OUR NAVAL POLICY

The naval policy is going to be one of the big and burning questions at the next session of congress. The people who last winter made the great fight for the four battleships and finally as a compromise received the assurance of two each year hereafter, are expected, in view of expression in which some of them have indulged, and of shiftings in international naval relations and programs, to be dissatisfied with that arrangement, and to insist on three or four new fighting monsters at the next session.

There are several reasons why the fight is going to be pushed with great vigor this time. One of the most important, though the greater navy advocates mention it only in undertones, is that the coming session will be the last of Theodore Roosevelt's vigorous handling of the big stick. The president favors a powerful navy. When he was secretary of the navy, he got the forty-eight-battle-ship, two fleet ideas in his head, and set at work to realize that ideal. He really started at that time the program which has brought realization in sight. Comes now Admiral Evans and declares that our ships are good enough, only three should be forty eight of them; a fleet of sixteen in commission on each ocean at all times, with eight in reserve on each ocean.

There is no question but that, owing to circumstances not necessary to mention, a big navy is a guaranty of peace. In reality it is a sort of a national insurance. If it prevents a war it will be worth all it costs. If a war should break out, the nation that is prepared best always wins. So long as other nations will not disarm, it would be suicidal for America to revert into a condition of unpreparedness.

CONSERVE THE FORESTS

The speakers at the recent conference of Governors upon conservation of the natural resources of the country were among the ablest and wisest men of America. Many subjects were discussed, among them the continuous deterioration of our soils which is now going on. This has occurred in all parts of the earth as they have been successfully occupied by man and continued with great distress to the people as the land became less and less able to support its inhabitants. Hitherto, however, there has been various sources of relief. Wars and epidemics of pestilence have swept off the people and reduced the drain upon the land. Wars are now coming to be too expensive to be endured, and we are learning to stay the ravages of the disease. Never before was the population of the earth increasing so rapidly in spite of the falling off in the fecundity of decadent races. Hitherto when one part of the earth became overcrowded, there have been new lands to occupy. It is now becoming hard to find them in climates which are comfortable to most of us, and new lands can be found only in scattering patches in the United States. Of course, the United States can easily double its population without greatly impairing the national standard of comfort, but when we have done it we may be sure that the greater part of the world will be carrying all the inhabitants which it can support, and how shall the Americans of that day be fed, and a herewithal shall they be clothed? We may put aside this question. Our descendants cannot. Sound statesmanship and a decent regard for posterity demand that by good agriculture and in all other ways we conserve the fertility of our soils. In the words of a recent writer, "Our material salvation will not be made sure until the masses of men conducting our 6,000,000 farms are intelligent enough to understand and adopt the methods of soil conservation which the experience for ages and the researches of experts show are most effective and permanent in their results. To accomplish this we must do what no country or age has ever done—educate our entire population to be progressive and up-to-date farmers. The only way to accomplish this is to begin with the country children and the only place in which the new gospel of material salvation can be so taught so as to reach and convert everybody is the public school."

Truly some men have greatness and riches, too, thrust upon them. A Chicago man, H. E. Perry, made a loan some years ago, and took as security 128 acres of Texas land. He did not consider it worth $1000, and was surprised one day to get an offer of $50,000. The figure was so greatly in excess of what he considered it worth, that he thought he would investigate before selling. The result was that he found the land contained one of the biggest quicksilver deposits in the world, and it is now valued at millions.

U. S. Senator Ankeny, of Washington who owed his political prominence to his plethoric purse, has been defeated by Congressman Jones. The direct primaries are in force all over the Union, the Ankeny stripe of politician will not find the doors at the United States so easy to enter as now and the people, mayhap, will be represented as of old, by brains instead of money bags, now too commonly the case.

The Odd Fellows of Princeton have offered $50 reward for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person who recently wrote a letter to Rev. Housel threatening to blow him up with dynamite. Rev. Housel is an Odd Fellow and it seems the lodge is highly displeased with the letter he received.

Gen. Fred Grant reports the health of the army poorer than that of any civilized nation, and attributes it to the closing of the canteen which permits the modern use of light wines and beer at the post instead and drives them to the groceries outside where only the vilest of liquors is dispensed.

The people of Cuba are deemed ready for self government, says Governor Macdon. One of the things he cites in their favor is that the people now own all the telephone lines, and that they favor all public utilities being in the hands of the government.

The president has proclaimed the reservation of strips of land along the Canadian border 30 feet wide for the better enforcement of the customs and immigration laws. This applies only to unappropriated lands.

Gans got badly whipped again by Nelson, the former being knocked out in the 21st round. Gans now says he is out of the flat game forever.

Track laying is now under way on the N. C. O. from Lakeview to Alturas. It is expected trains will be running to Alturas within a month. It will bring the cars to within 60 miles of Lakeview, and will cut off the roughest part of the stage trip. It is really not much to be thankful for, but it is something a little less onerous than present conditions.

