

WHAT IS WORN.

Distinguishing Marks of the New Blouse—A Symphony in Gray.
The new blouses are distinguished by little lace or ribbon ties after the order of a cravat. These come from each side of the shoulder decoration or from under the lapels and tie in graceful ends of plaited lace. Many of the new blouses are masses of trimming, most elaborate and tricked out with pearl or coral beads or turquoise buttons or those of opal tints. The fancy blouse is a distinct contrast to the plain skirt.

One of the fads of the smart girl is the wearing of many shades of one color. Take gray, which is one of the fashionable colors of the winter, and note how cleverly the girl of the season manages to combine her colors. It is as though she had half a dozen colors, yet the results are all obtained with gray. It is safest in the long run and less expensive than the mixing of colors. And the same with brown, where really wonderful results are obtained by mixing ones browns. There are lovely gowns made of light-weight winter velvet in old brown, which is the new shade of this color.

Sleeves for a young girl's party dress are prettiest elbow length, for while long sleeves may be returning for reception and theater gowns, it must be remembered that this dress takes the place of a ball gown. The mandarin sleeve continues in favor for young and old alike, and certainly the loose effect given is decidedly graceful.

Chiffon broadcloth in light and bright colors is much used for afternoon dresses. The girl's frock illustrated is carried out in one of the newest shades, known as flambeau, with trimmings of black velvet and a glimpse of flit lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Fashions in Furs—The Sheath Skirt the Thing—A Hockey Costume.
The small scarf which was merely a four-in-hand is not much seen among the new fur pieces.

The newest skirts, while conforming to one or two single principles, are endlessly varied. The most noticeable points are a sheath fit over the hips and a flare at the foot. The preference is given to a plain skirt trimmed with bands of its own material.

Smart women have taken up hockey with enthusiasm, and the costume to wear while playing the game can be made very stunning. One of the costumes seen recently on the field was a skirt of greenish tan rough tweed hung with tailored precision and of course very short. With it was worn a gray sweater of the box coat variety and of a greenish gray tan. Another equally attractive dress consisted of a bright high necked red sweater and a new gored black skirt of ankle length.

In hosiery the latest fad is purple cashmere of the finest quality, with tan or biscuit silk cross embroidered in steps.

Blue is exceedingly fashionable as a color for tailored gowns this year. The suit illustrated is of this shade. The coat is the favorite three-quarter length and includes admirable lines, with a vest of cream colored broadcloth trimmed with black silk braid, the combination being a singularly handsome one. JUI40 CHOLLET.
