NO DEPUTY APPOINTED

The attention of The Examiner has just been called to the fact that Lake county is without any representative of the district attorney's office.

It appears that D. V. Kuykendall, of Klamath Falls, was elected to the office for this district comprising the counties of Klamath and Lake. His home is in Klamath Falls, 100 miles from Lakeview. It is a physical impossibility for one man to attend to the demands made upon the district attorney's office for these counties of such great area, and when distances of travel are so great, and the time consumed in making trips on official business. Noting is more patent than that these two counties, each should have an attorney to attend to matters that are liable at any time to come before the district attorney's office.

While this law does not require that the incumbent of the office shall appoint a deputy, it has been the custom of former occupants of the office to do so, as a matter of public convenience. Mr. W. J. Moore, of this town, while district attorney appointed a deputy at Klamath Falls. Indeed, it is believed that since the creation of the county at no time before has the district attorney, whether of Lake or Klamath, failed to appoint a deputy, an act so far neglected by the present incumbent.

Owing to the fact that there is no deputy for district attorney for Lake county, the county court in matters of great necessity, as in case of insane or criminal persons, has had to appoint one of our local attorneys to act in such capacity, a matter of course that brings the question of expense therefor as charged to the county.

In view of this conditions of things, and because of piling up additional cost upon the taxpayers of this county, it would seem that Mr. Kuykendall would see the imperative necessity of appointing a deputy for Lake county.

Meanwhile, if such a thing be possible, the large and growing demands of Lake County are such as call for the establishment of a separate district; and it is probable that this also is the case with Klamath county.

MR. TAFT NOTIFIED

A dispatch from Cincinnati, Ohio of the 28 ult says William H. Taft was today officially notified of his nomination for president by the Republican National Convention at Chicago. The notification speech was made by William Warner of Missouri, who said in part:

"I cannot, sir, complete the discharge of this most agreeable duty without assuring you of the high respect in which you are held not only by those of your own political faith, but by your fellow citizens without regard to party—of their admiration of your ability, manifested throughout your public service; of their knowledge of the preparation which will bring to the discharge of the high and difficult duties of President; of their belief in your deep conviction of the equality of all men before the law, and in the practical application of that principle by any administration of which you may be the head, the rule by which every official act of Mr. Roosevelt as President, has been squared, which has won for him the confidence and respect of his countrymen throughout the land, and which has brought to him at all times their unquestioned and earnest support. It was his universal application of the rule which caused his party, in National convention, to pay him the following just and splendid tribute of approval."

In replying to the speech of Senator Warner and gentlemen of the Committee—I am deeply sensible of the honor which the Republican National convention conferred upon me in the nomination which you formally tender. I accept it of with the full appreciation of the responsibility it imposes.

"Gentlemen, the strength of the Republican cause in the campaign at hand is in the fact that we represent policies—essential to the reform of known abuses, to the continuance of liberty and to prosperity and that we are determined to maintain them and carry them on.

"For more than ten years the country has passed through an epoch of material development far beyond that have ever occurred in the world before. Insits course certain evils have crept in

"The man who formulated the expression of popular conscience and who led the movement for political reform was president Roosevelt. He laid down the doctrine that the rich violator of the law should be as amenable to restraint and punishment as the offender without wealth and without influence and will proceed by recommending legislation and directing executive action to make that principles good in actual performance."

SECOND CHOICE VOTING

At the election in June the people of this state adopted a constitutional amendment which was and is commonly called a proportional representation amendment. If asked what the purpose of this amendment is, says the Oregonian, the ordinary voter would say that it is designed to give minority parties representation in proportion to the number of voters. But the amendment contains other provisions, of which we shall perhaps learn much as time passes. The first part of the amendment provides for proportional representation. The amendment also says that "provision may be made by law for the voter's direct or indirect expression of his first, second or additional choices among candidates for any office. For an office which is filled by the election of one person, it may be required by law that the person elected shall be the final choice of a majority of the electors voting for the candidates for that office. These principals may be applied by law to nominations by political parties and organizations."

