NORTHERN LAKE A FINE SECTION

Discriptive Article Taken From the Silver Lake Leader.

In this article which we promised last week to produce in this issue on Lake County, or more particularly that portion known as the northern half, embracing a section from Paisley to our northern boundaries, we shall try, and it will be our aim to give things just as they are (as we know by actual observation and residence) and which can be verified by any one living in the country and familiar with it, so that those living in other sections and wanting to know more about us can have something that they can depend upon and that is reliable.

In the outset, we wish to say that while we consider Lake County one of the best counties in the state, or perhaps to be more accurate, will be when all our undeveloped resources that nature has been so lavish with is developed properly, yet we want it distinctly understood that it is not a county, nor is there any section of it where you can raise oranges, bananas, lemons, pineapples, coconuts or other tropical fruits, and any one creating or causing to create such an impression either directly or indirectly is creating an impression that is misleading. Nor is it a fruit country taking the county as a whole, yet there are some sections admirably adapted to fruits of all kinds, and which grows in abundance and of the finest flavor and keeping qualities which will be noted more particularly later on.

LAKE COUNTY

Lake County is in the center of the great lake country of Central Oregon where are located some of the most remarkable bodies of water in the state. This county lies in the central southern portion of the state, about midway between the eastern and western boundaries. On the north it is bounded by Crook County, on the east by Harney County, on the south by the states of California and Nevada, and on the west by Klamath County. As to area it stands the fourth largest in the state, having something over 8,000 square miles, and its annual precipitation stands third in Eastern and Central Oregon only Wascoco and Hood River counties leading it by a small margin. Some idea of the vast territory embraced within the borders of Lake County can be more easily understood when we compare its area to some of the states in the union. It is larger than Delaware, larger than New Jersey, larger than Connecticut, and about equal in size to Massachusetts. Yet this vast area our population is only about 4,000.

The county contains 5,069,300 acres divided as follows: 1,985,048 acres of agricultural land, 1,124,352 acres of grazing land, 52,000 acres of timber land, 593,000 acres of unsurveyed land and 377,900 acres covered by lakes, much of which will in time be drained and make the very choicest of agricultural land.

LAKEVIEW

Lakeview is the county seat of Lake County and is situated in the extreme south end of the county, being only about 15 miles from the Oregon and California state line and has a population of about 1200. It is a busy thriving industrial town, most every kind of business being represented. To give our readers an adequate idea of Lakeview and its business, will say that it supports three banks, one national, one savings, and one private. These combined assets reach over one million dollars. In fact, Lakeview is the banking center of Lake County, there being no other banks located elsewhere in her borders.

With this general brief description of Lake County as a whole, we will proceed with the portion set out in the first part of this article to more particularize and which embraces more than half the territory as well as more than half the taxable property in the county, but probably not half the population. We reach over one million dollars. In fact, Lakeview is the banking center of Lake County, there being no other banks located elsewhere in her borders.

best watered sections in Lake County as there are many mountain streams coming into the valley at various places throughout its entire length which furnishes abundant water to irrigate much land, and in addition thereto the river is tapped at several places and the water brought out in ditches which irrigates many thousands of acres more. Nearly every farm and ranch is well supplied with water for irrigating, and in many instances the finest and coolest springs which naturally abound furnish the household with the purest and clearest of water.

Within five miles of Paisley there are immense quantities of timber, and in the hills back of town there have been some mining operations carried on. Many experts who have examined the mines give it as their opinion that when the shaft is sunk to sufficient depth, rich ore deposits will be struck.

SUMMER LAKE

Summer Lake valley is bounded on the east by the lake and on the west by the mountains which bear the name of the valley, and is a veritable gem. This valley contains the choicest lands in Lake County, and in time will be all Central Oregon what Hood River is to the country tributary to it. Summer Lake is an ideal fruit belt, the equal of which is hard to find anywhere and nowhere in Oregon can it be excelled. In this fertile little valley there are 20,000 acres that are adapted to fruit culture. Here is a vast body of land that by nature was intended as a fruit belt as is shown by the wild plums growing on every hand where the ground has as yet not been cultivated and whose quality and flavor can only be known and appreciated by partaking of the luscious fruit. So prolific are the plums, that in many places as the traveler goes along the road he can sit in his wagon and pluck the fruit as ripe as he wishes. Here in this valley, apples, pears, plums, prunes, peaches, apricots and all other like fruits, as well as all kinds of berries grow in profusion and abundance, and not only the quantity but the quality cannot be excelled any where. Tomatoes, melons, and all other vine as well as all kinds of root crops together with oats, wheat and barley, almonds, walnuts and filberts all flourish and yield abundantly.

To give the reader an idea of the yielding capacity of this soil, a gentleman had in less than five acres of potatoes from which he harvested 60 tons of the finest potatoes man ever laid eyes upon. This yield would probably a little larger than the average yield throughout the valley yet it goes to show what can be done in that line by a man who thoroughly understands gardening. A few years ago a field of 15 acres yielded 107 bushels per acre, and wheat has yielded 60 bushels to the acre. These yields we are frank to say are exceptional and in less than five acres of potatoes from which he harvested 60 tons of the finest potatoes man ever laid eyes upon.

