COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sum spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Raising Calves by Hand.

Probably the most serious obstacle in raising calves by hand is scours. This is the most common ailment among hand fed calves. Scours are caused by a number of conditions, mostly due to careless feeding. The most common causes and those which can be easily avoided are overfeeding, cold milk, sour milk, dirty buckets and the practice of feeding grain in the milk. Overfeeding has been mentioned before. The milk should be weighed or measured accurately at every feed. If it is found that the calf needs more milk, the amount should be increased gradually. Changing suddenly to a heavier feed is almost certain to cause scours. The milk should always be fed warm, and only sweet milk should be used. If it is impossible to have the milk sweet all the time, then it should always be fed sour. Good calves can be raised on sour milk, but if it is sour one feed and sweet the next the calves are almost certain to have trouble with scours. The buckets should be washed and scalded after each feeding, so that they will be clean and sweet.—Caleb Bauckler in Farmers Advocate.

Buckwheat Bran as a Stock Feed.

Buckwheat feed, meaning the bran with most of the hulls removed, furnishes the very best of protein food for the dairy cow, writes C. D. Smead, V. S., in National Stockman. When mixed equally with cornmeal it makes a good fattening food for swine. When mixed with oats it is a grand feed for sheep. When mixed with wheat bran and cornmeal, all equally by weight, it makes a fair horse feed when the horse is being only moderately used. My boys have this year fattened on it mixed as advised, any milk cows are now eating ten pounds per day of this buckwheat feed with corn slilage. My sheep have been fed on buckwheat feed for several years with slilage and hay, with more or less oats. At present my horses are eating an equal mixture of wheat bran, buckwheat feed and oats and are doing well, although this is the first winter I have thus fed them.

Shelter Cheaper Than Feed.

Make the cow stable comfortable and sanitary and put the cows therein to stay unless the weather is so pleasant that you yourself would enjoy going out and taking a sun bath. Such a stable need not be expensive, but it must have light, pure air and cleanliness. Arrange it so the cows are comfortable at all times. A cow fastened in a rigid stallion cannot be comfortable, nor if she must lie on a cold or filthy bed, and you need not take my word that it will pay you, because you will discover for yourself by actual experience that from the increased production and the decreased amount of feed needed you are getting a fine dividend on your investment.—L. W. Lighty in National Stockman.

Sulphur Expelled the Rats.

Here is a Maine farmer's mode of ridding his premises of rats and mice: "If you sprinkle sulphur on your barn floor and through your corn as you gather it, there will not be a rat or mouse to bother. I have done this for years and have never been bothered with rats or mice. I have some old corn in my crib at present, and not a rat or mouse can be found. In stacking hay or oats sprinkle on the ground and a little through each load, and my word for it, rats or mice can't stay there. A pound of sulphur will be sufficient to preserve a large barn of corn and is good for stock and will not hurt the corn or bread."—American Cultivator.

Farm Work.

There is small excuse for being idle on the farm, says American Cultivator. No matter how bad the weather, the man who manages well will always find something for his hands and himself to do in the barn or the shed or the shop, and every farm should have a shop. There will be harness to oil or ladders to make or mend or axes to grind or saws to sharpen or a dozen and one things to do to have tools and utensils ready for bright days—plenty to do besides whittling and whistling.

Ration For Laying Hens.

An excellent ration for laying hens in the winter is equal parts of cracked corn, oats chop and shorts. To this add enough clover or alfalfa hay tea, with the partially cooked leaves and stems remaining in the tea, to make the mixture a stiff mass. In addition, the birds should have plenty of grit and occasionally a little meat food. Meat meal or chipped meat, if the latter is not tainted, is a good way to supply this feed.

Cure For Grease Heel.

A subscriber writes that he has found the following treatment reliable for grease heel, says the Chicago Inter Ocean: Wash the part with castile soap suds till it is free from impure matter or substances, then apply coal tar disinfectants once each day till cure is effected. If the scab becomes unhealthy, wash again with soap suds and repeat with the coal tar. Be sure to keep animal in dry stall.

Worms In Colts.

For intestinal worms in colts the following mixture is used by veterinarians: Mix together as a base one pound each of salt and granulated sugar. In this mix one-half pound of tobacco dust or fine cut tobacco, four ounces of sulphate of iron powder, six ounces of powdered wormseed. Give a heaping teaspoonful in the feed at first once per day, then twice per day, and keep it up for three weeks.
