One of the most frightful earthquages known to history, occurred early last Thursady morning, at the straits of Messina, Italy, Whole cities were runned. Tidal waves des troyed 500 ships.

The known loss of life has reached the appalling figure of over 200,000 people-old and young, rich and poor all alike swept into sternity in the twinkling of an eye. After the quake, as in San Francisco, came dire which finished the uwful distruction, and burned the mnimed and helpless ones. The distaster has united the whole cided. More than two year ago the tle. world in its endeavor to relieve the Oregon was dismantled. The Oregon suffering, and to assist in restoring is now at one of the docks and prehomes for the unfortunate people.

It was a terrible calamity, and again shows how helpless is man when once the forces of nature arrayed against him and his works.

It is reported that $225,000,000 is gold was removed last week from the mint in San Francicso to Denver. said to be due to no desire of the government to be robbed by a sudden foreign invasion. And that in spite of the U. S.-Jap. "note" that was to insure prace! It seems that, like Robinson Cruso, we "live in the 1909, midst of alarms!"

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE.

Writing of Brown Swiss cattle in Breeder's Gazette, Chicago, a Wisconsin dairyman says: The Swiss cattle In this country are not so widely known as the other classes of cattle, as their numbers are small. The exhibit at fairs is not very large.

The following characteristics are marked: Size, form and color, especially of the head, cars, escut heou, udder and tests. The size is large and substantial, form firm and elegantly proportioned, color shades from dark to light chestnut brown. The light shade is especially observable in the ruft of hair between the horns, on the inside of the ears and in a narrow line along the back. Horns, which are rather short, are waxy and with black tips Nose is black and, with the mouth, surrounded by a mealy colored band. A yellow strip along the muldle of the under lip crosses over to the upper lip and extends up the sides of the nostrils. A light strenk runs along back from head to tall; black switch, hoofs and tongue; straight hind legs, wide thighs and heavy quarters.

In none of the herds which I have inspected have I seen cattle that I considered the equal of the Swiss stock. Their ancestors, having been raised in the pure mountain air of the Alps, give them very strong constitutions.

Killing Lice on Hogs.

We have a herd of from 200 to 250 Berkshires, and the prevention of lice has in years past been no small proposition for us to contend with, says a prominent breeder. We have a scheme now which in its results is more effective than anything we have yet tried, and we have used coal tar products, kerosene emulsion, machine oll and many other things. We have wallows for our swine, which contain water to a depth of from a foot to two feet, maintained fresh, no stagnant wallows. We always put some lime in these pools. We buy crude oil, processed, by the barrel, which costs about 10 to 12 cents per gallon that way. Once a week, when lice appear we draw off three or four quarts of this processed of and pour over the surface of this pool, upon which it im mediately spreads and forms a coating The hogs do not dislike this oil, and frequently they wallow just the same When they emerge from the water r bit of this oil is deposited over the en tire surface if the hog, under the arm pits and in other places where the lice most frequent. It keeps the skin of the animal in good condition and kills the nits as well as the lice, something we have been able to accomplish with no other remedy.
