International Romance Ends

The nullification of the marriage of the Earl and Countess of Yarmouth, which was recently granted by the London divorce court, was applied for by the countess, formerly Miss Alice Thaw of Pittsburg.

It has been well known for two years that the domestic affairs of the Yarmouths were unhappy. The earl's companion and his manner of living, Cultivate Smiles.

The wife who greets her husband with a smile when he returns from his day's toil and who has a smile for him when he starts out again in the morning has a far happier future before her than awaits her sister who is always nagging her husband and who seldom is seen to smile except when strangers are present, and as the gentility of the parents is one of the traits that is apt to be passed along to their children the little ones who are raised on smiles have a far better heritage than those who have cross words and frowns three times a day and between meals.

New Decoration.

The pretty and ingeniously contrived floral "diadema" will appeal to numberless devotees of the new game as an item for table decoration. The body of the spool—a large pasteboard one will do—is covered with tiny yellow chrysanthemums, which, you know, do not easily wilt, and the tires are of mauve. The spinning cord and wands are decked with any kind of bright flowers and foliage. It can be suspended from the chandelier over the table and further decorated with gauze butterflies.

Water which has been purified by boiling should be placed instantly in bottles and sealed. When cool the bottles should be placed on ice. None but the manufactured hygienic ice should be placed directly in drinking water.

Prunes should be stewed very slowly for some two and a half hours; then add a little sugar and allow them to cook for half an hour longer.

A little milk added to the water in which silver is washed will help to keep it bright.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

The New King of Portugal. With the accession of King Manuel II. to the throne of Portugal, the youngest reigning monarch of them all took his place among the crowned heads of Europe. The new king was the second son of the murdered Carlos and heir to the throne through the assassination of his elder and only brother, Crown Prince Luis.

The youthful king was born in Lisbon on Nov. 15, 1889, and is therefore but a few months past his eighteenth birthday. Before the tragedy that placed him on the throne he was known as the Duke of Beja. He was educated by tutors until he was fourteen, when he entered the Portuguese navy as a midshipman. He won many friends in the service, in which he attained the rank of lieutenant.

King Manuel is said to be well liked by the people, and the revulsion caused by the murder of his father and brother has aroused popular sympathy. Things, however, have been in a bad way in Portugal for many years. The government has been honeycombed by corruption, and the nation is practically bankrupt. The new king has a big task ahead of him in the rehabilitation of his unhappy kingdom.

Timber A-plenty in Illinois.

Governor Hoke Smith of Georgia dropped in to see Uncle Joe Cannon at the capitol the other day to try to urge him to be friendly to the forest reserve bill. He described the ironies the lumbermen are making in the forests and said the bill of Representative Currier for the preservation of the White mountains and the southern Appalachians should be permitted to pass.

The speaker was not inclined to be enthusiastic. He couldn't see that the forests were disappearing so rapidly as he had been told.

"Why," said he, banging the table with his fist, "there is more timber out in Illinois today than there was thirty years ago."

"Yes," replied the Georgian executive, "but you refer to presidential timber." And the speaker blushed.—Boston Herald.

The Hertford family, the head of which is the Earl of Yarmouth's father, to whom the earl is heir as eldest son of the sixth marquis, is one of the oldest and proudest of the British nobility. The Marchioness of Hertford stood by her daughter-in-law throughout her troubles and exerted herself to reconcile the couple, but in vain.

Alice Cornelia Thaw, daughter of the late William Thaw of Pittsburg, was married to George Francis Alexander Seymour, earl of Yarmouth, at Calvary church, Pittsburg, April 27, 1903.

Hot Stove—Cool Kitchen

How do you expect to endure the broiling days of summer if you prepare all the food over a glowing coal fire?

You need a "New Perfection" Oil Stove that will do the cooking without cooking the cook. It concentrates plenty of heat under the pot and diffuses little or none through the room. Therefore, when working with the

NEW PERFECTION

Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove

the kitchen actually seems as comfortable as you could wish it to be.

This, in itself, is wonderful, but, more than that, the "New Perfection" Oil Stove does perfectly everything that any stove can do. It is an ideal all-round cook-stove. Made in three sizes, and fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.
