"The man who will render me happy." stammered the blushing princess, with a nigh, which was the only objection to which her heart gave utterance. "Speak, father," she said as she naw a frown gathering on the brow of the czar, "speak, and your majesty shall be obeyed!"

"Obeyed," exclaimed the emperor, trembling for the first time in his life. "Is it, then, only as an act of obedience that you will receive a husband from my hands?"

The young girl was sflent and concented a tear.

"Is your falth already plicited?" "Yes, father-if I must tell you-my heart is no longer my own. It is bestowed upon a young man who knows It not and who shall never know it if such be your wish. He has seen me but two or three times at a distance, and we will never speak to each other if your majesty forbids it."

The emperor was silent in his turn. He grew pale. Three times he made the circuit of the salon. He durst not ask the name of the young man.

"A stranger?" "Yes, father."

The emperor fell back into an armchair and hid his face in his hands, like Agamemnon at the sacrifice of Iphigenia.
