COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Chief of State

Although John D. Archbold is the titular head of the Standard Oil Company, the actual director of its affairs is the vast corporation in John D. Archbold, vice president of the company.

It is said of Mr. Archbold that no other person is so close to John D. Rockefeller, none so high in the confidence. And this regard has been won by devotion to Standard Oil through many years. He has been with the Standard Oil Company since 1875. His recent defense, through the press, of the methods of the company he controls is fresh in the public mind. Mr. Archbold is of Scotch descent and is a native of Ohio. His father was spent in Titusville, Pa., and when oil was discovered there he became an independent operator. During this period he fought Rockefeller, and his ability was soon recognized. When the first oil trust was formed he became one of the nine trustees with the Rockefeller and their associates. H. H. Rogers did not attain this rank until several years later.

From his Scotch ancestry Mr. Archbold inherited the sterling qualities of that race. He is a bold and fearless fighter. In every one of the investigations and legal assaults made against it Mr. Archbold has been the leader of the Standard forces.

Mr. Archbold is the special patron of Syracuse university. He is president of the board of trustees of that institution, and his gifts have amounted to more than $750,000.

An Optimist.

The Hon. A. A. Adey, the accomplished assistant secretary of state, who, despite changes of administration, is as much a fixture with the state department as the granite walls of the building, is one of the best story tellers in public life. He has, in addition to a fine sense of humor, a delightful accent all his own, which adds piquancy to any tale.

The other day a friend met the secretary hobbling through one of the corridors. He was suffering from gout and grimaced with pain at every step.

"Oh, I bear it cheerfully enough," said the secretary in reply to an inquiry into his condition. "I'm more of an optimist than a friend of mine who is afflicted with rheumatism. I saw him the other day, and he told me he was suffering so much pain in the foot that he could hardly drag it along after him."

"You ought to thank your lucky stars you are not a centiped," I said," chuckled the secretary.—Boston Herald.

Senate Minority Leader.

Charles A. Culberson of Texas, leader of the minority on the floor of the senate, is recognized by his colleagues of both parties as one of the ablest members of that body. Indeed there are Republicans who say that Mr. Culberson is mentally the best equipped member of the opposition.

The Texan senator presents himself for debate only upon the most important measures, apparently not caring for the notice given to those who speak on any and all occasions. He prepares for his speeches by careful study of the question to be considered, and his statements rarely fail to carry conviction.

Senator Culberson's father, David B. Culberson, represented Texas in the house of representatives for twenty-two consecutive years and was considered one of the greatest lawyers of the south. The son was trained for the law by his father. Senator Culberson was attorney general for Texas from 1890 to 1894, when he was elected governor of the state.
