Ex-United States Senator Wm. M. Stewart, of Nevada, died under an operation at Washington last Friday. At one time he was one of the most conspicuous figures in our national life. His strenuous fight to prevent the demonization of silver was one of the most forceful efforts ever made in the United States Senate. It is now beginning to dawn on the public mind that most of our present national woes are the outcome of the successful effort to strike down silver, and that its restoration to a parity with gold is now only a question of time. In view of developments that have awakened public thought as to financial and industrial matters, "The Crime of '73" now has more significance than it had when its utterance by the eloquent lips now stilled in death gave rise to derisive guffaws of the willing tools of the "System."

However, when the time comes, as come it will, that silver is restored to its rightful place as a medium of exchange, and not a mere commodity as it is now, the estimation in which Wm. M. Stewart will then be held, will place him in the front rank of the really great Americans.

The editor of the San Francisco Chronicle has a great head. In a long editorial he finally disposes of the question of an income tax by calmly asserting that "rich men pay taxes the same as the rest of us"—so they do in less proportion, and the Chronicle knows it—but, that paper adds: "It is that accumulated wealth ought not by abnormal taxation to be diverted from useful investment and sunk in unnecessary battleships."

Wouldn't that make a dog laugh? "Diverted from useful investment?" Whose investment? Do the people derive any benefit from such "useful investment?" or does such "accumulated wealth" go toward swelling already menacing fortunes?

The Chronicle knows and so do all the corporation owned papers that the income tax and the inheritance tax are enforced in every country on earth, except the trust ridden United States, and will be here, sooner or later, in spite of courts that declare such legislation unconstitutional!

It will cost this country next year $248,000,000 to maintain its army and navy on a peace footing. Other nations are spending much more as their armies are larger. The question as to how this will end is not hard to determine, as it means bankruptcy to some of them, or else some one will get, and doubtless needs, a good drabbing. But, it is a shame in this day and age of boasted civilization that men should still resort to the barbarous methods of killing and maiming each other to settle feuds or even real difficulties. Evidently there is need of an international police force to make those of a bumptious nature keep the peace.

The Examiner has been favored with a copy of the Boston Herald, of the 19th inst which is largely devoted to the announcement of a "World's Tercentennial Exposition" in Boston in 1920, to commemorate the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth Rock in 1620. It is good idea and should bring quick and energetic response, not only from the people of the whole of the United States, but from the whole world, as much is due to the few hardy pioneers, who blazed the way for our present great Union. Every section but New England has now had a Fair of greater or lesser note, and with the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers as an inspiring cause, Boston should have a fair equal to the one held in Chicago commemorative of the discovery of America by Columbus.

Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture has directed that thorough examination be made during the coming summer of all forest reserves by agents of the Geological Survey and that classification be made of all non timbered areas and land more valuable for agriculture than timber, with a view to eliminating such lands from the forests and placing them at the disposal of the public for settlement and entry. It is estimated that 30 per cent of the forest reserve areas will be restored to public use if Secretary Wilson's order is carried into effect.

The editorial page of the Sacramento Bee rings true! It is a foe to graft, dirty politics, and is ceaseless in the work of enlisting public opinion in the cause of right and justice. In this work it has an able collaborator in the San Francisco Bulletin. And in this respect these two papers stand almost alone in that great state!

The entire press of the Pacific Northwest, with one or two insignificant exceptions, is singing the boosters' avil chorus with vim and enthusiasm. That is right, boys, keep up the good work.

The Sultan of Turkey, Abdul Hamid, got it where most other turkeys do, and has been deposed and his brother Mehmed, who has been a state prisoner by order of Abdul for 25 years, is now Sultan.

Klamath Falls is to celebrate the coming of the railroad on June 7th. We congratulate our sister city, and hope Lakeview will soon be tied to her with lasting bonds of steel.

Gems In Verse

WHAT IS LOVE?
SWEET, what is love? 'Tis not the crown of kings,
Nay, nor the fire of white seraphic wings!
Is it a child's heart leaping while he sings?
Even so say I;
Even so say I.

Love like a child around our world doth run,
Happy, happy, happy for all that God hath done,
Glad of all the little leaves dancing in the sun,
Even so say I;
Even so say I.
—Alfred Noyes.