FORESTRY INQUIRY

T. T. Monger, a Forestry Assistant Making Investigations

STUDYING THE JACK PINE TREE

Endeavoring to Learn Why this Variety Crowds the Yellow Out

The Bend Bulletin says: T. T. Monger, forest assistant is at Rosland making a careful investigation into the reasons why the lodge pole pine (or black jack) makes such a rapid growth in that section, apparently to the detriment of other trees more valuable. The lodge pole pine is an undesirable variety and it is hoped that Mr. Monger's investigation will determine whether these trees have driven out the yellow pine by mere force of number in certain localities or whether there are certain soil or water conditions that favor the growth of the lodge pole while they hinder that of the yellow pine.

Mr. Monger was sent out by the forest department at Washington in response to a request by Inspector Kent for a report on this question. He has already begun his work at Rosland and is greatly interested in his investigations. He will carefully examine the entire belt of lodge pole pine, continuing his studies southward into California. As yet his investigations have not been extensive enough to lead him to any conclusion.

An opinion is held by many at Rosland that the growth of the lodge pole pine is due to the nearness of the water level to the surface of the ground, and that while this favors the growth of the lodge pole pine it hinders the yellow pine. Those who hold to this opinion base their belief on the fact that the presence of water, and also that the yellow pines are so much more numerous and much better developed on high, rolling ground. Mr. Monger is a scientist trained in forest matters, and his report will be awaited with much interest.

Goes Out For His Health

H. R. Cunningham, one of the Gold-run mining men, is in town, on his way to San Francisco and Portland for his health. He says the work of driving the tunnel on the Butte is progressing nicely under contract. Orders have been issued to allow no one in the tunnel, and it is probable that this embargo will never be removed, as far as concerns the outside world.

RETURNED UNWASHED AND INTERRIFIED

A School Ma'am Would Not Remain in Alturas, a Bathless Town

The Alturas Republican of the 4th, inst., has this amusing item to which The Examiner will add that the lady should have come to Lakeview, where we have bath rooms.

Yesterday, Miss Stout arrived here from below, with the intention of taking the position of teacher of the business department of the high school.

It is reported that the lady searched all around town yesterday, to find a suitable place in which to take a bath and not being able to find such a place, was compelled to return unwashed, to a more luxuriant part of the state. We have often advocated a bath house for Alturas and now, because the good people here have erred in not taking the advice of the Republican, the town gets another "black eye." Hereafter, the board of education should see to it that they engage only such teachers as do not find it necessary to take a bath.

Two sheep herders in Harney County got into a quarrel over the mixing of two different bands of sheep, and the result was that John C. Mudland shot and killed Lorenzo P. Romas.

BAD ACCIDENTS FROM RIDING

A Chapter of Broken Bones Re-Up in Crook County

Several accidents from riding horses occurred at Bend last week. An old man named J. K. Terrel, was thrown from a horse breaking his collar bone and pelvic bone, and otherwise bruising him, so that it is feared he will die. Orval Davis, a ranch foreman had his collar bone broken by his horse stepping into a badger hole, and Maggie Allingham, a 13 year old girl, while hounding cattle had her arm broken near the shoulder by having her horse step into a badger hole.

A Traveling Man's Experience

"I must tell you my experience on an East bound O. R. & N. R. train from Pendleton to La Grande, Ore., writes Sam A. Garber, a well known traveling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other traveling men when one of them went out into the coach and came back and said, "There's a woman sick unto death in the car. I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic; her hands and arms were drawn up so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her what they could. I went to my suitcase and got my little Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I never travel without it, ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass poured some water into it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her rubbing her hands and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into La Grande where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed but by the time the train ran into La Grande she was all right and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." For sale by Daly & Hall.

Smiles and Squalls

By "THE VERDANT ONE"

A Minnesota humorist says Bryan is the "Fearless Leader," Chapin the "Feeble Leader," Debs, the "Reckless Leader," and Taft, the "Feeble Leader."

Some one wanted to know "What is the difference between Bryan and Buffalo Bill, and the answer is "Buffalo Bill has a show."

A St. Louis woman found a rattlesnake upstairs in the nursery just ready to strike her baby. She grabbed a kettle of hot water, and scalded his snakeskin so that she took all the fight out of him, and then killed him with a hot pin. Score another for the ubiquitous batpin.

A "Hobo" was arrested at Hood River while ago and when searched $1.00 was found on his person. He was dirty, unkempt and ragged. He probably turned out to be some unknown "Jack London" gathering experience for future magazine publishers.

An Indian doctor, living on the Pitt river, was found with his head chopped off. Some of his patients had died and relatives expressed their disapproval in this summary way. If the white man should emulate his red brother in a similar way, there would be a falling off instantly in the registration of students in medical schools.

A Sure-enough Knocker

Not even a scar remained." Guaranteed for piles, sores, burns etc. 25c. at A. L. Thornton's drug store.
