Value of Grinding Grein. The relative value of ground grain versus whole grain has been a problem which has been quite extensively tested by our various experiment stations. The Wisconsin station has conducted a long series of tests comparing cornmeal with shelled corn, and W. A. Henry and D. H. Otis are the authors of a bulletin just published which gives the results of ten years' work along this line, involving eighteen consecutive trinis. Eleven of these trials show a saving effected by grinding varying from 1.1 per cent to 11.1 per cent. The average of the whole series showed that 501 pounds of shelled corn produced 100 pounds of gain and 351 pounds of cornmeal produced 100 pounds of gain, a difference

"Captain Piccardt," said the king, "a treaty is in process of arrangement between us and the king of Prussia favoring a defensive and offensive alllance against the French. The final draft has been made, and the Prussian envoy has requested as to forward a copy of it to his sovereign for approval. King Louis of France knows that a treaty is being discussed and is anxious to defeat it, or if it is made to know its terms. The real king of a bit of paper which when compressed will be about the size of an almond. Go and bring me a solution as soon as you have made it."

"I have often thought of such a necessity and have invented such a plan. but several weeks are required for preparation."

"We can wait that long provided the plan will surely succeed."

Three weeks from that day spies of Cardinal Richelleu located near the boundary line between Holland and Germany were notified that the messenger had left Zwalle the day before, though they were not furnished with a description of him. There were few travelers in those days, and the only person the spies encountered was a friar, who said he was starting on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

"Good father." said one of the gang. 'say a paternoster for us."

The friar made excuses which did not satisfy those who had stopped him, whereupon, concluding that be was a sham mendicant, who didn't know a prayer, they searched him. Not finding anything on his clothing. they stripped him and made an examination that would have discovered an object no larger than a pea. But they found nothing and permitted him to proceed.

Crossing the Ems, he went on, begging by the way, till he reached the outskirts of Quakenbouk, where he was met by a man, who said to him, "Holy father, I have an order from his eminence Cardinal Richelleu to invite you to his palace in Paris."

"Lead on," replied the friar. "I am honored in an invitation coming from so great a churchman."

The man turned his back for a moment, and the friar brought his staff down on his head. He sank on the ground with a broken skull. "You think it heavy?" said the friar. "So It is. It is filled with lead." Then the ungrateful and unmerciful friar proceeded on his way.

The next of the cardinal's intercepters had not been so well informed as to the guise of the messenger of the king of the Netherlands. He was stationed at a ferry across the Weser river and did not suspect the friar. "Ferry you acress, holy man?" be

"That I will." said. There was now but one route avail-

A Complete Record

e have made an entire transcript of all Records in Lake County, which, in any way, affect Real Property in the county.

We have a complete Record of every Mortgage and transfer ever made in Lake County, and every Deed given.

Errors Found in Titles

In transcribing the records we have found numerous mortgages recorded in the Deed record, and not indexed; and many deeds are recorded in the Mortgage record and other books. Hundreds of mortgages and deeds are not indexed at all, and are most difficult to trace up from the records.

We have notations of all these Errors:

Others cannot find them. We have spent hundreds of dollars hunting up these errors, and we can guarantee our work.

able for some distance, and the cardinal had directed that every traveler passing that way be searched. A number of times the friar was stripped and carefully examined. One party even broke to pieces the rosary that hung about his waist. For this the father called down upon the man who committed the sacrilege the anathemas of the church. They were a superstitious people in those days, and the fellow. convinced that the pligrim was what he pretended to be, begged on his knees that he would withdraw the curse. The friar told him that he had often been molested on his pligrimage and would not remove the curse unless he were furnished with an order that he be permitted to travel without further interference. This was given him. He withdrew his anathemas and gave the party his blessing.

The friar went on, begging by the way, giving his blessing to those who gave him sustenance and shelter, till he came to the Elbe. On the banks of this river the passages were all guarded by the cardinal's secret emissaries, who, had they been known to the Prussian government, would have been hanged and quartered. This was the last line it had been thought advisable to guard. The friar had crossed the river and was tramping through a wood when men sprang from behind trees and downed him. As soon as he could make himself heard he told them of his pass and produced it. They were much astonished, for they had been advised that the messenger was traveling in the guise of a mendicant. However, they knew the men who had given him a free passage and let him go. This was the last time he was stopped.

One morning the king of Prussia received word that an envoy from the Netherlands was in the antechamber. The king, who was expecting news of the treaty, ordered the envoy admitted at once. When he saw a friar he was astonished. But the friar, who had thrown off his saintly mien, told the king that he had brought a copy of the treaty. When directed to produce it he said he must have a surgeon. A surgeon was called, and the friar, exposing his side under the ribs, told him to feel till he detected a small lump. The surgeon, having discovered it, was requested to make an incision over it. This done, a piece of wax was withdrawn from between the muscles. The wax was broken and a lump of thin compressed paper revealed. This being carefully unfolded, the king had a copy of the treaty.
