let all the juice of the meat boil out. When it begins to get dry stir it till it browns. When it is of a nice brown color, sprinkle in the saucpan about one teaspoonful of flour. When that is brown, move it off the hot fire so that it will not burn and add three or four good sized onions sliced and three or four large tablespoonfuls of tomatoes. Let it all smother with the cover on the saucpan, stirring once in awhile till the onions and tomatoes are all melted to a rich gravy; then add two teaspoonfuls of boiling water and season to taste and let it boil about one hour more. A tiny bit of garlic adds flavor if you like it.

CORSICAN CUSTOMS.

Tragic Funeral Rites—Death Hunters and Improvisators.
When a Corsican woman dies, she is always buried in a new costume, which sometimes with the poorer classes takes up most of the family savings, and as the heat of the climate renders burial imperative within twenty-four hours the new gown is generally commenced directly the dying person's illness assumes a serious form.
Corsicans reverence the dead, and a feature in a funeral is the "Improvisatores," women whose business it is to improvise prose-poetry to the mourners. Often this improvising is wonderfully beautiful and breathes the true feeling of sorrow.
The "death hunters" attend funerals and afterward wrestle with the mourners. If a relative of the deceased gets the better in the combat it is assumed that his affection for the departed relative was absolutely genuine.
When the corpse leaves the house, the women gather at an upper window and, tearing out handfuls of their hair, throw it on the coffin. The rich hire women mourners who scratch their faces and are paid in proportion to the injuries they inflict on themselves in their paroxysms of grief.
A Corsican widow wears a strip of black material tied on her eyes for a week, and during that period she is fed and led about by her friends. No room in her house is cleaned and no fire lighted for the same period.
In the cemeteries are a succession of little buildings with flat roofs and high openings. These are the tombs, and inside them are rich hangings, flowers, poetry and lamps which the mourners place there in remembrance of the departed.

KITCHEN WRINKLES.

Save time when knife cleaning by previously warming the knifeboard before the fire.
Common snuff sprinkled in the chimks round the fireplace will drive away crickets.
To cut cheese smoothly and without breaking fold tissue or paraffin paper over the knife blade.
When the white of a fresh egg is beaten to a froth and added to the cream it will whip much more quickly and easily.
A little fresh grated cocoonut sprinkled over a Waldorf salad (of celery and tart apple with mayonnaise) is a pleasant addition.
Use fine wire for hanging up such articles as rolling pins, chopping knives, potato mashers and pastry boards. The wire loop is perfectly clean.
A few drops of turpentine added to cold water starch or boiled starch will give an excellent gloss to the linen and will prevent it from sticking to the iron.
The flavoring of shrimps is much improved if boiling water is poured over them a short time before they are served. It must be drained away immediately.
