Woman's World

MRS. CLARENCE H. MACKAY

Society Matron Will Serve as Leader in Woman's Rights Cause.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay has unfurled her standard as a leader in this country of the woman suffrage cause. After a novitiate, during which she has studied exhaustively the economic problems of her sex, she has publicly subscribed to the faith and pledged her support to its doctrines.

Although it has been hinted for some time that Mrs. Mackay believed the tenets of suffrage, it was not until recently that she made a public announcement of her conversion. She unfurled her standard in the Roslyn N. Y. public school, where was the scene of her first victory for woman's rights. It was there she won an election as a school trustee, defeating at the polls her male opponent.

Suffragists in this country who shared in the secret have eagerly awaited an opportunity to install Mrs

MRS. CLARENCE MACKAY.

Mackay in a place similar to that occupied in England by the talented Countess of Warwick. Workers in the cause have said that a leader was wanted who combined high social position and acknowledged intellectual attainments—one who would further compel serious attention to the movement and disarm ridicule.

Mrs. Mackay said recently concerning her new faith:

"I have been a convert to the principles of woman suffrage for some time past. I believe that the day is not far distant when success will be attained for the cause in this country. I regard it as inevitable that the American woman suffragist will share in the honors already won by her English sister and that the doctrines will be firmly implanted in all of the English speaking lands."

The Woman Who Is Always Right.

We all know and hate—the woman who lays down the law—and most of us regret the position.

No matter what is under discussion, she has her opinion and does not hesitate to proclaim it. That she knows nothing of the subject makes no difference in her vociferousness.

Her voice is usually rasping, her words strident and her emphasis sharp. She may not intend to be disagreeable, but the effect is not altered by intentions.

The irritation of a disturbed hornets' nest is mild compared with the feelings aroused by the layer down of the law. Even when in the right her wisdom is hated on general principles. She can stir up more opposition than a motion to raise taxes. You go out of your way to thwart her and make yourself uncomfortable doing what she does not wish.

Silent protest or open pugnacity is the usual attitude of her hearers. The good tempered sufferer revels when the town regulator strikes a scrapper.

Tact is not her long suit. The more reason there is for silence the louder is her expression of opinion. Her knowledge of where her own business ends is scant.

It is the layer down of the law who can be depended upon to say the wrong thing every time. She it is who makes it her business to take a meek little wife to task for her husband's shortcomings or widens a breach by telling both combatants their duty.

If only she knew how great is her conceit! Most people find regulating their own lives so difficult that they are slow to think themselves capable of including the rest of mankind in their managing. Seeing both sides is not her chief characteristic. Her way is the right way, and woe to the one who differs! Arguing is as futile as the fight with old age.

You might stand her better if only she were ever in the wrong. To be able just once to convince the regulator that her opinion is unfounded we would cheerfully consent to be "bossed" the rest of our days.

She would be easier to bear if her rulings were from the height of superiority. Too often the director of the morals and manners of others is far from being invulnerable herself.

THE SHEATH COSTUME.

An Effort Being Made to Introduce the Turkish Veil.

To be or not to be—that is the question asked long ago by the melancholy Dane, and it is a question today and one which is vexing womankind wherever they are not blessed with a national costume which they must wear whether they will or no. I know six ladies who have had sheath dresses of more or less pronounced type, but as yet these gowns have not been worn outside their own rooms. One of them has a husband who says that if she dares show herself publicly in one of those gowns he will leave her within the hour and she will see him no more, and she knows he means it. The others are girls, but they dare not let their fathers or brothers see these dresses. So what is the use? But day after day we see pictures of lovely women gowned in the extreme of the empire styles, and then again there are other gowns that approach so nearly to the sheath that one must look closely to see wherein one begins and the other leaves off.

We also see thousands of other women and other gowns all with ample skirts and reasonably formed figures to one of the extreme empire style. I begin to fear that, like sheep, we shall go astray and follow the ugly shapes and unnatural forms made necessary by the old revived styles. Already there are corsets designed for the purpose of reducing the waist to that lanky shape, waistless, bustless and hipless. It is bad enough to be obliged to conform our costumes to new styles [illegible] obliged to remodel our figures. Some of these corsets are veritably iron clad bodices, and they really [illegible] the hearts while forcing by sheer strength the figure into their unyielding folds.

Hats follow the trend toward the ungraceful empire headgear, and the amount of fluffy ruffling now to be seen passes belief. Still, I will say nothing against the high and fleecy neck ruffles, for they have such a good effect on all faces, and particularly on elderly ones, softening the hard lines as by magic. Crepe lisse, malines and tulle all are employed in making the dainty and becoming ruffs. When worn with one of these old time hats and skimpy skirts they are certainly a saving grace. The hats are mostly drooping, with high crowns and any or all kinds of trimming, but made feathers having for a foundation the covering of the modest barnyard fowl, seem to have the preference. Some of the made up trimming is little short of artistic as to coloring and form. Human ingenuity has been taxed to devise such pretty set pieces. The very brightest of emerald greens and the rawest of reds in the crimson shades are oftenest seen, but some of the manufactured feathers have the middles of white or pale blue or brown shading out to the darkest on the outer edge.

