

Woman's World

MME. THAYER.

Originator of International Postgraduate Course For American Women.

The spirit of internationalism is abroad, which means the drawing together of the bonds which make for unity and peace. Cecil Rhodes was swayed by this spirit when he originated his admirable scheme. Now a woman has come forward to adapt this conception of a great mind for women. Mme. Thayer, the president of the American circle of the Lyceum club, formulated her scheme and brought it before the education committee of the Society of American Women in London, of which she was then chairman. The scheme, a postgraduate study of two years at Oxford, Cambridge or London university by distinguished of their own universities at home, was received by the committee with enthusiasm, which applauded particularly the "reciprocity side" to the project, which is to send Englishwomen for a two years' postgraduate study to America or Canada, to the Johns Hopkins university at Baltimore, for instance, or to the McGill university in Canada. It is America's privilege to make the start, and already, after two short years' work, a very successful beginning has been made.

The Society of American Women in London has pledged itself to a two years' income for one scholar from the University of Columbia, while Mme. Thayer has undertaken to raise one scholarship in perpetuity for her own country, Louisiana. The education committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in America has promised to endow one scholarship in perpetuity and has recommended its general body to take up these scholarships as one line of its work. The General Federation numbers 800,000 women members and therefore is well adapted to help this wonderful scheme to a successful issue.

Card Party Recipes.

Bouillon.—Two pounds of beef, one pound of bones, two quarts of cold water, one tablespoonful of salt, four whole peppercorns, four cloves. Wash the meat and bones and add the water, season and let simmer for two or three hours. Boil down to one quart, strain and let it cool. Then remove the fat that has arisen, heat again, and it is ready to serve.

Creamed Oysters.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and add to it two heaping spoonfuls of flour, cook for a few moments and stir in gradually two cupfuls of milk which has been heated. Wash and pick over carefully one quart of oysters, boil them in their own liquor, then drain and add to the cream. Salt and pepper to taste. If necessary to thin, add a little oyster juice. Two tablespoonfuls of sherry will also give a nice flavor to this dish.

Creamed Chicken.—One pint of chicken meat already cooked, one-half cupful of cream, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour and a little chopped parsley. Melt the flour and butter, pour in the cream slowly and work until smooth. Stir in the chicken meat and parsley, which have been chopped in medium pieces, and cook for five or ten minutes. This can be served on toast.

Cheese and Nut Sandwiches.—Chop the meats of twenty-five hickory nuts, almonds or any nut on hand. Add them to a cream cheese and a dozen olives chopped fine. Spread on thin slices of white bread.

Mixed Sandwiches.—Cut fine one cupful of any cold meat, such as turkey, chicken or veal; one cup of nut meats chopped finely, one box of sardines, four small cucumber pickles chopped fine. Add plenty of lemon juice and mix well. Spread on lettuce leaves between white bread. This sandwich is also delicious with mayonnaise dressing.

Peanut Sandwich.—Chop the meats fine or put through a coffee mill, salt to taste and add a little sherry or port wine to make a thick paste. This is much better than the peanut butter, which can be purchased already prepared.

Orange and Date Salad.—Remove the pulp and inner skin from six oranges and one grape fruit and break them into small pieces. Mix this with one pound of dates that have been stoned and cut into fine strips and a half cupful of meats chopped rather fine. Serve on lettuce leaves with the following dressing: The yolks of two eggs beaten light and add half a cup of powdered sugar and one cupful of sherry or port. If wine is not liked use a cup of orange juice with a tablespoonful of lemon juice in it.

Silhouette Embroidery.

