Tim Sheehan Writes Of Gold Mining at Hoag

Situated about 5 miles to the east of New Pine Creek, a rising town on the Oregon-California State line in Goose Lake valley is the Hoag Mining District, a place that is now assuming much importance. The gold mines occupy a considerable area, mostly in Modoc county, though numerous claims have been staked out across the line in Lake county, Oregon.

That gold existed in this region was made known years ago by a mining man of the name of Hoag, from which it derives its name, though it was only a few years since it was investigated in a practical way. Then, Bird Wade of that locality made a discovery which brought many a gold seeker to the place, and actual work began. The Big Four Mining and Milling Company was incorporated which obtained control of the most valuable properties, owning the Big and Little Bonanza, the Golden Treasure and Gold Knight claims; and 500,000 shares at 10c were readily sold.

The work of development has since been slow, though satisfactory, the company evidently lacking the requirements to carry on the work in a proper manner. All the mines have been worked to some extent, particularly the Bonanza King, where a depth of nearly 100 feet has been reached with 25 feet of tunnel, and 2 1/2 feet of outside trench. The first gold was struck at a depth of 60 feet below the surface. The porphyry is about 75 feet wide, and seems about feet. In all, about 30 tons of ore have been raised, worth from $15 to $17 a ton, and averaging $100.

That these mines will shortly change hands is very probable, as the present company is willing to sell at a fair figure. An offer of $100,000 dollars was recently considered, and a sale of the company's interest would have been effected were it not for some difference arising regarding the disposal of the shares. At the present time a Colorado mining company is interested and has offered 75,000 dollars for the same claims. The latter, in the event of purchasing, intends to install a mill at once, and utilize the mines without further delay.

Undoubtedly, a period of quick mining activity in this district is at hand, and the population of New Pine Creek will increase many fold in the forthcoming Spring and Summer. It is a pretty little town, beautifully situated on the east side of Goose Lake, in a valley, rich and suitable for the production of grain, fruit and vegetables of all kinds. It is reached by stage from the south by way of Alturas 15 miles away and the present terminus of the N. C. O. Railroad being constructed northward.

J. C. Oliver was in from the West Side Monday and reported that plowing was being done out there that day, as the heavy rains and snows we are having this winter makes the farmers anxious to get in as big an acreage to crops as they can handle. Just mark it down that Lakeview farmers were plowing on Jan. 4, 1909, while their eastern compers were hugging stoves to keep warm!

The press of this Great Inland Empire is rejoicing over the fall of snow and rain of the past fortnight. It means feed for stock, and big crops the coming harvest.

The Klamath Republican said it is reported that the Lake county Examiner is to be converted into a daily paper sometime in the spring. The big development going on in Lake county should be able to furnish material for a daily.

Up in Prineville a class of adults and high school students has been organized for the purpose of securing instruction for reporting local events for the newspapers of that town. If every community would organize a class of that sort the press would have fuller pages of local interest than is generally the rule. But so far as the Examiner is concerned, if you can't call with that item, phone or drop us a postal.

The moving picture show is really a big addition to the amusements of the town. Good selections are shown, and come out clear and distinct, without the usual vibration so noticeable in most such exhibitions. Shows are given every night except Saturday night and three changes are made each week. The price of admission is 15 and 10 cents.

Just as we go to press the court house tower is lighted up for the first time.
