

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Kentucky's New Senator.

The election of former Governor William O'Connell Bradley, a Republican, as United States senator from Kentucky when the Democrats had a majority in the legislature was quite the political sensation of the day. Senator Elect Bradley will succeed James B. McCreary, his term beginning March 4, 1909. He received sixty-four votes, four of which were cast by Democrats opposed to ex-Governor Beckham, leading Democratic candidate for senator, who was indorsed at the state primaries.

WILLIAM O'CONNELL BRADLEY.

The new senator is a native of Kentucky and is sixty-one years old. He is a lawyer who was admitted to the bar by special act of the legislature in 1865, being under twenty-one years of age at the time. He was elected governor of the state in 1895 and in 1898 was indorsed as the Kentucky candidate for the presidential nomination.

Senator Elect Bradley is red headed and has Irish blood. The combination is prophetic of excitement. He loves a political row as much as his forebears loved the ruction of Donnybrook. In all probability he will join the ranks of those new senators who have kicked holes in the senate tradition that new members are to be seen and not heard.

How Uncle Joe Would Dig the Canal. Speaker Cannon returned to Washington from his holiday sojourn at Danville, Ill., with a laconic observation about the construction of the isthmian canal. "It is merely a matter of digging and damming," he says.

The speaker had some conversation on the subject with Lieutenant Colonel George W. Goethals and in the course of it made his remark about the task of the two d's. "But," he added, "while that tells the story, I was the chairman of the commission and in your shoes I should be disposed to cut the cable. Then I would go on digging and damming to beat the band."—Boston Herald.

From James Whitcomb Riley. One bright morning while Riley was on his way to his publishers he met what seemed to him an unusually large number of friends who made the conventional remark about the weather. This unremitting applause pleased and amused him. When greeted at the office with "Nice day, Mr. Riley," he stopped at the door and answered droily: "Yes—yes. I've heard it very highly spoken of."

The Case of Judge Wilfley. Lebbeus R. Wilfley, judge of the United States court at Shanghai, China, against whom charges have been preferred, took his seat on the bench on Jan. 1, 1907. The charges were preferred by Lorrin Andrews, formerly attorney general of Hawaii, and were repeated by him before the house committee on the judiciary as a basis for impeachment proceedings. In the meantime Judge Wilfley has been exonerated by President Roosevelt and Secretary Root.

The most serious charge against Judge Wilfley is that upon taking office at Shanghai he disbarred without cause or authority all but two of the American lawyers in that city, while permitting any foreign lawyer to practice in his court.

Judge Wilfley is a Democrat and a native of St. Louis. He is a graduate of Yale law school and was admitted to the bar in 1893. In 1901 he was appointed by Secretary Taft as judge of the court of the first instance, Philippines. A few months later he was advanced to the attorney generalship and on July, 1907, was appointed to take charge of the new court at China at Shanghai.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

For Tender Hands.
Procure 5 cents' worth of pure glycerin and exactly its weight of tincture of benzoin; put these in a bottle, then add a pinch of salt and half a pint of cold water, previously boiled and cooled, shake well, and it is ready for use. Put a bottle of the lotion in the bathroom and another near the kitchen sink. Every time the hands are washed dry them thoroughly on a soft towel and apply a small quantity of the foregoing liquid. It is not at all sticky or greasy and has a pleasant odor. It is harmless and comforting for chapped faces, especially for little folk after playing out of doors on windy days.

Cleaning Rugs.
A rug should never be shaken. Shaking puts a strain on the long warp cords, a strain that they are not able to bear, so here and there they snap then the filling gives way, and the rug is fit for nothing but the rag bag. If you want a rug to last, never let it be shaken, but hang it over a clothesline and beat it gently with a wire carpet beater first on one side, then on the other. It takes more time and work to clean the rug that way, but it will last four or five times as long and will look cleaner and be really freer from dust.

Sham Champagne.
Tartaric acid, one ounce; one good sized lemon; ginger root, one ounce; white sugar, one and one-half pounds; water, two and one-half gallons; yeast, one gill. Slice lemon and bruise the ginger. Mix all except the yeast. Boil the water and pour it upon them and let stand until cooled to blood heat; then add the yeast and let it stand in the sun all day. At night bottle, tying the corks, and in two days it will be fit to use.

To Clean White Fur Robes.
Beat the robes free of dust and drench with grain alcohol down to the roots of the hairs. Fill the fur with talcum powder while it is soaking wet. Do not spare the powder. Put all into the skins that the fur will hold. Cover to exclude dust and leave them alone for four or five days. Beat them well and long. The powder will fly out, taking the dirt with it.

An Improved Griddle.
A smokeless and odorless griddle and broiler which has been lately patented has advantages which will be readily recognized at a glance of the illustration herewith shown. The front plates of the stove being removed, the new griddle sets in and at the same time falls below the stove top. In this manner the heating surface is brought nearer to the fire, and all smoke, vapors and odors are carried up the chimney. The griddle is open at the top, but for the purposes of broiling it is desirable that a greater heat should be secured, and this is brought about by making a lid over the top. When the latter is lowered, the meat, being cooked, gets the full benefit of the heat, but when it is raised every opportunity is offered for its examination.

Orange Marmalade.
One dozen oranges, half a dozen lemons, three quarts of water and eight pounds of sugar. Slice the fruit thin, turn water over it and let stand twenty-four hours; then boil two or three hours or until the fruit is tender, add sugar and boil half an hour longer, turn into tumblers and when cool cover as for jelly. Keep in a cool place.

Laundering Black Lawn.
Boil two quarts of wheat bran in six of water for half an hour. Cool and then strain through coarse cheesecloth or a fine strainer. Wash the lawn in this, using neither soap nor starch. If it be too thick, thin to the right consistency with cold water. Dry in the shade and iron while damp.

To Keep Labels Clean.
The labels on the glass jars for groceries keep cleaner and in place longer without tearing off if they are placed on the inside of the jar and pasted. This can apply only where dry groceries, such as rice, tapioca, loaf sugar and spices, are used.

To Clean Smoked Walls.
To clean painted walls or woodwork, smoky or greasy from cooking on a gas, gasoline or oil stove, to one part of warm water add one-quarter of a cupful of turpentine. Use a sponge or soft rag and the dirt will disappear.

To Clean Mica.
Take a glass from stove and lay in vinegar about ten minutes and then rub with a little salt and wipe clean. With a knife it can be separated, making three or four out of one. They will be almost as good as new.
