

A WONDERFUL YIELD OF WHEAT

The Examiner is in receipt of an article from some person interested in adding fame to the state of Idaho so far as her capacity for producing a new wheat is concerned. It is given in the following paragraphs, and we will state that several other papers have given space to a similar article, so we can not be accused of duping our readers in the interest of the said-to-be originator of the wheat mentioned:

"Some one were to tell the average wheat farmer that it is possible to raise a wheat crop of 5,000,000,000 of bushels on United States farms in one year he would brand his informant as a liar pure and simple, and yet the farmers in America planted a wonderful new wheat that has been perfected by Abraham Adams of Jubilee, Idaho, that is just what the yield would have been this season, based upon the probable crop of the year.

"Connected with this assertion is the greatest wheat story that has ever been told, far greater than the wildest dreams of the wheat king in the security of his vast domain and the demand for his golden harvest. The United States will sight millions of money for Alaska, and yet the great gold payment Alaska has returned sinks into insignificance when compared with farmer Adam's Alaska wheat which in the secret and far away fields of Idaho, he has rationally brought to perfection until he has given to the world a wheat that will grow under average conditions, 200 bushels to the acre.

This is a large assertion, and hardly believable were it not for the fact that it is backed up by surveys of land and output of threshers, and the yield equality based up by the Idaho Experiment Station at Moscow, Idaho, and being followed up by other stations eager to make a test to see if they can beat the yield of the originator. The yield is only part of the great discovery, for this Alaska wheat is both a winter and spring wheat and, when planted as either, is a hard wheat that will grade as No. 1. Imagine a hard winter wheat for the great soft wheat belts of the country, which with this new wheat can compete with the hard wheat lands of the great Northwest.

A brief history of this amazing miracle seed is given in a few words by its modest originator, a plain man who farms in a plain way, but who, all his life, until old age, has lived with and for his wheat and has finally given the world the greatest gift any country has ever been responsible for.

Mr. Adams' first perfect head of wheat came to him in 1904 from an experimental plant of the spring of that year. This seed he planted that year as winter wheat, and the next year he secured seven pounds of seed from that planting. From the seven pounds planted in the spring of 1906, he harvested 545 pounds, an increase over 77 times or basic principle of 222 times to the acre. Here comes another remarkable story of this wonderful wheat. The 1545 pounds were sown in the fall, and that summer there were terrific hail storms which put the Blue and Blue Stem wheat so much to the bad that many fields were never harvested, yet from the Alaska wheat plots there was gathered a crop which threshed out 53,000 pounds; this when all other wheat was rendered practically worthless.

"At about this time the Idaho station became interested in the wheat and asked to make a test. Mr. Adams carried a sample to the station at Moscow, and after a most thorough test, received the following reply: 'Examining the samples made upon the sample of Alaska wheat which you brought to this laboratory, I have this to say: The kernels from the fall-sown wheat were plump and sound and doubtless will grade as No. 1. Judging from the chemical and physical condition of this sample, I will say it will probably take rank with the best grade of Blue Stem for flour making purposes. The sample grown from spring sown wheat showed by chemical analysis a somewhat higher protein content (this being an indication of its probable strength for bread-making purposes). I am inclined to think that the wheat you have here is equal if not superior to our Blue Stem for flour making purposes. I should like to make a mill test when ever you can send sufficient quantity for that purpose. J. S. Jones, State Chemist.'

"In appearance, the standing wheat is strong and vigorous, with a corn-like growth. Its head in the bearing part is about four inches long to over that, and about an inch to an inch and a half broad at its broadest part. The kernel is about four times the size of hard wheat and a clear light cream color without a dark spot, as clean as hulled peanuts in color. It is almost absolutely frost protected and it would be a hard frost that would touch it. Its sturdiness makes it impervious to ordinary storm or light hail. It is ordinarily grown on high, dry, unirrigated land, and will stand drought as no known wheat will. Add all these qualities to its enormous yielding propensities, and it must be admitted that the world has been turned topsy turvy so far as wheat raising is concerned.

"California, where so much soft wheat is grown, is beginning to take up the Alaska wheat, for they see the opportunity of a hard wheat yield. Farmers in Missouri and the east and in the south, here soft wheat is all that can be raised with success, are beginning to think of what is in store for them when some neighbor convinces them, by making a first trial, that the wonderful Alaska wheat story is not so much a fabrication as the first story of seedless oranges was thought to be.

"As a last test, Mr. Adams has sent single heads of wheat to other parts of the country where he had men he could trust to plant and ascertain the result. Reports are just coming to him, and he finds that in other states his Alaska wheat does better than on its home soil. In Alabama a head was planted December 31, was up January 30, waist high April 1, with leaves seven eighths of an inch broad, and July 7 was harvested. It showed to be hard wheat of a fine quality, and the one head yielded the same as the first head planted in Idaho.

