OUR CANDIDATES

The Republican National Convention, which met at Chicago last week, placed its nomination the Honorable William H. Taft, of Ohio, for President of the United States, on the first ballot, an unprecedented distinction, not heretofore given any new man. The vote stood: Taft, 702, Hughes 61, Cannon, 61, Fairbanks, 40, Knox, 48, LaFollette 25, Foraker 16, Roosevelt 3.

It has been a foregone conclusion for some time that Mr. Taft was certain to be the nominee. He had the lead of all other candidates from the start, and had the hearty endorsement of his personal friend, President Roosevelt. While comparatively a young man, he has long been in active life, and wherever he was placed, has filled the position in a capable, forceful, honorable and painstaking manner. His record is too well known to the public to need any special mention of The Examiner. Suffice it to say at present, what was said of him by Congressman Benon, of Ohio, in making the nominating speech:

"I name for the Presidency that perfect type of American manhood, that peerless representative of the noblest ideals in our national life, William H. Taft."

The press reports state that the demonstration that followed the name of Ohio on the roll was not a drop to a deluge compared to the roar that broke out as Mr. Burton concluded. On their chairs, with waving flags, hats and kerchiefs stood the men from Taft's state, shouting at the top of their voices. Other delegations came in on the wave and roar of laughter followed when a flag pole to which was attached a pair of trousers of most generous proportions was held aloft by the members of the Taft delegation. It was the angora goat trousers mentioned and previously described. Across the consolidated portion of the trousers, fore and aft, were attached placards bearing the inscription: "As Pants the Hart for Coolidge Streams, so Tafts Pants for Taft."

The blue banner of the picture of Taft was quickly raised by Ohio delegates, who whooped and yelled like a batch of Comanche Indians. After holding it aloft for a while they bore it down the aisle, followed by others.

When the demonstration had been under way twenty-five minutes, Chairman Lodge, with the assistance of the Sergeant-at-arms and the Taft floor managers, managed to quiet the bubbling enthusiasm of the delegates and introduced Knight of California, who seconded the Taft nomination.

The nomination for vice president went to Congressman J. S. Sherman, of Utica, N. Y., by a practically unanimous vote.

James Schoolcraft Sherman, Congressman and lawyer, was born at Utica, N. Y., October 24, 1855. He graduated from Hamilton College in 1878, received the L. L. D. degree in 1903 and was admitted to the bar in 1880. He was elected mayor of Utica in 1884. He was chairman of the Republican state convention in 1895 and in 1900. He was a member of congress from the 23rd New York District from 1897 to 1891, from the 25th New York District from 1893 to 1903 and from the 27th New York District from 1903 to the present time. He is still a practicing lawyer and is President of the Utica Trust and Deposit Company. His home is in Utica.

The Republican National platform, as prepared, lauds Roosevelt for the great things he has accomplished during his administration, and credits the Republican party with the great advance in prosperity that has taken place in the Nation since the birth of the party.

It calls attention to the fact that the Democrats obstructed wise legislation at the session of Congress just closed and says that despite filibustering by opponents, many progressive laws were passed. It especially commends the emergency currency measure, the bill for the appointment of a National Monetary Commission, Government liability laws, greater efficiency of Army and Navy, model child labor law, and the widow pension bill.

The platform declares unequivocally for a revision of the tariff immediately following the inauguration by a special session of Congress.

The establishment of postal savings banks is favored upon principles embodied in the measure now pending before Congress.

The enactment of the railroad rate law and its vigorous enforcement is approved.

The enactment of the employer's liability act is heartily commended. The welfare of the workmen is recognized by the party as of great importance.

The Republican party points with pride and gratification to the cause of peace so signally advanced at the Hague Conference.

It declares that generous provisions must be made for the widows and orphans of those who have fallen while fighting their country's battles, as well as the survivors who aided in upholding the flag.

The platform calls attention to the fact that the Republican party passed the Sherman anti-trust law over Democratic opposition and enforced it.

The establishment of rural mail service to millions of homes is pointed to as one of the beneficent acts of a Republican administration, and the efforts under way to establish good roads for the entire country for the benefit of the agricultural community is commended.

