GET LAND NOW

The Canyon City Eagle says the old timers of a country never realize its worth until others come and seize all the opportunities and leave the old settler nothing but regrets.

One of the instances it cites is rapid appropriation of the timber resources by eastern people who knew its value while the Oregon people quietly sat by and wondered what it was all about, and that when they did begin to realize what they were missing the opportunity was gone. The Eagle says:

"The government's timber domain passed to eastern owners, who knew its value. The settlers who spent their lives in the silence of this forest vast saw no value and it went to those who saw mighty forests disappear in other states.

"History repeats itself. Again page number one is turned. Capital witnesses the congested centers of population cry aloud for land and see the the government making its last gift of homes to the people. It recognizes an enhancing value. Every acre must go to work, and the cultivation of the soil will infringe on the sandy wastes of the desert. They know all these things.

"Those who have lived here have accustomed themselves in the belief that they could have all of the land that they could patrol and see no value except possibly the expense to enclose it with a fence. They will get nothing.

The agricultural lands will go just like the timber lands have gone. On every hand there is evidence. Nearly every day eastern companies are acquiring thousands of acres. They know the value. The harvest is theirs. Surely, history repeats."

If you have no land, get some. What is worth taking up by the newcomers, will be worth as much to you as to them. Don't listen to the knocker. They do not know any better! But you can set it down as a fixed and immutable fact that the day is not far distant when every acre of government land in Lake County will be taken up and devoted to the use which it is best adapted, be it fruit, grain, pasture or mine! Get busy now, and get a piece of vacant Lake County land before it is all gone, and you are left among those to whom opportunity came but, you heeded not!

BEGINNING TO GET ALIVE

The scales seem to be dropping from the eyes of both the Oregonian and the Telegram.

The former under the caption "Rapid Progress of the State" goes on to give a summary of what is being done in the development of different parts of Oregon in the way of irrigation, under-drainage, improvements in stock, fruit growing, timber conservation, and transformation of our many wasting waters into electrical energy and concludes as follows:

"The main drawback now is the slowness of railroad extension. In these times no considerable population will go far beyond the reach of railroad service, and very little real development can come to unoccupied districts till the railroad helps to open the way. Oregon has a right to be insistent that the great railway combination that almost wholly controls its territory shall continue its activity and open new sections of the state. We shall get the Tillamook road within a year, but we want the Coos Bay road, and, above all, a road into and through Middle Oregon."

The Telegram in an editorial headed: "More Railroads Our Greatest Need," says:

"The greatest need of the state is railroads. We are expending our energies and our money in attracting people here while four-fifths of our land is away from railroad communication. It is not hard to attract people here, and once they come it is easy to keep them. No section of the country so completely makes good to the visitor as Oregon. People who come here want to stay and here make their homes. There is an attraction to the country which the man born here scarcely realizes."

Then it goes on to say that the great drawback is lack of transportation facilities, although some electric lines are in operation, there is room and business for hundreds of miles more of them, that there is need of steam roads, and that its time to call a halt on the earnings of the present roads diverted from the state to up-build other commonwealths, while Oregon is fairly stagnant with lack of railroads.

It says bluntly that "the time is here when something must be done. The people who are coming in must find a way to the cheaper land and better means of transportation to carry to market what they produce. The tendency of the population is in this direction. In the next five years the state should make great gains in population coming from outside borders. But if the railroads continue to maintain the policy that has so consistently marked them in Oregon, we shall soon reach the point where we will be wasting money in exploitation work because the natural opportunities are lost through lack of transportation facilities."

It will be observed that both these papers state the case fairly and stoutly assert that something must be done. Neither, however, offers a single word as to the remedy to be provided for this uncalled for condition of Oregon affairs, and both have disagreed with Jim Hill and The Examiner, that if the railroad powers that be refuse to aid in this matter, then the proper course to pursue for Oregon is to construct, own and operate its own railroads.

In this endeavor, with the great Columbia river and the Pacific ocean washing its shores, no state in the Union has a better chance to rid itself of the greedy and remorseless railroad monopoly than Oregon, and thereby render her now and for all time to come, independent of such an extortionate "system."

The Coos Bay and Boise people are moving toward a state-owned road, however, and in this endeavor they can be assured of the hearty assistance of the Examiner.

Notice.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN, notice is hereby given that all irrigation, or millrace ditches on all trout streams through Lake County, Oregon, must be screened with a small mesh wire screening at their head or junction with the main channel of stream. Also all dams or obstructions on said streams must be provided with a fish-ladder, or other easy means of passage, at or near the middle of the main channel, so as to allow the passage of trout at all times of year, as provided by law. Said work to be done at low water time, or to be completed by Feb. 7, 1907. By order of J. A. Barham, Special Deputy Fish Warden for Lake County, Oregon.

Heart to Heart Talks.

WHERE DO YOU LIVE?

If asked the question you would give the name of the town or city in which you reside, adding perhaps the number and street.

But that is not where you live. That is only the place where you are staying.

