COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

Notice.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, notice is hereby given that all irrigation, or millrace ditches on all trout streams through Lake County, Oregon, must be screened with a small mesh wire screening at their head or junction with the main channel of stream. Also all dams or obstructions on said streams must be provided with a fish-ladder, or other easy means of passage, at or near the middle of the main channel, so as to allow the passage of trout at all times of year, as provided by law. Said work to be done at low water time, or to be completed by Feb. 7, 1907. By order of J. A. Barham, Special Deputy fish Warden for Lake County, Oregon.

Sale of Timber Land.

GREEN CHINA GLAZE.

Servres Uses Two Shades, the Familiar Grass and Apple Tints.

It is the day of the specialist, even in china collecting. The field was found too vast to be covered by one collector, who realized that though art might be long, her purse was not, and, moreover, time was fleeting. So here and there arose the being who decided to make one particular branch her own and to cleave to that only. Blue and white naturally found most votaries to begin with till the more enterprising branched off into other color schemes, of which green and white was the most attractive. But green is a color which has always fallen under the ban of being considered unlucky by the superstitious, and superstition is a hard nut to crack. Still, fashion surmounts all obstacles, and gradually we see the votaries of green china in the ascendant. Incidentally the same thing is happening to prices. Green china of the right tint does not now have to wait long upon the order of its going. The supply is not equal to the demand. It is a fascinating pursuit and a most decorative object when found, for though it looks its best massed together in bold groups, it mingles well with other china, which cannot be said for the old favorite, blue and white. But it is elegant in its background and surroundings. It calls loudly for white walls and quaint furniture and a somewhat countrified aspect generally, for most of the china in which green predominates is decorated with old fashioned posies of country flowers—roses and gladioli, stocks and pansies.

Tea services with wide shallow cups, dessert services, quaint jugs, vases and delightful baskets form the usual treasure trove. Bowls are few and far between; specimen pieces are far to seek. Green was a good wearing, useful, everyday color, nature's own livery, and so the potters employed it for their most ordinary, commonplace articles, but not always. Sevres and Chelsea employed green as the body color on some of their most gorgeous vases and pieces, destined often as offerings to kings, princes and the great ones of the earth.

Servres used two shades of green, the familiar grass green and the apple tint, but Sevres, unless a family treasure, hardly comes within the ken of the ordinary collector, for if genuine its price is above rubies. Chelsea green approaches most nearly to Sevres; it is of a rich grass hue and was used as a ground color on vases and plates in the declining days of the old factory. Worcester was famous for its apple green in its palmy days, and after the introduction of chrome green used it a good deal as a background to medallions of finely painted landscapes on plates and tea service.

APPLYING LACE.

A Neat Finish For Dainty Linen Handkerchiefs.

There is a most delightful and very little known stitch by which lace is applied to a fine fabric, such as a handkerchief.

It is known as incrustation and may be used for both insertions and edges. It is made as follows: Lay the lace over the fabric on the edge to the depth of half an inch or so. Baste it straight to a thread a little distance from the edge of the lace and take a stitch backward in the fabric.

Draw the thread tight and put the needle in the fabric in the same hole in which it was first inserted and bring it out through the fabric and the extreme edge of the lace.

Draw the thread through the entire length. Take a back stitch through the lace edge and the fabric and bring it out in the hole which was pierced by the previous stitch. Repeat this until the lace is fastened to the fabric.

On the back it will appear like a heringbone stitch. Drawing the thread tight in this way and making practically a stitch and a half each time, the lace is finished with a pretty open edge which looks like hemstitching.

Now cut away the linen from under the lace to within an eighth of an inch from the edge. This raw edge does not make the work weak, and it launders beautifully.

Frenchwomen are not in the least bit afraid of a raw edge on the wrong side, and very often they avoid in this way what might be called sewing a thing to death—sewing which takes away much grace.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To dye your eyebrows take vaseline and thin it with almond oil. Put it on every night with a camel's hair brush. The disfiguring lines around the mouth may be lessened by slightly puffing out the upper lip and then massaging with the tips of the second and third fingers in a diagonal upward direction.

The dark line around the throat if taken in time may be conquered by washing in a weak solution of water and hydrochloric acid. The proportions are about one fluid ounce of the latter to twenty of water.

Many of the great singers have been noted for their beautiful throats and necks. This is not coincidence, but the result of the strenuous course of vocal exercises in which they indulge. Practicing the trill is worth a dozen visits to the professional masseuse in producing a firm, well rounded throat.

If the hands are not good and the nails badly shaped, try to improve the latter by training the cuticle. Every night soak the fingers in hot water for five minutes, then with an orange wood stick press back the cuticle to lengthen the nails. Afterward rub in cold cream. Do not omit this or the soaking will make the cuticle very dry.

SUMMONS

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON, FOR THE COUNTY OF LAKE.

CARSTENS PACKING COMPANY, Plaintiff, vs. REUBEN E. HENNEMAN, JENNIE M. HENNEMAN, and ALEXANDER REITH, Defendants.