The black profile of some bewitching Psyche or stern celebrity of the male sex, strangely enough, provides decoration to many of the daintiest trifles in the manner of photo frames, triquet ensembles, blotters, etc. In pastel colored moire or satin, which are further embellished with an array of flowers and foliage in either shaded ribbon work or silk embroidery. A less striking contrast is displayed on a white tea cozy, on which the ever graceful group of Inevitable and Merveilleuse, including in a bit of innocent flirtation, is delineated with the needle and brush, one of these directorie personages standing on either side of a formal tree of life. Scenes from Punch and Dickens, too, enliven other cozies intended to grace the table of some literary 5 o'clock tea in compliance with the increasing tendency of having our surroundings in harmony with the event or fancy of the hour. Even the diabolical craze is recalled on the new elongated bags in brown linen, containing the sticks and reel of the game and illustrating a needle picture of some of the most charming movements of players cleverly outlined.

How They Come.

That lined forehead sometimes is a sign of years. More often it is nothing but disagreeable evidence of bad facial habits.

Do you knit your eyebrows when in thought or down on your luck? If you do, rest assured you will have a forehead seamed with vertical lines and one, two or three deep furrows between the eyes.

Are you coquettish or sneering and given to expressing your emotions of wonder or contempt by raised eyebrows and shrugs? If you do, you will pay for your lack of respect of other people's feelings by a whole network of horizontal lines on a forehead that should be smooth as a well fitted gown.

In theory an unwrinkled skin demands placidity, but if we are not of the "felicly regular, splendidly null" type and allow ourselves the luxury of tears and laughter at least we can refrain from overemphasizing facial contortions, with their sorry aftermath of deep and ineffaceable lines.

For the Layette.

One of the most useful articles for the layette is the flannel blanket for baby's bath. The bath blanket is not only an apron for the protection of the mother's gown, but also a soft warm wrap to fold the delicate little body of the infant as it is taken from the tub. These blankets are usually made of a good, heavy weight wool flannel, and two yards of material are required. Double the goods, which gives two lengths of one yard each. Make a tuck an inch deep where the flannel is folded over and run through it inch wide wash ribbon of any preferred color, having it sufficiently long to tie around the waist when in use. The edges of this blanket apron may have a binding of wash ribbon corresponding in color to the waist ribbon, or they may be simply buttonholed with wash silk.

To Stimulate Eyelashes.

What woman does not wish for long, curling eyelashes?

They are one of the details that make a homely woman attractive, and it does seem as though they could be cultivated.

Vaseline—pure white vaseline—rubbed on with a small brush every night is a splendid tonic for these much desired beauties. Keep the eye tightly closed that the grease may reach the roots of stubborn lashes, although if the vaseline is fresh and of good quality it cannot hurt the eye. In fact, one woman who has found the remedy successful says that, on the contrary, the eyes become brilliant under treatment, while the longer lashes make a marked improvement in the appearance.

An Odd Cushion.

A pincushion made with four tiny cushions is indeed a novel and pretty design. In the first place, four cushions, possibly about three and one-half inches square, are made of silk and lightly stuffed with hair, sawdust or what is preferable, white wool. After the four cushions are filled and the edges trimmed with small ruffles of ribbon each cushion is folded to form a triangle, and the connected points are fastened with small rosettes. The four are joined together by the upper points of each triangle and also finished with a pretty ribbon rosette. It is quite a pretty style and something lately fashioned.

Glorified Mash.

Heat a pint of gravy left from a pot roast or make a rich brown sauce, add a cupful each of boiled Spanish chestnuts and French mushrooms, chopped; a teaspoonful each of currant jelly and sherry and large, wafer thin slices of cold meat. Warm through and serve with points of toast, sliced lemon and watercress.

Tea leaves are invaluable as a means of cleaning varnished paint. When sufficient have been laid aside, they should be placed in a tin basin full of water and soaked for half an hour. The tea when strained should be used instead of soap and water to clean the varnished surfaces.

Artificial flowers that have lost their first freshness may be restored by holding them over a pan of boiling water for a minute or two. The steam will be found to freshen them.

CASE FOR VEILS.

A Dainty and Inexpensive Gift For an Easter Offering.