This provision for an expression of second choice is now in effect in the direct primary law in the state of Washington and in September we shall see a practical demonstration of how it works. The purpose of this portion of the amendment, and of a law which may be enacted under the amendment, is to prevent the nomination of persons who are the choice of a small minority of the voters. Such a system of voting would have made a great difference in the result of the nomination for Senator in this state in 1906. In the primary contest in that year there were five candidates. Mr. Bourne winning over Mr. Cake by a few votes. As everyone knows, it was a Bourne and anti-Bourne fight. Mr. Bourne had a certain definite support, but the opposition to him was divided among four candidates. As a result, Bourne received more votes than any one of opponents. He was the first choice of those who voted for him, but he was not the second choice of any considerable number of voters. Those who wanted him nominated voted for him; those who did not want him scattered their votes and wasted them. Under a plan which permitted the expression of a second choice. Mr. Cake would have received many second-choice votes from the supporters of Lowell, Smith and Watson, while Mr. Bourne would have received very few. The vote at the primary election stood thus:

Bourne	12,877
Cake	12,252
Lowell	7,055
Smith	6,383
Watson	4,241
Total	42,808

Mr. Bourne was nominated by about 30 percent of the Republicans of the state. It was a fight with Bourne against the field, and the field votes would have been distributed among the field candidates for a second choice and would not have been given to Bourne. Cake, presumably, would have had the larger number of but in Eastern Oregon both Smith and Lowell would have been the second choice of large numbers of voters who made Bourne and Cake first choice. There was no particular objection to these candidates, or to Watson, so that they and Mr. Cake could reasonably expect to receive second choice votes from all sources. Mr. Bourne could not expect to get any considerable number of second choice votes, for those who did not vote for him were against him. It is quite possible that if second choice votes had been added to first choice votes, Smith and Lowell, as well as Cake, would have had more votes than Bourne, for, where a second choice is permitted at all, it is made compulsory. This is necessary in order to make the system effective.

The Bourne supporters would have had to distribute their second choice votes somewhere in the field. Under the second choice system a ballot upon which no second choice is marked cannot be counted at all.

These figures and circumstances are set forth as an example of how the second choice plan of voting might probably and would work. Whether it is a desirable plan or not remains for experience to determine. It is designed to permit voters not only to express themselves in favor of certain candidates, but, to some extent, against certain others. It increases the chance of defeating a candidate who may be particularly objectionable. Under the Washington law, a candidate must receive 40 per cent of the votes in order to be nominated by the first choice votes. If no candidate receives 40 percent, the second choice votes are added to the first, and a comparison again is made, and the person receiving the highest number of votes is declared the nominee. The Oregon amendment permits enactment of a law which will provide for a third choice as well as a second, and permits a requirement that the successful candidate shall be the choice of over 50 percent of the voters. The amendment does not require that such a law shall be enacted, but it permits it to be placed upon the statute books.

The Independence or Hearst party which met at Chicago last week placed in nomination, Thomas L. Higgen, of Springfield, Mass. for president and John Temple Groves of Georgia for vice president. Mr. Higgen is not so well known but Mr. Groves is known as an able writer, orator and lecturer. It was Mr. Groves who at the last election moved to make the vote for President Roosevelt unanimous. He is a Democrat, but not of the wild and woolly stripe.

The Oregonian says: That little roast Judge Grosscup handed to Judge Landis was not a circumstance compared with the scorching President Roosevelt administered to Grosscup. And, what is more important, the people agreed with Roosevelt.

Smiles and Squalls

A fifteen year old Illinois boy suicided because he did not live happily with his 12 year old bride, to whom he was married only two months since. There is a moral here but we can't tell it, as we seem to have lost the combination.

The ladies of Portland have declared that they will not wear aigrettes—will give the birds a chance to live undisturbed in their work of catching the destructive worm and insect. But how about the latter? We knew a Frenchman up in Quebec who would not kill the animals Bobby Burns denominated "crawling feriles" because: "Poor little ting—he like to live is well as me"

The Czar exports his recalcitrant legislative helpers—the Douma—to Siberia, and lets them lay their own time to die, be it long or short. The Shah turns rapid-fire cannon upon his parliamentarians, and by so doing gets rid of them more expeditiously. His method daubs up the building some, but it works to his liking and the results are the same as those employed by that Man of Peace, the Czar.
