In Forbidden Places.

A very large mastiff at one end of a leash and a very small girl at the other end formed a combination which attracted the attention of a casual pedestrian in a quiet side street.

The little girl doubtless thought that she was taking the dog out for an airing, but the big animal himself appeared to have the impression that he was the leader of the expedition, and beyond question, the balance of the party was entirely on his side.

Suddenly, either from a whim of his own or because somebody had been in the habit of taking him there, he darted through the swinging doors of a corner saloon. The girl looked horrified, but, clinging determinedly to her end of the leash, she followed her charge, and as the doors swung shut behind her the casual pedestrian heard this exasperated remonstrance:

"Oh, darnedest! Don't you know ladies don't go there? It's only a place for men!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Queer Feeding.
"Come and watch me feed my starfish."

The curator of the aquarium led the reporter to a tank where a half dozen starfish tripped over the sandy bottom on slim brown fingers.

"Grub time, boys," he said, and he dropped into the tank six mussels. The fish ran to the mussels. Each applied his stomach to the hinge at the back of the shell. Silence and immobility ensued.

"The gastric juice of the starfish," said the curator, "is now melting the hinges of flesh that hold the mussel shells together. Ah, look, there's one melted now. There's another. It's the most powerful gastric juice in the world."

Old Time Drunkenness.
In reviewing "The Early Married Life of Maria Josepha, Lady Stanley," the London Spectator comments on the light in which drunkenness was regarded at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Lady Sheffield, who received this account of the festivities, replies: "I would have given a great deal to be present. There is nothing I love so much as such sort of festivities, where one has the satisfaction of knowing that one makes one's friends happy as well as drunk."

Clay and the Salary Grab.
"Quinn," said an old member one day, "I heard you worrying about the mileage. Did you ever hear the story of Clay and the salary grab?"

"No," I replied.
"Clay was speaker," he continued, "along about 1816, the crowd raised their salaries to $1500 a year. There was a great howl all over the country, and when Clay reached home in Kentucky he found old one armed John Pope, a Federalist, out after his scalp to beat the band and all the Clay adherents ominously silent. Worried and anxious, Clay sought out his old barber, who had always been enthusiastic in his advocacy and who happened to be an Irishman. 'I trust I may count on your hearty support, as usual?' Clay asked. 'Faith, Mr. Clay,' said the Irish barber, 'I think I shall vote at this time for the man who can get but one hand into the treasury.'"—Success Magazine.

Needed a Big Dose.
The president of the Walters' club of New York in a recent argument on tipping said to his opponent sharply: "Your reply is altogether beside the point and irrelevant. It reminds me of a woman's reply in a German court. This woman was accused of poisoning her husband. The prosecuting attorney said to her: 'You have heard the evidence. The body contained enough arsenic to kill ten persons. What have you to say?' 'My husband,' the woman answered, 'was a big eater.'"—Life.

Trouble Ahead.
Parke—Old man, we've known each other for years, and it does seem strange that our wives have never met. Don't you think it would be a good idea to bring this about? Lane—Seems to me that's rather a hard way of doing it. "Doing what?" "Getting rid of each other."—Life.

Throw a Brick on It First.
Arctic Explorer's Wife—Goodby, John, dear. Arctic Explorer—Farewell, my love. Arctic Explorer's Wife—And, John, be sure that the ice is perfectly safe.—Judge.

A Ducal Estate.
The park in which Chatsworth stands is a dozen miles in circumference. The facade of the house is a length of 1,500 feet.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Whether riches really have wings or not, they certainly are hard to overtake on foot.—Dallas News.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Buttons Prominent Features on Coats and Frocks—Egyptian Scarabaeus. Buttons occupy a position of importance this season. The large handsome sort are perhaps the most distinctly picturesque feature of the new coats, and all the afternoon frocks and linen costumes are given an "air" by the use of large and small buttons.

The scarabaeus, ancient Egypt's royal insect, now finds favor for hatpins, rings, scarfpins and even for bracelets. The kimono sleeve is but little changed. All of these new draped sleeves require adjusting rather than fitting. They do not fit; they hang. If the novice be an adept at copying, they may be made at home, but not without a pattern.

Trimming for stout women should follow vertical lines, acquiring as far as possible that long and unbroken effect.

A BOY'S SUIT—3688. A pattern of this boy's suit may be had in four sizes—for boys from four to ten years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number (3688), and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail.

Many mothers do make boys' clothes and perhaps many more would if they understood how to go about it. To cut, fit and finish the blouse and trousers is no more trouble than it would be to make the ordinary sailor suit for a schoolgirl; but, as is the case with all garments, the final good appearance depends upon the execution of the detail. If these details are carried out to perfection and the suit illustrated is taken as a model, there is no reason why success is not assured.

JUDIC CHOLLET.
FRIBBLES OF FASHION.
Novelties in Ribbons—Scant Sleeves In Vogue—Cotton Blouse.

There are absolute novelties in ribbons, and one of the most beautiful is in blue brocade with raised figures of roses worked in gold. The ribbon is enormously expensive, selling well up in price, but looking at it critically one cannot but be struck with the idea that it could be easily duplicated by hand. A skillful needle worker could buy three yards of brocade blue ribbon, and with a spool of gold thread one could work the roses so that they would stand out in beautiful relief.

Many of the new sleeves are cut scant and fit the arm quite closely.

PRETTY JUMPER WAIST—3564. A pattern of this jumper model is cut in six sizes—from 32 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number (3564), and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail.

Some escape the elbow, while others are finished a few inches below it. This would seem to foreshadow a return of the tight fitting plain sleeve, but as yet it is almost invariably accompanied by a shoulder drape, or an additional short sleeve cut on the bell lines hangs over the close fitting one and partially discloses it.

Illustrative of an exceptionally pretty jumper waist is the design shown here. The pattern can be used in making new material or remodeling the blouse of last season's shirt waist costume. In the latter case the neck can be cut away and finished with a shaped band of the same or a contrasting material.
