Commercial Printing

WE use the best cuts, the best type, the best presses, the best ink, the best paper and the best workmen, in the production of our printing. THAT'S WHY

Our Printing Gets Business

MONEY paid out for good printing—the kind that brings results—is just as much and just as good an investment as that put into goods on your shelves, or the material and machinery in your plant. While that money paid out for the ordinary kind, is money wasted, thrown away, just as it would be if spent in a midnight debauch. And the result is largely the same, a sore head accompanied by a gone feeling, when you come to.

IF YOU WANT RESULTS— TRY SOME OF OUR QUALITY

The Marlin
Repeating Shotgun

This new 6-shot model is the simplest, surest, and fastest 12-gauge repeater made. It has the solid top, side ejection and double extractor—special Marlin features of comfort and convenience. The closed-in breech keeps the action clean and the shells dry—keeps out rain, snow, dirt, leaves twigs and sand.

The new take-down construction allows you to take gun apart in ten seconds for cleaning or packing, yet the joint is always as firm and rigid as in a solid frame, non-take-down gun. The fast forearm fits your hand and helps quick operation.

The full choked guns are guaranteed close-shooting, hard-hitting guns, and are unequalled for ducks, geese, foxes and all long-range work.

A circular giving large illustration, with full description of this handsome new gun, sent free on request or with complete 30-page catalog for 3 stamps.

THE JOKER WORSTED

"What was the matter with you the other day? You were going down the street in a hansom. You were without a hat. Your face was dusty, and your nose was bleeding. Your collar was—" "Stop!" he said. "It was cleverness brought me to the condition in which you saw me. I've been getting cleverer and cleverer of late."
"Do get on with the story."
"I say that it was a dirty trick of Jennings to run away like that. And those silly books about Theodore Hook and other practical jokers ought to be stopped. If I hadn't read that stuff about the man letting that he'd make the other stranger invite him to dinner and so on, I could have kept quiet, but I didn't. I kept on having clever ideas. Well, my idea about the ticket inspector wasn't bad, though that wasn't what."
"Tell me about the ticket inspector first."
"Oh, that was at Baker street. I saw there was an inspector on the boat, and having a first class ticket, I got into a second class carriage. My idea was to tell him that I hadn't got a second class ticket, but was quite willing to change into the third. Then he'd say that I could not do that and should have to pay the excess, the difference between second and third. Then I should have replied that I wouldn't pay and that I would change. Then when he tried to stop me from getting out I should have shown him my first class ticket. See?"
"Yes."
"Can't you imagine what a silly goat that inspector would have looked? Well, he came to my carriage, and he said, 'Tickets, please.' I began, 'I haven't got a second class ticket, but—' Then he interrupted me. He said, 'Show your ticket, please,' speaking quite civilly, as if he were being patient with a child that couldn't understand. Then I had to show it, and he didn't seem surprised or amused or pained. He said, 'Thank you,' and went on. Other people in the carriage smiled a good deal, and I rather fancy they were smiling at me. These things don't work out the way you have planned them beforehand. That was what was wrong with the signaling in the park."
"What was that?"
"That was what brought me to the condition in which you saw me yesterday. I had seen the soldiers signaling in the park. They fool about with flags and notebooks, and crowds come round and get frightfully interested. Well, my idea was to do some bogus signaling that didn't mean anything and take in the crowd. I meant to write to the papers about it afterward, so that the crowd would know they'd been fooled and get mad with themselves. That's the last thing, by the way, I ever do with Jennings. I told him about it, and he was a good deal amused and said he'd join in it. We put on blue serge suits and yachting caps, so that we looked official, with a dash of the navy about it. We had no flags, because we thought it would be more fun to signal with our arms and legs, but we both carried thundering big notebooks. We took up our positions in the park about fifty yards apart and took care to be near a path where plenty of people would be passing. Jennings signaled first. He stood on his left leg and worked an imaginary bicycle with his right. Then he rapped his knees together sharply with both hands alternately very quickly. I thought I should have died of laughing, but I controlled myself and pretended to take down the meaning of all the signals in my notebook.
"Then it was my turn to signal. I did a windmill action with my right arm and bell pulling with my left. Then I covered my left eye with one hand and stamped with my right foot. I threw in a few more eccentric movements, and of course Jennings pretended to record them. By this time each of us had a little crowd around him. At his end it was almost all children and nursemaids, but at mine there were a good many able-bodied park loafers. Jennings always has all the luck, as you'll see.
"Well, it was a regular bean feast and went beautifully. When the crowd asked me questions I told them not to talk, as it interrupted the signaling, but after a few minutes a big, interfering kind of man came up. He was very quarrelsome and partially intoxicated, but I fancy that he knew something about signaling. He had not watched us for half a minute before he said we were not signaling at all and that the whole thing was a plant. I began to feel a little nervous. Then he snatched my notebook and of course saw that there were no genuine entries in it. I moved away, and that crowd, which seemed much annoyed, moved after me. Jennings, seeing there was trouble on, bolted at once in the most cowardly way instead of coming to help me, and as he had only nursemaids at his end he was all right."
"But you were not?"
"The police got me out of the park in the end and put me into the hansom in which you saw me. I can't understand why the crowd lost its temper over a harmless little joke like that, but it did. Anyway, I've done with these smart tricks now. In future you'll kindly remember that I'm just as big a fool as anybody else."
I promised not to forget it.—Black and White.

In many respects the Toledo Blade is the most remarkable weekly newspaper published in the United States. It is the only newspaper especially edited for National circulation. All current topics made plain in each issue by special editorial matter written from inspection down to date. The only paper published especially for people who do not read daily newspapers, and yet thirst for plain facts. MOTHERS IN FACTORIES.
Ignorance no doubt accounts for much of the waste of infant life, but Lancashire's industrial conditions give her her bad pre-eminence. Mothers who work in the factory cannot rear their children naturally, and the care and the skill and the attention necessary for successful artificial feeding are beyond them.—Manchester Guardian.