POVERTY'S CHILDREN.
ALL through the city, on every side,
Poverty's children are scattered wide
POVERTY, she is a cruel mother,
But she has more children, than any other.

LITTLE she gives them to eat or wear—
Rags and tatters and bones picked bare.

TOYS, both grewsome and strange, have they,
Gleaned from the refuse and cast away.

FOR Poverty turns her children out
To play in the gutters round about.

NAUGHT for their good does Poverty care—
Cheats them of sunlight and common air.

CROWDS them together in filthy pens,
Herds them in stifling, unwholesome dens.

DINGY walls that are gray with grime,
Sodden yards that are thick with slime.

IS it a wonder, such homes within,
Poverty's child is a child of sin?
—Alfred Noyes.

CHILD BEATING.

Do not whip your child. To do so argues that you have not sufficient intelligence to govern it without the employment of brute force. Is it not so?

The child is a sentient being. It can think and understand and decide. Such an intelligence ought not to require the scourge. Even a dumb brute is better off without it.

The child is a sensitive being. Its feelings are keen. They have not grown calloused, and it is especially subject to fear and harshness. To beat it for its mistakes or forgetfulness is the refinement of cruelty.

You whip it "for its own good?" Are you sure about that? It may be forced into obedience to your command and cringe when you threaten it. But back of that appearance of meekness may be a swelling sense of injustice or of hatred. You may be drying up all the finer feelings of its nature.

It is a dangerous thing to thrust a ruthless hand into the delicate heart-strings of your son or daughter.

There may be no immediate sign of resentfulness or treachery or outbreak, but the impression is there and will tell in the formation of character.

Do not whip in anger!

Be sure the blow that falls on the delicate body of your child is not given to relieve your own angry, animal feelings. The little one will be quick to see that you strike because of your impatience and loss of self control and not because you are seeking its good. You may do infinite harm.

Do not forget—it is your child.

If it is impulsive or forgetful or even vicious at times, whose fault is it? You gave it your characteristics. Your blood runs in its veins, and that blood carries to its brain the seeds of the weakness your inheritance gave.

Moreover, do not make your child a coward.

The child that is beaten may lose all semblance of courage and go through life broken spirited and without all initiative. There could be no greater handicap.

You say you want to "break its spirit?"

Do you really mean that? Think of a parent trying to break the immortal spirit of his offspring! There is danger you may make of the child a mere thing that will go crouching and cringing through the world without individuality of thought or action.

Think twice before you raise your hand to smite a child.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Bread and Milk Poultice.
A bread and milk poultice usually is used to draw a boil or pimple to a head, and because it is so effective it is well to know how to make one. Put a tablespoonful of the crumbs of stale bread into one gill of milk and put this on the stove, letting it come to a boil. Then put this on a bandage of clean, soft old cloth and apply it to the sore.

Another way of making a bread and milk poultice is to take stale bread-crumbs and pour over them hot milk. Boil until the crumbs are soft, take from the fire and gradually stir in a little sweet oil or glycerin. A bread and milk poultice is better for drawing a splinter out of the hand or finger than anything else. It most cases it will draw the splinter out in half an hour or so.

Where Did You Get That Merry Widow Hat?

The Merry Widow Hat attracts everybody's attention. Everybody looks at it. Nobody can help seeing it.

Why? Because it occupies so much space. Because it is a fine millinery display. Because it has graceful lines.

In fact, it has LINES OF DISPLAY SPACE.

In the Hat lies a Hint—to wit:

The advertiser who would attract everybody's attention must use many LINES OF DISPLAY SPACE.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Pennsylvania's New Senator.
Conspicuous among the new arrivals in the United States senate is the young Toner Oliver of Pennsylvania, who takes the seat vacated by the late M. S. Knox, now secretary of state. While he has never held a political office, Mr. Oliver has been prominently identified with political affairs in Pittsburgh all his life and has several times been a delegate to national conventions. On two different occasions in his life opponents of the late M. S. Quay induced Oliver to stand against him, and it is said that Oliver could have won had he remained in the field, but Quay was his bosom friend, and he refused to have any part in his downfall.