The platform declares for such amendments to the statutes as to procedure in the Federal Courts with respect to the use of the injunction as will prevent the summary issue of such orders without proper instruction on the one hand and as will preserve undiminished the power of the court to enforce their process on the other hand, to the end that justice may be done to all.

The Examiner believes that with Mr. Taft as standard-bearer, upon such a brilliant platform, victory is assured for the Republican party and that his administration will go down in history side by side with that of President Roosevelt in the estimation of the people.

One thing is certain: If you believe the policies of Mr. Roosevelt should be continued, then you will vote for William H. Taft for President of the United States.

Some people make the mistake of thinking every department is meant to be read by everybody. On the contrary, read only that which appeals to you. Others do not possess your tastes, and will read approvingly that which you discard. Therefore, do not grumble at the editor because he publishes all kinds of news. The Examiner will aim to print all the news from every point of this great tri-state region. It will take space and money, too, to cover the field, but we have the necessary machinery, including a typesetting machine, to do the job, and shall make further improvements when warranted. This is an age of big things and big newspapers. So our advice is to read what you like, and skip the rest. To attempt to interest yourself in "all that's going" is a grave mistake.

The Standard Oil Company at Rochester, N. Y., the 12th inst. was found guilty on forty counts, for illegal acceptance of rebates for oil shipments from Olean. The maximum fine is $20,000 on each count, or $800,000 in all. Another rise in kerosene and gasoline is now assured. Perhaps it would be better to put the Standard Oil crowd in jail. It would prevent so much rebating and would make that tough bunch respecters of the law, and would, moreover, prevent the present method of making the people pay the fines, as they surely will be compelled to do, under existing conditions.

NOVEL LICENSE PLAN
A new treatment of the liquor question has been evolved that is now engaging the attention of thinking men, and that is simply to compel every man and woman who drinks intoxicating liquors to pay a license fee, exempt saloon men and permit anyone who desires to engage in the traffic, the sale restriction being to sell only to license holders.

These in brief are the chief points of a plan suggested by E. E. Hall, of Spokane, a candidate in the third district for the next legislature of Washington, to solve the liquor question in that state, in which the Republican party is pledged to local option, while the Democrats are on record as favoring absolute prohibition. Hall has been a resident of Eastern Washington since the pioneer days.

Outlining his plan, Hall said that while he is willing to stand squarely upon the Republican state platform and vote for the passage of a local option law, if elected he will introduce a measure which provides that the man who drinks the liquor must pay a license. He added:

"My plan would be to abolish all saloon licenses, permitting any man desiring to sell liquor to do so. If a man wants to drink he should be compelled to take out a license to do so, and it should be made a misdemeanor for any person to sell to a man who does not have such a license. Such licenses should be issued by counties and cities, a reasonable fee being about $5 a year for county licenses and from $1 to $3 a year for city. This would bring in a larger revenue than under the present license system, and would put the burden where it belongs."

ROOSEVELT A GREAT MAN
Senator Borrows made a most forcible and pertinent speech at the opening of the republican national convention in Chicago. After mentioning the material progress of the nation under the last four years of the administration of President Roosevelt, in which he discussed the president's policies as to our relations with foreign nations, the curbing of predatory wealth, the emergency currency, tariff revision, the Panama canal, the part taken in the Russian-Japan war, the building of our navy to its present commanding place, the settlement of disputes with our Canadian neighbors, and other matters of national benefit, the Senator added:

"Yet nothing has added so much to his just name as this persistent and invincible refusal to break the unwritten law of the Republic by accepting a nomination for a third term. By this act of self-abnegation he places his name and fame in the secure keeping of history by the side of that of the immortal Washington."

Taft's trousers, his only pair, which he rent the morning he was to appear before the Emperor of all the Russias, and so carefully and neatly mended by his devoted spouse, are now historic. The republicans of Texas constructed a cairn to be given Mr. Taft upon his nomination at Chicago. The trousers are made of mohair, warranted to fit no other candidate, and were designed to draw special attention to the Angora goat industry of that state. The same were to be carried at the head of the Texas delegation truly a novel sort of a political standard, only equalled by the Log Cabin of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," and "Gran Pa's Hat" of the later Harrison. It these trousers serve as a badge of victory for the Republican party in this campaign—well and good! The idea is that of John B. Carrington, secretary of the Business Men's Club, of San Antonio.
