Notice.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, notice is hereby given that all irrigation, or millrace ditches on all trout streams throughout Lake County, Oregon, must be screened with a small mesh wire screening at their head or junction with the main channel of stream. Also all dams or obstructions on said streams must be provided with a fish-ladder, or other easy means of passage, at or near the middle of the main channel, so as to allow the passage of trout at all times of year, as provided by law. Said work to be done at low water time, or to be completed by Feb. 7, 1907. By order of J. A. Barham, Special Deputy Fish Warden for Lake County, Oregon.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

About Sheep.

Don't keep your sheep house as close and warm as a dairy barn, says Farm Journal.

A sheep barn should open to the south, and the sheep should be given the run of a dry yard during pleasant days.

Keep the pens dry and well littered. Feed with perfect regularity. If not fed regularly, sheep fret and lose in condition.

If any fodder is left in the racks clean it out before putting in a fresh supply.

Give all stubs and hay from the sheep racks to the colts.

Keep salt in a box in each pen. Sheep eat lots of salt.

Be sure that you are not wintering a lot of ticks. Ticks will make sheep poor.

Keep the pens level. Fill up hollow and uneven places.

No other animals should ever be allowed in the sheep yards.

The sheep cannot defend themselves and are liable to be injured in many ways.

Water should always be within reach and be fresh and pure.

Give the sheep a variety of food. Roots are a necessity in the ration.

Never Drench Cattle.

Drenching cattle is a dangerous practice. If a cow's head be raised as high as possible and her mouth kept open by the drenching bottle or horn a portion of the liquid is very apt to pass down the windpipe into the lungs, sometimes causing instant death by smothering, at other times causing death to follow in a few days from congestion or inflammation of the lungs.

Give all cattle their medicine hypodermically or in feed. If they refuse feed, give it dry on the tongue.

The proper method of giving a cow medicine is to stand on the right side of the cow, placing the left arm around the nose and at the same time opening her mouth, and with a spoon in the right hand place the medicine, which should be in a powdered form, back on the tongue. She can then swallow with safety.—Dr. David Roberts is Wisconsin State Veterinarian.

Scratches and Grease Heel.

The best possible remedy for scratches, grease heel or mud fever is prevention, and prevention pays a big interest on the investment if it does involve some trouble and time. If the horses cannot be groomed all over, do not neglect the feet, ankles and fetlocks. If they are kept clean the horse will get along very well if its body is not carried thoroughly every day. But it ought to be when in winter quarters and is ever the better for it. To prevent the foot diseases named a "lick and a promise" at cleaning time will not do. Thorough cleaning must be the rule if exemption from disease is desired.

Change of Diet Good For Horses.

When horses are not thrifty it may be attributed to sameness of diet. A pint of linseed meal three times a week will loosen the hide, and the animal will soon show the effects of such an addition to its food. If the bowels are moved too freely by the linseed meal reduce the supply. Linseed meal is harmless, and no danger will result from its use, but it should not be fed too freely to mares with foals. Carrots should also be given in connection with linseed meal. And, last but not least, don't forget a constant and thorough use of the currycomb and brush.—Farm Progress.

The Separator.

Recent German trials indicate that the separator removes from the milk and cream not only the dirt and slime which pass through the strainer, but the greater portion of the bacteria. As cows are usually cared for and handled there are always some dirt and dandruff on the cow's udder that get into the milk. These cannot always be caught in a strainer, but if it passes through it is included with the slime which remains in the separator bowl. The German trials indicate that most of the bacteria remain with it.

Value of a Good Ram.

After all, $100 is not an extravagant price to pay for a good ram if the buyer has half a hundred ewes from whose issue he would make the greatest possible amount of money. A good ram has many a time made the fortune of many a buyer and his flock in two or three seasons, and the breeder who gets nearest to the head of the procession is he who buys and exploits the best rams.—American Sheep Breeder.

Appetizer For Horses.

An appetizer recommended by Dr. C. D. Smead for addition to grain rations of horses which seem a little out of condition and lacking in appetite is made as follows: Equal parts powdered charcoal, baking soda, ginger and common salt with one-half part of powdered gentian root. He claims that the grain ration with this addition will answer the purpose of some of the high priced medicinal stock foods.

Feed For Laying Hens.

One of the best kinds of food for laying hens is steamed oats. A good way to prepare them is to take the water that meat or vegetables have been boiled in and pour over the oats, allowing them to stand until cool.

Preparing For the Calf.

Look to the cows about to calve that their udders do not become caked and feverish, and if they do give them immediate attention or a valuable cow may be lost.

COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment.

"The sum spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment.

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made.

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns.—Advertising Experience.