Senator Oliver was born in Ireland in 1848 while his parents were there on a visit. He studied law, was admitted to the bar and practiced his profeSSION for several years. Most of his time, however, has been devoted to the iron and steel business, at which he amassed a large enough fortune to place him in the multimillionaire class. Senator Oliver is the owner of the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times and the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph, papers of influence throughout Pennsylvania. In the senate Mr. Oliver is expected to be a conservative. He is a good speaker and is rated a man of excellent political judgment.

Home, Sweet Home.

Senator McClaurin of Mississippi tells a story to illustrate his conception of the difference between the treatment of the colored brother up north and down south. A Mississippi dandy went up to Kansas and shortly got stranded. He begged for food and shelter from door to door and got neither. Finally he wandered back to Mississippi and knocked.

"What are you doing at my front door, you black rascal?"

"I want something to eat."

"Well, go around to the back door and get it, then, you rascal," said the white man.

Then the old negro, remembering the polite way in which his requests had been refused in Kansas, threw up his hands and exclaimed: "Bless Gawd, it's among my own people at last!"—Washington Star.

Dean of the Cabinet.

With one exception James Wilson of Iowa, secretary of agriculture since March 4, 1897, holds the record for consecutive service in the cabinet, and he will soon reach the period when he will have served longer than any cabinet minister in the country's history. Although seventy-four years old, he is hale and hearty. Albert Gallatin, secretary of the treasury under Presidents Jefferson and Madison from 1801 to 1814, has been the only cabinet officer to surpass Mr. Wilson's present record. A native of Scotland, Mr. Wilson came to this country with his parents when a boy of seventeen, settling in Connecticut. Three years later he removed to Iowa, locating in Tama county, where he has since made his home. He began his political career as a member of the Iowa legislature, serving three terms, one as speaker of the house. In 1872 he was elected to the Forty-third congress, re-elected to the Forty-fourth and after serving several years as member of the Iowa railway commission was returned to the Forty-eighth congress. For six years prior to becoming secretary of agriculture Mr. Wilson was director of the agricultural experiment station and professor of agriculture at the Iowa Agricultural college at Ames. During his control of affairs of the department over which he presides Mr. Wilson has seen it grow from a modest institution into one that ramifies the whole country.

Northwest Notes

Burns—The experts say that Hartsley county has the most promising gas and oil fields in the northwest and give such intelligent reasons to warrant our people in going ahead with the development work. One strong company is already formed for this purpose and another will soon be launched, so that active operations will very likely be in progress by July 1st. With a gas and oil supply in sight by actual demonstrations, who can conceive the great things that will transpire here within the next few years?

Burns News—M. G. Raabach has been here from Portland the past two weeks investigating the location and character of two half sections of land owned by an uncle of his, with a view of entering extensively into the sheep business. He was out to see the land, which is in the vicinity of Warner Lake, half being in this county and half in Lake, and he is favorably impressed with conditions.

Burns News—A very sad thing occurred last Sunday morning when one of Mr. P. J. Conroy's sheep herders committed suicide by taking poison. Dr. Smith, who was called, arrived after the man had been dead for some time. He is said to be a native of Pennsylvania and is said to own some property there. He was buried in the Drowsay cemetery Monday.

Grand Rapids Dispatch to New York Press.

Phillip Young, a young inventor of this city, Tuesday gave a successful demonstration of a wireless electric lamp. He exhibited the lamp in a store before a hundred persons, who are convinced of its utility. Young refused to make known the secret of the lamp. The light comes from a small globe placed on a cylinder filled with a compound in the form of powder. A small battery is also charged with this powder. Young said that one battery would keep the lamp burning continuously for six months. He asserted that the cost of the lamp was trifling, but gave no definite estimate.

NEW CLUBBING ARRANGEMENT

Perhaps you are paying 50c to 75c a month for a daily paper. And every family these days should have a daily. It is a little too early for The Examiner to branch out as a daily as the telegraph service would be prohibitive. But we will give our subscribers the next best thing and that is: we will club the Daily Bulletin of San Francisco with The Examiner and furnish both one year at the unheard-of price of $4.50 postpaid. This unprecedented offer is good for only a short time. It is good to any body anywhere. The Bulletin is one of the oldest and best papers on the Pacific coast. Send in or bring in your orders!