In this valley there are no towns but they have a good saw mill which not only furnishes all this section with lumber but all the Chewaucan valley as well. A fine building was erected last year for a grist mill and it is the intention to place the machinery therein this summer and be ready to grind this fall.

SILVER LAKE

Silver Lake is a beautiful valley with Silver Creek flowing through it entire length and emptying into the lake some six miles below town. Silver Lake is principally owned by stockmen who have large herds of cattle, horses and sheep and the land used to produce hay and pasture for the winter needs. There has however been some farming done on a limited scale throughout the valley which has yielded good returns, oats going to some instances as high as 75 to 70 bushels to the acre. This of course was exceptional instances, the average yield running in the neighborhood of 40 bushels. But little wheat has yet been harvested—although quite an acreage was sown last fall and this spring which promises fine—but that which was produced satisfactory returns to the producer. The older settlers settled along the creek principally and it has only been in the last few years that the prairie lands have been settled up and attempts made to cultivate them and see what their productive capacity was, but in every instance where intelligent culture and ordinary care were given the crops the returns were perfectly satisfactory. We will cite the instance of a man who came here about two years ago, and last spring cleared about 40 acres of his land of sagebrush, sowing a portion to alfalfa, a portion to rye, and the remainder (with the exception of perhaps an acre which was kept for garden to bury). Last season as every one will remember was a bad year for crops not only here, but every where, yet on this piece of land we saw alfalfa in August, that was sown in May, fourteen inches in height all over the field looking as healthy and thrifty as we ever saw alfalfa in the most favored localities, and this without a drop of water except that which fell from the clouds. On the farm from the rye was good, and the barley medium. In the garden, potatoes, cabbage, and many other different varieties of vegetables were grown, all of which were of good size and splendid quality, and all this on new wild sage brush land.

This is not what can be called a fruit section, although there is an orchard or two near here bearing fruit, and no doubt many favored spots in time will be found where the more hardy fruits can be raised to some extent. Garden stuff grows well and as fine vegetables of the hardy sorts as one ordinarily sees anywhere has been raised throughout the valley.

The town of Silver Lake has a population of about 200. It has two general merchandise stores, two hotels, one electric light plant, its own electric light plant, one blacksmith shop, a harness shop, drug store, two doctors, livery stable, barter shop, two real estate firms, ice cream and soda parlor, one soft drink establishment, several localities, one newspaper, a good school which has outgrown its present quarters and now the district is having built on a new site a new, handsome, commodious and modern school building that will cost $5,000. A new Baptist church will be erected this summer, a portion of the lumber being now on the grounds. Four different stage lines leave the place.

The creek that runs through the valley is a regular fisherman's paradise, and indeed it is a poor fisherman who goes out angling, if in an hour or two cannot bring back a string of speckled beauties sufficient to appease the appetite of at least half a dozen persons. During the fall, winter and spring months, the lake is filled with myriad ducks, geese and swans, and it only takes a few hours for the hunter to procure a bag limit.

FORT ROCK AND CHRISTMAS LAKE

These two sections are almost identically the same, and in fact, there is no difference between them only an imaginary line is located where that imaginary line is located that supports the hardy hood to dig and see what was beneath the surface, and lo! water was struck of the finest and best quality. Settlers began to come in and in no instance have they failed to find water in abundance everywhere from 6 to 40 feet, and now the name heretofore applied to this section "desert" is a misnomer.

Here is a vast territory where a man can ride over for miles and during the entire time he is looking it over the same similarity of soil and vegetation greets his eye. This territory that embraces thousands upon thousands of acres, capable of supporting a couple of thousand families lies open for settlement under the generous provisions of the homestead laws where a man can make a home for himself. This section now has three hundred settlers and every day brings more in. Quite a large acreage has been sown to grain this spring and last fall, and the fall grain in every instance is looking fine and promises an abundant harvest.

While it is true, that comparatively speaking, the actual productive qualities of this section are yet in their infancy, yet from the trials given and the manner the farming has been done, the outlook is far more favorable than the most ardent could expect.

These soils have been tested by both our State Agricultural College and the Government, and each have pronounced them of the richest and highest productive qualities. This entire section we fully believe, will in a few years be one vast grain field, yielding its golden harvests and filling the pockets of the owners with a rich return for his labors. Do not understand us to mean that every man who attempts to farm will make a success of it, although at one time it was the almost universal belief that any fool could farm and so when a man made a failure of everything else he was advised to go on a farm. That day has, however, passed and it is now considered by every one (excepting of course this old fogey class) that it takes intelligence and brains to farm. In fact, it takes more intelligence and brains to become a successful farmer than it takes in many other lines of business.

Fort Rock and Christmas Lake hold out to intending settlers the opportunity to take up land of which good homes can be made, and in holding out this inducement, they want to see only good, honest, enterprising people grasp the opportunity. For a person to come in and take up a homestead and then sit still all day and reap rewards from his land is but vagaries and illusions of an idle dreamer.

excellent quality, as Summer Lake, the Gem of Lake County, will be for its fruit.
Whooping Cough
"In February our daughter had whooping cough. Mr. Lane, of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. We found it as he said and can recommend it to any one having children troubled with whooping cough," says Mrs. A. Goss, of Durand, Mich. For sale by Daly and Hall.
