Reaching For the Lake County Wool

It is to be regretted that A. E. Irving, the representative of the Century Mercantile Co. of Berkeley, Calif., was unable to meet the sheep-owners before the wool sales of the past two weeks were made. By invitation of sheep owners in Nevada, Mr. Irving made trip through their state, interviewing and explaining to them his company's method of handling wool. From eastern Nevada he rode north into Oregon and west until he arrived in this community, covering a distance of over 700 miles.

In a recent interview with him some interesting facts were discussed and letters were shown from men in various parts of California, whose wool the company had handled, which brought out the fact that the grower had received from two to four cents per pound more than the speculator-buyers would pay.

The Century Mercantile Co. is a co-operative concern in its workings and shippers get the benefit of full market prices at eastern woolen mills, less expense of handling. While this company maintains a strong eastern selling force at all times, yet this year a personal representative was sent from California to push sales, being aware of the fact that it might be harder than usual to make sales.

Upon receiving the wool at their warehouse every sack is opened and the wool properly graded so that each manufacturer may be able to buy just the grade he desires and in the quantity he wishes without having to buy a lot he cannot use, as is usual in an ungraded clip, and which he must re-sell.

In order that the company might have the wool graded as the mills desired they went to the trouble and expense of bringing a man from the eastern mills to train their graders. This means prompt sales and good prices.

The fact that the movement has spread so rapidly throughout California and that in every locality they go, as in Red Bluff district one year, the local price for wool is forced up is pretty good evidence the company has struck that for which growers have been looking, viz.—"A co-operative method of handling their product direct and cutting out, as much as possible, the middleman and his profits."

Mr. Irving has been urging those whom he was able to see not to sell at the low figures offered by the speculative buyers; because, through all this season the market for long staple wools, like those of Lakeview, has been firm and with an upward tendency. Within the past month these wools have risen from five to ten per cent in value, which makes the actual market price but little lower than that of last year. In fact the company in March, and again in April, sold wool at only ten percent less than that received for the same grade last year. This certainly speaks well for the company's outlet in the East.

Each of our local banks has personal letters from the Berkeley bank with which the company does business, showing that they have strong Eastern connections and are very successful in their manner of handling the wool. Seeing that our wool interests are quite heavy here we would suggest, as did Mr. McBride, secretary of the Eastern Nevada Wool Growers Association, that "Mr. Irving's proposition is one which may be commended to the careful consideration of all wool-growers in this section."

Similar Conditions Produce Same Results

Up in Wasco county, north of here, under similar conditions, it is reported that on account of the unusually mild winter, Fall-sown wheat has an exceptional stand.

A stool of Fall grain which was on display at Dufer, 15 miles south of The Dalles and in the heart of the Wasco County wheat belt, contained 34 stalks all grown from one seed. It is thought that a yield of from 30 to 50 bushels an acre will be harvested from Fall grain. The rains which were general over the Inland Empire during the latter part of May also assisted in bringing about wonderful development in both Spring and Fall sown crops. A conservative estimate of the crop for this year puts the aggregate yield at 2,200,000 bushels for the county.

When this southern portion of the Great Inland Empire gets to the front, the wheat crop that will pour out of Lake county will be something enormous.

Similar conditions must produce similar results, and as is the case up there now, when cheap rapid and easy transportation is assured here, then will the desert bloom as a rose, and large areas now devoted solely to grazing will be transformed into vast wheat fields that will yield immense crops of a superior fall wheat.

CITY AND COUNTY BRIEFS

The ladies who sold ice cream and cake Friday during the opening day of the baseball tournament for the benefit of the library were very well patronized. That was as it should be for it surely was in a good cause.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fair, of San Francisco, formerly Miss Marie Belle, of Lakeview, a boy, born 25th of June.

H. J. Klins and P. R. Sturgeon, of Upland, Indiana, arrived here Saturday. They are looking the country over with a view of locating a water system for some town in this vicinity. Finding that Lakeview was well supplied in this way, the gentlemen left for Fort Bidwell over the line in California.

Boat Oars at J. B. Auten Co. 27-tf
C. E. McCleary, the Pine Creek mining man, returned Saturday from Alturas, Modoc county, California, just over the state line, where he has been in attendance at court in a suit for the "Mountain Sheep" gold mine in the Hoag district. The property has been in litigation for a year or so, but he thinks now that it will be decided in his favor. It is said to be a very valuable mining property.

The Altura New Era reports 23 horses at the race track in that town. It surely was "23" for Lakeview, judging for our recent announcement.

New Assortment of Pies—Silk Fish lines at J. B. Auten & Co. 27-tf

C. D. Rakestraw, Supt. of the Bidwell Indian school has informed the New Era that a similar school will be established in Alturas.

One of the exhibitions the Fourth provided was a young fellow who dropped from a 50-foot pole into a pool of water. He did it twice, and came out all right. It looks to us as though that was a pretty dangerous way of making a living.

The Foresters gave a banquet to members and friends Monday night.

C. S. Becraft, a dairy man of the county, with postoffice at Viestilla, Klamath county, was in Lakeview Saturday. He is getting together a big herd of dairy cattle, and finds profit in the business.

A dance was held in the Opera House Monday night. These are strenuous times indeed for the young people here and also for some of the older ones who have to act as chaperones.

