COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sum spent for advertising is properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

Timber Land Notice
United States Land Office, Lakeview, Oregon, April 17, 1908.

Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the act of Congress of June 3, 1878, entitled "An act for the sale of timber lands in the States of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington Territory," as extended to all the Public Land States by act of August 4, 1892, L. A. C. Emerson, of Lakeview, county of Lake, State of Oregon, has filed in this office his sworn statement, No. 3747, for the purchase of the East half NW quarter, SW 1/4 NW quarter Sec. 32, and SE quarter NE quarter, of Section No. 31, in Township No. 40 S., Range No. 22 E., W. M., and will offer proof to show that the land sought is more valuable for its timber purposes, and to establish his claim to said land before Register and Receiver at Lakeview, Oregon on Friday the 26th day of June, 1908.

He names as witnesses: M. E. Musgrave, Rose Musgrave, Arthur Rehart, Granville Hardisty, all of Lakeview, Oregon.
Any and all persons claiming adversely the above described lands are requested to file their claims in this office on or before said 26th day of June 1908.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm will master catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell the 50 cent size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

The Balm is used without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation. Ely's Cream Balm contains no cocaine, mercury nor other harmful drugs.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Garden Gate.
This is a pretty game for children. A ring is formed of all the players except one, who stands in the middle. The others dance around her three times, and when they stop she begins to sing:
"Open wide the garden gate, the garden gate, the garden gate,
Open wide the garden gate and let me through."

The circle then dances round her again, singing:
"Get the key of the garden gate, garden gate, garden gate,
Get the key of the garden gate, open and let yourself through."

The girl inside the circle, pretending to sob, replies:
"I've lost the key of the garden gate, the garden gate, the garden gate,
I've lost the key of the garden gate and cannot let myself through."

But the dancers dance round and round her, singing:
"You may stop all night within the gate, within the gate,
You may stop all night within the gate, unless you've strength to break through."

The captive then rushes to the weakest part of the ring and tries to break through by throwing her whole weight upon the clasped hands of the children and generally contrives to break through, the one whose hand gives way becoming captive in her stead.

Snow Sport.
A delightful game to play in the winter holidays, when the long hours drag within doors, is snow fox and geese, says the Washington Star.

A very slight snowfall will suffice for the game, but it may be played with snow a foot deep in a city back yard or in the field of the country. The game is prepared by the boys, who first, with high boots, trample in the snow a huge circle, with six or eight diametric paths as the size of the lot may allow. After these paths are clearly marked the fun begins. Any number may join in the sport. It is like the old story of "The Spider and the Fly." One person stands in the center of the circle and dashes up and down the diametric paths to seize upon the others as they fly around the circle. The players can venture into the center if they are so daring, but if caught they become the spider and dash for another victim. The one who is catching cannot walk around the circumference, but is confined to the central paths.

Insect and Net.

It has been known for a long time that an insect will not fly through a net with meshes three or four times as large as its body, whereas a bird will go through a mesh of corresponding size without hesitation. The insect cannot tell us why it stops and lights on the net without trying to go through, and its peculiar action puzzled observers until the scientists took the matter up, as they do all things of that kind. They say that the eye of the insect is made up of many facets, so that the net looks to it like a continuous opaque surface, the meshes not being apparent. Therefore it stops or turns back before it discovers that it might have gone through the net without stopping. To the eye of the bird, however, the meshes are plainly visible, and it goes through without hesitation.

Riddles and Answers.

On yonder hill there is a mill, and in that mill there is a wheel, and now it goes and now stands still. Tongue in a man's head.
It goes up the hill and down the hill, yet it never moves, but stands quite still. A road.

It opens like a barn door;
It shuts like a trap;
You may guess all day,
But you can't guess that.
(A corset.)

What is that which every one can divide, yet no one can see where it was divided? Water.

He Can Do Little Who Can't Do This.

One of the players takes a stick in his left hand and thumps the floor with it, saying, "He can do little who can't do this." Then he hands the stick to another player, who will probably use his right hand when holding the stick and thumping the ground. If he does he is told he has failed in the simple task, and the stick is passed to another. The same goes on until some one discovers that the secret of the trick is to copy the leader exactly, and therefore the stick must be held in the left hand.

