Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm will master catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell the 50 cent size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.
 The Balm is used without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation. Ely's Cream Balm contains no cocaine, mercury nor other harmful drugs.

A NEW TRADE.
 How One Woman Earns a Livelihood Without Special Training.
 There are so many women at the present time who are forced by circumstances to find some means of self support that any new suggestion as to ways and means is always received with enthusiasm.

The story of a woman in one of the large cities seems to show that every one must have some special gift, be it sewing, housekeeping, cleaning or business, and every one should seek her especial talent until she finds it. This rule should really hold good even if money is not a necessity, for a talent may always be turned to the aid of another or others, as the case may be. The particular woman of the story was left a widow and penniless, with a rooted objection to dressmaking and most other forms of employment by which the average woman seeks to earn her living. Finally she decided that, although her hands were long and slender and her fingers of the most artistic type, she could do nothing but handle fine lace and frills, and she therefore sought and obtained some delicate fabrics to clean and press. For two years she supported herself by this work, although not entirely to her own satisfaction.

One day she happened to pass a store where glass and other fragile works of art were sold, and her artistic temperament caused her to enter to more closely examine the beauties displayed in showcase and on the counter. Once there her long, fine hands strayed toward the bits of marble until the manager of the store saw her and approached to ask her to read the usual sign forbidding visitors to handle the pieces. But as he watched her he changed his mind and instead remarked on her lightness of touch and asked her if she would enter his employment.

She replied that she could not take a saleswoman's position, but added that handling the fragile works of art was a pleasure, to which he answered, "That is all I want you to do—keep them clean." So she accepted the offer, and for twelve years she has tended to and kept the stock in good condition.

Later it occurred to her that she might also take care of private collections or of those relics too precious to trust to ordinary care. Her business grew and grew, and now she has all she can handle, for, although some collections are not visited but once in two years, others need monthly attention. Thus the casual visit paid to a store started this plucky little woman on her life work, and her story suggests many possibilities for others too delicate for heavy work, yet gifted in one particular way.

A USEFUL TRIFLE.
 Convenient Way to Carry Books in the Street.
 Magazine and book covers of leather in suede and the soft, pliable dressed variety have been familiar to book lovers for some seasons past. They have heretofore been in portfolio form, with pockets on the inside to hold the covers of the book or periodical in place. Now comes a new type on the envelope bag order with handles that will be found a particular convenience for the traveler. The second illustration is that of an alligator hand bag, the distinctive feature of which is the alligator head and claws that decorate the front of the receptacle.

NEW BOOK AND MAGAZINE COVER AND ALLIGATOR BAG.

Spain's Queen at Home.
 Quite tactfully and skillfully the young queen of Spain is playing her part. Like her famous royal grandmother, she is an early riser, and her English breakfast of ham, roast beef and poached eggs, alone with the king, is one of the pleasantest functions of the day. After his cigarette, with which Alfonso concludes even this early meal, he must needs repair to his state duties, and in the ordinary way they do not meet again until lunch-time.

Victoria found the company at her husband's dinner table somewhat mixed at first. The exuberant young king would sit anywhere and invite almost any one. But his bride soon changed the etiquette and abolished indiscriminate gatherings, not forgetting, however, that certain high functionaries and prelates have the right of access to the royal table.—Harper's Bazar.

Instead of Basting.
 Some cooks in preparing poultry or game bird instead of basting with butter and water.
 Barding is fastening over the breast of the fowl to be roasted a large, thin piece of salt pork. It prevents the meat from drying out and getting tasteless.