Haying tools, Rope and Pullies at J. B. Auten and Co. 27-tf

County Fruit Inspector A. M. Smith was in town Tuesday. He reports that the orchards of Lake Co. show prospects of good crops. There will be plenty of apples, pears and cherries about Paisley and Summer Lake.

E. R. Patch, of Pine Creek, who represents the Albany nurseries, was in town celebrating the Fourth. He gave us much information as to fruit growing which we will publish later.

E. Tatre, a rancher engaged in raising cattle and alfalfa on the Cottonwood, West Side, was in town this week.

W. B. Barnes, formerly assessor of Lake County, is over from Klamath Falls. Mr. Barnes is now a resident of Klamath, and was recently elected sheriff of that county. His many friends here are glad to see him again and are pleased over his prosperity.

A lady's drab kid glove, with pearl buttons was left at this office 4th. The owner can secure same by calling at the Examiner office.

L. A. Carricker and wife were callers on The Examiner Tuesday. Mr. Carricker was looking for haying hands. Wages for that sort of labor on the big ranches have come down this year, being $1.50 for hands, and $3 for man and team. This includes board.

J. L. Morris, a former Lake County resident, has been lucky since moving to Middletown, California. The Middletown Independent says: "Mr. Morris won a neat rubber-tired buggy on the Examiner gift proposition and it was delivered yesterday. He is to be congratulated on his luck."

S. T. Colvin, a resident of this section since 1873, was a caller Friday. He was interested in sheep and cattle for 30 years, but for the last seven years has grown horses and spent the winters disposing of them in various parts of the country. He thinks he will stay here the coming winter.

P. Ward of Oakland arrived here Monday night. He has been a reader of the Examiner and concluded to come up and get a piece of government land before it is all gone. Others can emulate his example with future profit to themselves.

The big Paisley package of Examiners mailed from this office last Thursday, has gone astray somehow and somewhere in the mails. It seem almost impossible such a thing could happen. We are at a loss to account for it and cannot imagine what could have become of the package. Our supply of extra copies has gone or we would remit them to our Paisley subscribers.

Joel Chandler Harris, "Uncle Remus," the noted Southern writer, died at his home in Atlanta, Georgia after a short illness.

Busy People Protest

One of the strange things to a newcomer is the disposition of the people of this town to delay arrival at a theatrical performance, until ten o'clock or later. This makes it impossible for the companies to get through before midnight or later. Everybody in consequence gets tired out, sleepy and cross, and no matter how good the acting, it fails of appreciation. In all the cities with which we are familiar, the curtain goes up at 8:15 sharp. Should any appear at the door later, they are compelled to wait in the lobby until the first act is completed. The Examiner notes with approval that Mr. Mong advertised last night that the show would begin at 8:30 sharp. That hour is plenty late enough to suit the convenience of all, and will give the early-to-bed people an opportunity to retire at a reasonable hour, something needed in this high altitude.

Nelson Knocks Out Gans

The redoubtable Joe Gans, the colored light weight champion of the flat arena, was knocked out in the 17th round at San Francisco, on the Fourth, by "Battling" Nelson, the Dane, whom he defeated two years ago at Goldfield, Nevada. Gans says the best man won. It was evident to all present, that after the 7th round, victory was going to Nelson. The result of this fight makes Nelson the Champion. He has not decided whether or not he will stay in the ring. Gans says now that he stayed one fight too long, and that may be the case with Nelson.

MONG CO. GO TO KLAMATH Showed to Big Houses All the Past Week

The Mong company have been playing the past week to crowded houses, and on some nights standing room even was at a premium.

The company are in advance of what one might expect in a town so far from railroad transportation, which renders traveling difficult, tiresome and expensive.

Mr. Mong is a very talented young man, and in all lines so far essayed he has proved himself a headliner in his profession. He has played many of his roles, such as "David Garrick," "The Poor Inventor," "Till Death do Us Part," and other bills, one of which, "The Clay Baker" he wrote himself, to crowded houses in the cities of the East on nightly runs so high as 14 consecutive nights, showing conclusively where good acting is best known he is highly appreciated.

His supporting company is good, especially the delicate graceful acting of his wife.

The company will leave here this week for Klamath Falls, and when they complete an engagement there, they will make a tour of the surrounding country, after which they will return to Lakeview, of which due announcement will be made in The Examiner.

While away the company will be accompanied by the Lakeview Orchestra, an organization of artists in their line. They will provide music of a quality that cannot fail to please the most critical taste.

The Examiner wishes the company and the orchestra, pleasure and prosperity while away, and commends them to our neighbors who desire a high quality of entertainment.

Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, retired U. S. N., died at the famous Del Monte Hotel, California, at 8:30 July 3. Heart failure was the cause. He was second in command of the big fleet that left Hampton Roads for San Francisco, during Admiral Evans' illness the duties of command devolved upon Admiral Thomas. After Evans' retirement for a period of two weeks Thomas commanded the fleet and was then succeeded by Admiral Sperry, the present commander.

Rustling for the New Mill

F. O. Bunting is around this week hustling up the small balance necessary to be subscribed to finish the flouring mill, now under construction. It should be an easy matter to do that, as there is a field for such an enterprise and will prove a paying investment from the start. The mill will cost about $12,000, and all the money except about $7,000 has been raised.

The Democrats are now assembled at Denver to nominate a candidate for the presidency. At this writing it seems that the man will be William Jennings Bryan for the first place, but no one can tell as to his running mate.