"One Oregon experimental station offered the originator $5 for a pound of his wheat, a rate of over $300 a bushel. The old gentleman did not prize the money. He only wanted to be sure that some attack was not striving to get away some of his seed. He required a contract that the state would not dispose of any wheat need in the test, and upon securing that, sent the seed asked for along. Now the United States experimenters are becoming interested, and next year's report will have much to say about Abraham Adams and his wheat and the old gentleman will at one step come as much into prominence as Luther Burbank, who, although accomplishing hundreds of miracles with growing things, has been eclipsed by this man who has done what the average farmer will believe is an impossibility."

Excellent Health Advice Mrs. M. M. Davison, of No. 79 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for head ache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under Guarantee at A. L. Thornton's drug store, 50c.

AN EASTERN MAGICIAN.

The Feat a Ceylon Fakir is Said to Have Performed.

This curious picture of an eastern magician is from Caroline Corner's "Ceylon, the Paradise of Adam." The fakir forthwith commenced to unpeck the burden on his back, the principal item being a bamboo framework or scaffolding. This he held with his right hand, while he mounted step by step of bamboos. At the summit, a height perhaps of eleven feet, he paused, with arms extended, to effect a balance. For some reason or other the frame work remained perfectly steady and perpendicular, while the fakir stretched himself out like a spider on its web. At intervals on the bamboos were heavy nails, rusty, but sharp at the point. These nails distinctly penetrated the man's mahogany colored flesh when he stretched himself out on the framework.

"Thus he remained, a hideous wound made by each nail, from which the purple blood flowed, lying there for the space of ten minutes or so, except for the blood a lifeless figure of clay. Then, muttering some strange gibberish, animation returned, and, making movements so that the nails were extricated from the wounds, the fakir with his toes kicked away the scaffolding and remained himself alone unsupported in midair.

"Yes, there this world creature remained, his lean, chocolate colored limbs apparently stiff and entangled, his eyes fixed upward and glazed. 'It's a fact,' said Cynthia in low tones of wonder, 'at home they would say we were hypnotized.'"

KOREAN ETIQUETTE.

A Native's New Year's Call Upon an American Lady.

The native Koreans, who have become familiar with foreigners and their ways, take very readily to the custom of calling—and eating—on New Year's day, and one American lady had a very peculiar experience with a native official in Seoul on New Year's day. She was keeping open house and had made preparations for receiving her guests in the proper manner.

Among other things she had made a very excellent and rather large cake, which she expected to distribute in small slices to her callers. A party of native gentlemen arrived, and, having given one of them a cup of tea, she placed this fine cake before him, with an invitation to help himself.

She then went with the others to another room and was gone some time. When she returned she saw, to her horror, that her cake had all but disappeared. The native, according to his ideas of etiquette, had done his best not to leave any of the eatables set before him.

The lady's vexation was banished by a feeling of pity for the poor fellow, who was quite sick from overfeeding. It is said that this call was his first and last that day. He declared to his friends that foreigners must be "all stomach" if they could go from house to house and "eat that much every time."—London Mail.

Getting Back at England.

"The English will ridicule us for saying 'vury' and 'turrible' and 'mamma' when we go abroad," said a school-ma'am, "but we will have our answer ready."

"We'll ask them why, when they want to know if we desire a cab, they say: 'Fo walla, sa?'

"We'll ask them why they say 'pawtah' and 'waitah' and 'indiar' and 'dear'."

"And, not forgetting the 'h,' we'll quote at them the dialogue between the mistress and the new maid: 'Is your name Anna or Hannah?' 'Hannah, mum.' 'Oh, Hannah?' 'No, mum; Hannah.' 'Hannah, you said.' 'No, Hannah.' 'Spell it.' 'Hay, hen, hen, hay?'"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Safe Course.

"That was a great speech Mundy made," said the associate editor of the old line partisan paper. "I suppose we ought to have an editorial showing that he was mistaken throughout, but really I can't see how we shall be able to do it. His logic is unassailable. He has simply knocked the platform from under our candidate."

"I know it," replied the editor, "but we can't let it go. Let's see—oh, just refer to it as flapdoodle. That always satisfies the man who votes the straight ticket and gives our opponents no chance to come back at us."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Kaffir Greeting.

"Saku bona" are the first words a stranger learns of the Kaffir vocabulary. The expression is the common form of salutation used by the natives, and its literal translation is, "I see you." It is considered a mark of respect not to give the greeting immediately, the delay showing the reverence in which the native holds his visitor.

Chronic Diarrhoea Relieved.

Mr. Edward E. Henry, with the United States Express Co., Chicago, writes, "Our General Superintendent handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy some time ago to check an attack on the old chronic diarrhoea. I have used it since that time and cured many on our trains who have been sick. I am an old soldier who served with Rathford B. Hayes and William McKinley four years in the 23rd Ohio Regiment, and have no ailment except chronic diarrhoea, which this remedy stops at once." For sale by Daly and Hall.