A dainty little case that can be utilized either for veils or to hold the filmy, almost invisible hair nets that many women wear to keep their hair in good condition, may be made from three-quarters of a yard of satin cotton wadding and a soft silk lining and one's favorite sashet.

Take a length of satin twenty-two inches long and ten inches wide; on it place a piece of cotton wadding of similar size, on which sashet has been liberally sprinkled, and a lining of china silk. Turn in the edges and hem neatly around. Or the wadding may be placed between the lining and satin and the three sides sewed on the machine. Turn and sew the end in a blind seam.

Now fold over the ends till two eight-inch pockets are made. If preferred, the whole thing may be bound with a broad silk ribbon on the edges, finished with a fine cord.

When such a case is used for nets have a number of postcards and wind each separately on a card and slip them in the pockets. These cards may also be covered with silk where the case is intended for a gift; but, as a rule, the plain cardboard is more satisfactory. Nets so preserved can be kept for a long time as fresh as when received from the hairdresser.

For veils make the case wider, about eighteen inches, keeping the other proportions the same. Then roll cardboard into narrow rolls an inch in diameter and just long enough that they will slip easily into the pockets. If veils are wound smoothly on these rolls and put away in the scented case each time they are taken off their life will be prolonged many weeks.

LEARNING TO WALK.

How to Teach Baby the Art of Standing Alone.

By the time he is eleven months old baby will usually try to stand alone or even walk a few steps, and before this age no effort should be made to hasten him in this development. He may be a week or more occasionally scrambling with his feet and holding to a chair without showing the slightest inclination to walk. Walking he will do in time, and once he becomes fascinated with the joy it is well to watch that he does not overdo and strain the leg muscles, not to mention weaken the bones.

When an infant is learning to walk tenders are excellent, for they give support that prevents injury from sudden falls. The tender is a movable pen, as it were, in which there is a little seat. As the child begins to walk the seat may be removed, and he can stand upright within the little inclosure that before many days he will try to push in front of him. He must not be allowed to tire himself at this work, and a few minutes at a time is all that should be permitted.

Another first aid to walking is a leading strap. It consists of a strong but soft belt supported by a couple of straps over the shoulders. They may be made at home of webbing or fine leather. Where the belt joins in the back there is a long rein, and with this in her hand a mother can frequently prevent baby from falling and bumping his nose or can guide his footsteps.

IN THE HOME.

An open fire is certainly a happy feature in it.

Readable books and magazines lying around loose are one of the important things.

In the living room there must be a softly shaded light placed low for reading and sewing.

Chairs that can be sat upon are a more necessary essential than some housewives think.

Stilted suits of furniture are a good thing to avoid; also loud papers and highly colored pictures.

A carpet that can be walked on by the family is much better than one preserved for the sacred feet of strangers.

As to tobacco smoke and dust—well, here have been homes with them and places without them that utterly failed to be homes.

Cheerfulness and love and mutual accommodation as to tastes go further to make a real home than overzealous spotlessness and everlasting oversight.

Nursery Dishes.

A certain amount of entertainment is provided for children by the dishes which are designed especially for the nursery. Cups and plates, pitchers, bowls and mugs have fascinating girls and boys pictured in the costumes children of today have learned to know and love from seeing them in story books and illustrated papers. The new nursery dishes have a plain ground, a yellowish brown, cream or white, and the figures are displayed in borders or in large characters on the sides. Children love having their milk brought in a cream colored mug decorated with a quaint little fairy story girl. Part of the fun of dinner in the nursery is guessing the stories to fit the characters.

To Curl Hair Quickly.

To curl hair quickly by artificial means it must be thoroughly clean and free from oils. Then part the hair, run a damp—not wet—comb through it and roll on piece of rolled newspaper. The paper must be a perfect cylinder—not flat—and the hair very loosely rolled over it and the points pinned together. It will be sufficiently curled to dress in half an hour. The secret is to merely dampen the hair. Many make it too wet, and it takes several hours for it to dry out.