Puzzles Answered.

When is a straight field not a straight field? When it is a rye field.
Which is the most important tree in history? The date.
Why is Troy weight like a dishonest person? Because it has no scruples.
Why is a talebearer like a brick layer? He raises stories.
What is an old maid in the middle of a river like? Like to be drowned.

The Last Dance of the Leaves.
Rustling, rattling, dancing, chasing,
Sport of every autumn breeze,
Troops of leaves go madly racing
Up and down beneath the trees.

Red and brown and tan and yellow,
How they frolic to and fro!
Now a drift and now a shallow,
Heiter skelter, off they go!

Great brown heaps the sidewalks cover,
Knee deep in them children wade,
Overhead bare branches hover
Cold and gray and disarrayed.

Jack Frost brings the briefest frostom,
Whose tramp will soon be king,
Scuse, skip and hurry, hurry!
Tweeze your fastest, wildest fling!

Young Folks

WITH HAT AND DICE.

Feat of Magic That Any Clever Boy Can Perform.

This trick is simple enough, but it is not so easy to detect, after all. All you need for it are the following articles: First a cube-shaped box, with a cover that completely envelopes it, highly polished and painted black, with the box part marked in imitation of a die (this is to be the false one of your two dice), then a real die, which looks precisely like the false one and will exactly fill the inside of the box, and two hats.

Having first made sure you are ready to perform the trick, set a table in front of the company several feet away from them and set in it the two hats. Then produce your box, black and handsome, and set it on the top-most hat.

Remove the cover, leaving exposed on the hat the false die containing the real die.

Rattle away in a happy conversational style, making all sorts of remarks, anything to keep their attention fixed on you rather than the box, and as you do so clap your cover on and lift up the whole thing off the top-most hat.

Then, still talking, bring it down on the hat again and remove the cover again, but this time, pressing the edges slightly, carry away the real die in the cover, leaving only the false die on the hat. Your audience, sitting below the level of the die, will not see the difference.

Now, talking for all you are worth, go through a few unnecessary and meaningless flourishes, in the midst of which you should manage to move the top hat just enough to admit the real die into the hat below.

As soon as you think fit announce to your audience that now they see the die on the top hat, but "Now," clapping your cover down over the false die and removing it, with a flourish, then displaying the bottom hat—"now you see it in this hat."—Philadelphia North American.

A FAMILY OF MICE.

What Happened to the Stupid Ones When They Went to Play.

There were five little field mice. Their mother was very wise, and one day when they went out to play she told them that when she chirped like a bird they must lie perfectly still. That seemed so funny that the mice were surprised and began to ask each other a great many questions about it. It would have been much better to ask their mamma, but they were very little.

Just then their mother saw a hawk in the sky and chirped. One poor little mouse got frightened and forgot all about what she said, and one dived down into a hole. Unfortunately there was a weasel in that hole, and the weasel got him. Another ran off and got lost in the grass and never was found again. Another ran and tried to hide under a leaf, and a hawk swooped down and ate him up. Another jumped into the bushes and a snake swallowed him. The fifth stayed quite still, and, though he did not know it, he looked so like a withered leaf that neither snake nor the weasel nor the hawk saw him at all.

Which one do you think was the wisest?—St. Nicholas.

Monkey in Sight.

One girl leaves the room, while the others hide a thimble or some other small object. When they are ready they call "Whoop!" and she enters. If she moves toward the hiding place they cry: "You burn!" "Now you burn more!" If she goes very near they say, "Oh, now she is most blazing!" If she moves from the object they say, "How cold she grows!" If the article is found the finder cries, "Monkey in sight!" and then she has the pleasure of hiding it as some other child leaves the room.

Where Lightning Strikes.

Lightning is most destructive in level, open country. Cities, with their numerous projections and wires, are comparatively exempt.

A Great Surprise.

Young Benjamin was coming down The stairs as youngsters do,
Pausing at every step to stamp
Upon each tiny shoe.
And peeping through the banisters
He laughed aloud in glee
And held his wooden elephant
That all below might see.

Alas, when nearly down, the toy

Fell from his heedless hand
And down upon the marble floor
With heavy thud did land.

A startled stop did baby make,

With terror in his eyes,
And he, too, landed with a thump,
And that was the surprise.