You live in another world—a world apart from your daily abode. For instance—

Some live in a world of LEISURE. They live a lounging sort of existence, idling through the hours, taking the line of least resistance, seeking the things that make for luxury. They care only for themselves, dodging all self sacrifice or hardship, preferring the sensuous, pampered way.

Some live in a world of DISSIPATION.

They walk the primrose path of dalliance daily. They cry: Chase the winged butterfly of pleasure! Watch the dryads dance! Listen to the patter of the fountain!

Others live in a world of ACTION. They are restless, ambitious, unquiet, agitated. They are roving in spirit, disturbed, inconstant, brisk, prompt, lively, they go the pace that tells.

Some live in a world of THOUGHT. Their mind to them a kingdom is. They pity him who riots or him who dallies. There is the world of intellect. In that world they live and move and have their being. They are of that rare people who are good company for themselves.

Others live in a world of FEELING. They are easily moved, though slow of action. They enjoy the exercise of their emotions. They are ready to weep with those that weep, but slow to dry the mourner's tear. Having sensibilities that are keen, every sensation gives them delight.

Others live in a world of SERVICE. They care for nothing better than the opportunity to be of service to their fellows. They give to that service the best they have to give—theirself. Kindness, good will to all, charity and active benevolence are their characteristics.

Others live in a world of SACRIFICE. These are they who find their highest joy, their deepest sense of living, in the elimination of self—rare spirits.

In which world do you live? If the world in which you now live does not suit you, why not move into one of the others?

chines at $1.35 a bushel. And the wheat lands of Lake County now being taken at a rapid rate will soon be bringing big returns to their fortunate owners.

DON'T BE A KNOCKER

The Sumpter American has this to say of the genus homo that seems to exist in every community, beings who are conspicuous for failure in life, embittered thereby, and more to be pitied than blamed:

"Don't look on the bright side of anything. Don't permit yourself to see good in anyone. Don't have any charity for your erring brother or sister. If you have any of the milk of human kindness in your heart cure it in some way. Believe that all men are liars, and that there is not the smallest amount of truth in them. 'Find fault with your fellowman. Say mean things about your neighbor; envy her; hate him; seek a good scrap every time a stranger comes to your city; tell him all the mean things that you ever knew about your community; think evil; rejoice in iniquity; endure nothing; and above all don't forget to give the local newspaper a good dig.

"After you have done all the above ascribed tasks and you do not feel completely miserable and unhappy it is because you have not yet quenched the last vital spark of love and manhood in your being."

The probable abandonment by the Canadian Government of its projected Hudson bay railroad, because of the diversion of the grain traffic of Alberta from the lakes route to the Pacific, indicates another important result which the Panama canal, when completed will have. Much of the grain shipments to Europe from Western Canada, which are bound steadily to increase with time, is, probably, go from a Pacific coast port, via the Panama Canal, instead of from an Atlantic port.

Smiles and Squalls

By "THE VERDANT ONE"

A Kansas exchange avers: There are a few women in every town in which the newspaper can never get a "scoop". They know all the news the editor gathers up and a lot he misses.

The editor of an exchange got into trouble knee deep recently. A couple of young people, Newton Lord and Jennie Helper, got married, and the editor used the usual brominated heading, Lord-Helper, in his write up of the event.

And now the trusts blame the retailers on the high prices the consumers are paying.

There are people whose idea of a good story is one that tells something dirty, and whose idea of a good time is something disgraceful, and of which they will be ashamed of next day.

A prominent Nevada man committed suicide because his young wife scolded him for being out all night with the boys and girls! If every man guilty of such conduct did the same there would be a rapid increase in grave yard additions.

A jubilant Kansas editor says: "All the banks are preparing to fall in line and guarantee their deposits. People won't need to care now whether the bank busts or not. Their money will be safe." Judging from the noise that editor must have at least 30 cents on deposit, that in some way was overlooked by the paper trust and the railroads.

Never bear more than one kind of trouble at a time. Some people bear three kinds: All they've had, all they have now and all they expect to have.

An observant and expert Kansas newspaper man testifies: "Every man has about as much trouble in keeping buttons on his clothes as a woman has keeping up her stockings."

This story comes from Texas: "A prohibition candidate had so much campaign literature left over that he stored it in the barn, not thinking of the cows. The cows ate the prohibition literature and every cow on the place went dry."

For a Sprained Ankle

As usually treated a sprained ankle will disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may be effected in many cases in less than a week's time. The liniment is a most remarkable preparation. Try it for a sprain or bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords. For sale by Daly & Hall.

Canby Tribune: "Hogs, hogs," is the constant cry of the wholesalers. More hogs wanted, and from where are they to come? This is an ideal fruit country, but we must not lose sight of the fact that people need more than fruit. Diversified farming or the small rancher has proven numerative than any other method. By all means, have your orchard, berry patch, and garden, but don't stop at that. Raise hogs sheep, or, if you have a brush pasture, a small bunch of goats will take care of the la...