Just as the Turkish women are trying to abandon the veil which has been the means of hiding just a very little and enhancing the beauty of the face through its meshes, our fashionable women are adopting it. To make the real veil which has so improved Turkish beauty by the added charm of partly revealing instead of hiding the wearer one must take two squares of the finest silk mull or crepe lisse, each one yard square. Then place on the hair above the forehead any kind of wreath of bright colored flowers, with as many pieces of jewelry as are desired. Fold one square so the center is on the bias. Then put this over the head, bringing the bias fold down just over the eyebrows, and carry the points around, fastening them at the back of the head. The other square is then folded in the same way and brought up across the nose under the eyes, and the ends are carried around to the back of the head and there fastened with only one pin. The pin should be put in so as to hold the bias fold fairly close across the nose and up over the temples in a natural manner and then left to fall loose in the back. The Turkish women darken their eyebrows and lashes and paint the cheeks and lips very red, besides laying on a thick coating of white. This vivid coloring shows faintly through the veil and adds a hundredfold to a woman's appearance. All the outlines are etherealized and made young and lovely, and, besides, there is a mystery about it which is very enticing. I have always thought it a pity that Turkish women who, being obliged to wear the veil, did not appreciate it had the monopoly of it. I have seen women in Constantinople whom I thought dreams of beauty turn out to be very ordinary.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm will master catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell the 50 cent size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

The Balm is used without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.

Ely's Cream Balm contains no cocaine, mercury nor other harmful drugs.

A BRIDGE PURSE.

A Useful Trifle to Carry When Playing the Game.

As there is no sign of the fascinating game of bridge losing its attractions for smart society, the bridge purse seen in the illustration will be an acceptable gift for the girl who likes to make her game more exciting by playing a penny or so a point. To make the purse commence with 85 chain, miss 1 chain, 1 double into every stitch, 1 chain turn.

Second row—1 double into 70 stitches (taking up in this and every row the two top threads), 2 chain, miss 2 double, then 12 double into the next 12 double, 1 chain turn.

Third row—12 double, 2 into the 2 chain of last row, 70 more double, 1 chain turn; repeat these last two rows until you have worked 26 rows altogether—that is, 13 stripes—then 1 double into end of stripe, 4 treble into next stripe *, 1 double into next stripe *, 1 double into next, 5 treble into next *, repeat three times, 1 double into next, 4 treble into next, 1 double into next (the last stripe) and fasten off—this is the right side—then fold together and sew up on the wrong side.

Then for the chain loops:

Cut off a length of silk about five yards and with it crochet 1 double on to the inside of the purse on the right hand side 25 chain, draw through the first loop of 2 chain, 2 double on to the ring, 25 chain, draw thread through the next loop, 2 chain on purse, and repeat until all the loops are filled (this requires a little care so as not to get the thread entangled, but it saves breaking off and threading in the ends every time); then do double crochet

MATERIALS REQUIRED.

One ball of crochet silk, any color preferred.
One yard and quarter of narrow ribbon to match silk.
One small ivory ring.
A few steel crochet needles.

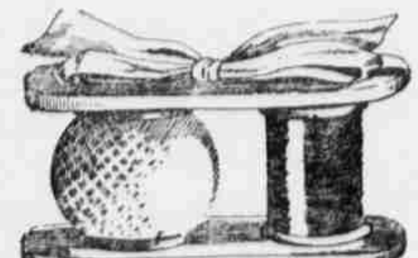
to nicely cover and fill up the ring, fasten off and neatly run in the ends of silk. Fold the ribbon and sew on to the top of the ring.

GIFTS EASY TO MAKE.

Ideas For Christmas Any Needlewoman Can Carry Out.

Among the new fancy articles that are being made for Christmas is a folding hatrack which very much resembles a candlestick shade. A semicircle is first cut out of buckram or tailor's canvas, the outer edge being twenty-two inches and the height five inches. It can be covered with denim, colored linen or flowered cretonne and is bound with gold braid, which is glued on, or with silk braid to match the cover. Three clamps or books are sewed on the ends, and when these are fastened together the whole forms a cone on which the hat can rest on the table or the hatbox.

Another acceptable gift is a hand-made medicine case, which would be found most useful when traveling. It is made of plain linen bound with red braid. Cut a piece of the linen 14 by 12 inches and fashion it so that it forms four well shaped flaps. Bind these with the braid. Then take about ten inches of red silk garter elastic and stitch it to the center of the linen in six different places. In the elastic put five two ounce bottles



MATERIALS REQUIRED.

One-eighth yard of cretonne.
One-eighth yard of china silk.
One piece of cardboard.
One spool of black darning cotton.
One spool of white darning cotton.
Half yard of ribbon.

DARNING COTTON HOLDER.

These can easily be obtained from any druggist. The two cross flaps are finished with a button and buttonhole.

A darning cotton holder is a most welcome gift to a mother. Two oval pieces of cardboard, about four and a half inches long by two and a half inches wide, are covered with flowered cretonne or any odd pieces of silk and a lining of white. Two spools of darning cotton, one black and the other white, are placed between the two pieces and held there by a piece of ribbon, which passes through the center of the spools and the upper and lower places of cardboard, being tied finally in a large bow at the top.

New Clubbing Proposition

WE have arranged to offer in connection with this paper, the new monthly farm magazine just started at Lincoln, Neb., by Prof. H. W. Campbell and devoted to the subject of how to farm in the dry country and how to get best results from soil tillage under normal conditions. This paper is "Campbell's Scientific Farmer" and we offer it clubbed with the Examiner both for $2.50 per year cash. Prof. Campbell's new paper is a monthly, chock full of good things, the only paper of its kind in the world, and it embodies the results of the editor's many years of pains-taking investigation of the soil tillage proposition.
