COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment.

"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment.

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made.

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

Advertisers get good returns on the amount invested in our columns. We reach the people.

FLUFFY NECKWEAR.

The Stiff Embroidered Collar—Rival in Soft Effects

The tailored collar of heavy embroidered linen, while as much worn than ever, no rival in the field. They are the top of soft collar with a starched band. The woman who has one is uncomfortable.

Very delicate and light, it turns over easily, and recently had an appearance hand embroidered floral design and was finished with a deep edge of hand crochet. Another had a buttonholed edge and a vine motif in broderie anglaise, combined with inserts of facial embroidery in the center and at each corner.

If you want a specially striking heavy linen turndown collar that will give an air to the plainest shirt waist, choose one of those embroidered in three rows of fine buttonholed scallops, one above the other at graduated distances apart. In the center of each scallop is an embroidered white dot outlined in delft blue. Both scallops and dots decrease in size with the ascending rows, the lowest one being a coin dot.

An attractive tie of the butterfly variety is of gray blue soft silk in three tones. The lightest shade is used in the center loops.

The frock for the small girl seen in the cut is of pale blue veiling trimmed with velvet ribbon of the same shade. The dainty little tucked yoke is of white Persian lawn.

VANITY'S VISIONS.

A Sensational Trousseau—For Smartening Up—Last Year's Gowns.

An English bride created something of a sensation by insisting that her entire trousseau be black, with the exception of her white evening gowns. But it was black so glorified with embroideries and dyed laces, so trimmed with oriental designs and made so gay with bands of colored silk and velvet, that no one ever thought of classifying it as black.

There are some charming sets of passementerie which are just the thing for putting around the neck and sleeves. Many of these sets are designed to lie flat around the neck and extend down the front in lapel fashion. Others form simply a square collar, while still others are round and closely fitted to the neck. As for the sleeve pieces, they are quite long to fit the wide sleeves, and quite elaborate. One can purchase these sets at moderate prices all ready to be placed upon silk or cloth gowns.

The separate winter coat is worn a smart deal. This means a warm black coat or a heavy brown one, to be put on with any skirt. It is a becoming coat strapped with braid and finished with handsome buttons. It should not be a cheap model, for the separate coat owes all its style to its perfection of finish. A cheap individual coat will spoil an entire costume.

A lovely poke bonnet for a small girl is of white felt having a semicircle cut in the rim and turned over the top, which has been previously secured to a wire crown. A wide ruffling of frilled lace fills in the scooped part, while rosettes of lace and tiny clusters of rosebuds decorate the top. The same trimming is repeated where the ties are attached to the bonnet and again near the ends of the strings.

The gown pictured is of yellow crepe de chine. The bottom of the skirt is adorned with a band of yellow taffeta matching the crepe, and above it is an insertion of ecru flannel. The flannel also makes the gumpes and sleeves.
